Valuable American Lives China Like Poland? Why Dodos Died Trouble in Jerusalem

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

IN 1922, after 79 years of life insurance, policies on American lives amounted to 50 billion dollars.

Now the total is above one hundred billions.

This stupendous sum is important as an indication of prosperity and national common sense.

Life insurance policies in America are more than double the life insurance in all other countries combined.

Poor old China, unable to afford a war, or resist efficiently, suspects the Japanese of plotting with Russia for a division of Chinese territory.

China might become an Asiatic Poland, with Japan and Russia imitating the treacherous example set by respectable west European monarchs, years ago.

One difficulty would be Japan's violent objection to Russia's kind of government.

Japan at first rejected the Kellogg pact, because it was supposed to be put into effect "by the people." Such things in Japan are done by the will of the Mikado. Japan fears the communistic bogey almost as much as Wall Street fears it.

Lack of enlisted men has made it necessary, in our army, to shift men from infantry to air service.

Army dodos who resent this ought to remember what happened to the feathered dodos with similar thinking machinery They died out.

What would infantry be expected to do, if we had war? Would the foot soldiers run down to the seashore, and bite enemy troops, as they disembarked?

Does any army officer believe that there will be hand to hand fighting between men on foot, on this continent, unless in rebellion or riot?

Is it not perfectly clear that any attack would come through the air, backed up, perhaps, by submarine attack on shipping and coast cities?

In Jerusalem there have been frequent clashes between Jews and Arabs recently, based on disagreement as to rights in the vicinity of the Wailing Wall.

A Jewish youth, Abraham Mizrahi, stabbed in a quarrel, died, and his mother's shrieks of anguish as she returned from the hospital caused intense excitement.

Since last Saturday, 26 have been wounded, and increasingly bitter hostility between Arabs and Jews is evident.

The Arabs, unable to compete in agriculture, industry, or commerce, are intensely hostile and outnumber the Jewish population ten to one.

Henry Ford tells the Pictorial Review, "If booze ever comes back, I am through with manufacturing.

"I would not be bothered with handing over 200,000 men, trying to pay them wages which the saloons would take away from them."

Mr. Ford is building factories costing scores of millions, in Britain and several other European countries, where there is no prohibition.

Apparently they manage "Booze" better over there They drink beer and wine chiefly, and the saloon is not established on the American plan.

Thomas Jefferson thought Americans could be taught to drink beer and wine moderately, as Europeans do. But it's too late for that now, with prohibition here.

The "Golden Racer," phenomenally fast airplane, built in Britain for the Schneider cup race, includes this interesting feature:

The pilot will ride in a closed cockpit with an oxygen tank at his side, an oxygen mask over his mouth, goggles covering his eyes.

In the event of a crash there would be no possibility of escape. The heat will be great, with the engine in front and the oil tank generators back of him.

Flying at high speed and at great altitudes may, with evolution and time, say 500,000 or 1,000,000 years, change entirely the human breathing system.

Haeckel thought men might develop one eye for the microscope, one for the telescope and both for normal vision. Men might adapt one lung to high flying, the other to life at the earth's surface.

The Japanese government has already ordered an airship of the Zeppelin type.

Mother of Eight to Hang

START FROM JAPS' AIRPORT ON FLIGHT TO AMERICA CALLED OFF FOR TODAY; BOSTON MAN MISSING

Kasumigaura, Japan, Aug. 22—The start of the Graf Zeppelin on her transpacific flight to America, third leg of the Hearst Zeppelin round the world voyage, was postponed shortly before midnight tonight (10 a. m., Boston daylight saving time), because of the unfavorable winds. It was then announced the dirigible might leave early in the morning.

The start, postponed from 4 a. m. today because of an accident to the rear motor gondola while the ground crew was walking the airship from its hangar, had been set for 10 p. m. (9 a. m. Boston Daylight time).

Another possible hitch in the Graf's departure, had it not been for the bad weather, was the failure of two of the American passengers to arrive at the hangar on time.

They are Lieut. J. C. Richardson, one of the two United States naval observers aboard the Graf, and Joachim B. Rickard of Boston. They had gone to Yokohama on a sightseeing tour earlier in the day, and despite frantic efforts to locate them they did not return to the Imperial Hotel in Tokio at the time the other passengers left for the special train to bring them to Kasumigaura.

HUB MAN MISSING

At 9:30 all of the crew and passengers, excepting Richardson and Rickard, were on board anxious for the start.

Troops, gendarmes and police—a veritable army—were holding the vast crowds back of the roped-off lines.

Dr. Eckener and his navigating and weather officers were grouped together in a last-minute study of weather charts.

Near the air field there were heavy clouds; a light rain was falling and an unfavorable wind was blowing across the field.

DISAPPOINT CROWD

A vast crowd was waiting to watch the Graf's departure when the postponement became known. It disappointed great numbers of country folk who had left their fields and farms to be present on the historic occasion of the first airship flight from the Orient to America.

In addition to the 16 passengers whose tickets read from Lakehurst to Lakehurst, three Japanese will join the airship when she does start.

They replace Prof. Karkian, Russian geographer, a Japanese naval officer and two newspaper men who came from Friedrichshafen to Kasumigura.

The new passengers are Lieut. Cmdr. Ryunosuke Kusaka of the Japanese naval general staff, Dofu Shiral, correspondent of a Japanese news agency, and Maj Shinichi Shibata of the general staff of the army.

The officers and crew of the airplane will be increased to 42, including Dr. Hugo Eccener, by the addition of Chief Engineer Karl Beuerle, who joined the airship here after supervising its refueling.

QUICKLY REPAIRED

The damage sustained when the Zeppelin dipped as it was leaving the hangar, crushing two struts of the rear gondola, were found to be entirely superficial and easily repaired today.

The envelope of the gondola and the basket underneath both were slightly damaged, but were readily mended.

LOVE SLAYING AFFINITY IN COLLAPSE

Quebec Woman Who Poisoned Husband Unafraid of Fate Tomorrow

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 22—The first woman to be hanged in Canada in six years will go to the scaffold at the Hull, Que., jail across the river a short time after midnight tonight.

Mrs. Marie Viau, 44, mother of eight children, will pay the death penalty with Philoert Lefebvre for the murder of her husband, Zephir Viau.

The woman and her suitor confessed slaying the husband last January in order that their love path might be cleared of the obstacle presented by a legal mate.

Lefebvre admitted buying arsenic with homicidal intent and Mrs. Viau confessed placing the poison in soup which she fed her husband.

The black flag will fly over Hull jail some time between midnight and 6 o'clock tomorrow morning Only prison and government officials will witness the double-hanging, and Canadian mounted police, Montreal provincial police and Hull gendarmes will patrol the streets and guard the prison.

Mrs. Viau and Lefebvre were brought here yesterday from Montreal, where they have been convicted since conviction. The man has been at Bordeaux jail and Mrs

Gay Pajama Dance Ties Up Traffic

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 22 (AP)—Pajama inspectors became traffic cops as 2500 persons turned out for a widely advertised "Pajama Dance," and only 25 couples showed up in pajamas. Traffic tieups were caused by the event.

The inspectors were deputy sheriffs dispatched to a local casino under terms of an injunction that forbade them interfering with the event.

Deputies were on hand, but with nothing to do. A huge crowd swarmed the place and traffic became snarled. Soon the officers were directing traffic, while a scant 25 couples were mustered for the pajama parade.

The injunction was granted after the sheriff, upon requests of women's clubs, announced he would stop the dance.

2 BOOTLEGS DIE IN GUN FIGHT

Benton, Ill., Aug. 22 (INS)—Chief of Police Leroy Fisk of West Frankfort, near here, was held under technical arrest here today pending outcome of an inquest into the deaths of two alleged bootleggers during a gun battle in the business district of West Frankfort.

The police chief instantly killed Earl Kreiger and Albert McDonald after Kreiger is said to have opened fire on Patrolman George Nipper, also of West Frankfort, who was helping Fisk search the car occupied by Kreiger and McDonald.

Mrs. Tex Rickard Is 'Broke,' She Says

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—The New York American today quotes Mrs. Tex Richard, young widow of the famous fight promoter, as saying she is almost penniless although her husband was reputed to be worth $1,000,000 when he died.

Mrs. Rickard said she had received less than $5000 from the estate and had little hope of getting any more. The American describes the $500,000 trust fund created for their two-year-old daughter, Maxine, as only a generous dream on the part of Mr. Rickard and says there will be nothing left for the daughter.

"My financial situation right now is such that I must step out and get myself a job in order to support my daughter," the paper quotes her as saying.

Mrs. Rickard, who is living in a modest cottage in Flushing, N. Y., characterized many who had appeared to be friends of her hus-

GIRL IS FOUND SHOT DEAD

Portland, Me., Aug. 22—A bullet wound in her breast, the body of Miss Dorothy Knox, 23, formerly of Vancouver, B. C., was found early today in a Veranda street house.

The discovery was made by Gabriel Porcello, a barber, who told police he had been living with Miss Knox for three years, since meeting her in her home city.

Porcello, who said he intended to marry the girl, was held for questioning although Medical Examiner William Holt said the facts pointed to suicide.

The barber told police that he and Miss Knox dined together last night, and afterward he declined to accompany her to a motion picture theater, suggesting to go alone.

Porcello said that on leaving her he joined Tony Casale, son of the owners of the house in which the couple made their home. Porcello said he did not return home until after midnight, when he found the girl's body, fully clothed, partly on the bed and partly on the floor. Nearby was a .32 calibre revolver, one shell discharged.

Members of the Casale family, who spent the evening at home, said they heard no shot.

POOR WRITING AIDS COP IN 'PEN' TRIAL

Counsel Brings Out That His Penmanship Wouldn't Induce Forgery

Providence, Aug. 22—It would be difficult for Patrolman Abraham Konopky, who is on trial in the district court, charged with forging pay checks of fellow-officers, to commit forgery because of his poor penmanship, according to an admission of Joseph Clark, handwriting expert for the prosecution, today.

"Isn't it true that Patrolman Konopky is a poor penman to try to commit forgery?" asked Atty. A. V. Pettino, counsel for the accused, in cross-examination.

"Yes, it would be difficult for him to forge," responded the handwriting expert, "but I have known of poorer penmen committing forgery."

"Isn't it true that you are trying to cover up your tracks by refusing to admit there is no similarity between Konopky's handwriting and the forged signatures?" asked counsel for the accused.

"No, I'm not trying to cover up my tracks," replied the witness.

Girls' Pound Complex Keeps Scales Busy

"O-o-oh! I've gained a half pound!"

The anguished cry fell on a sudden hush in the drugstore. Men and women at the soda-fountain lunch glanced up, startled. The woman smiled. Clerks smiled, too; the novelty of that startled outcry had long since worn off.

The girl on the scales blushed crimson, a blush that shamed her rouge. She stepped quickly down, and out to mingle with the Summer st. noonday throng.

The fountain clerk laughed between flips of a milk shake.

"Stay here long enough, keep your eye on those scales and nothing will surprise you. Diets and scales—an ounce this way or that—it's all the girls think about these days," he said.

Of course that isn't so. But their weight is one of their foremost complexes. The pound complex or weight consciousness, it is called.

Kasumigaura Air Station, Aug. 22—Our first accident of the trip round the world has made us all quite downhearted.

But when we realize that the fault was not that of our splendid officers and crew, we have all the more faith in the Graf Zeppelin—the accident merely delays us 24 hours.

All preparations previous to the departure had progressed according to schedule. The Graf started to move from the hangar at 4:10 a. m. (3:10 p. m. Wednesday E. D. T.) Two parallel tracks had been laid to either side of the Zeppelin, to which trolleys were attached, and to which, in turn, the Graf was fastened.

The ground crew was walking the Zeppelin out with its nose close to the ground, because there was only an 80-inch clearance at the top of the hangar. At the immediate entrance of the hangar, these two tracks lifted over the doorjamb for three inches.

When the trolleys were half over this bump, the one on the left dragged slightly, pulling the rear gondola to the ground. A frantic move was made to get the Graf clear—but it was unsuccessful. Wooden struts snapped, and the steel base on the right side of the gondola was punctured.

Capt. Flemming and Capt. Von Schiller were on the ground immediately, closely followed by Comdr. Eckener, who was rec-

Kasumigaura Air Field, Japan, Aug. 22—Our hope for arrival in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon has been given a jolt.

The Graf Zeppelin suffered minor injurics to its rear engine and rear gondola while being drawn out of the hangar at the flying field this morning. The damage is probably very slight, but Comdr. Eckener is a cautious commander and immediately announced that the flight would be postponed until repairs were made.

While there was great disappointment for the thousands of Japanese who scrambled all night to get to the field to witness the Graf's departure, there seem to be other millions who are glad to have another day to show us more good times.

Yasuhiro Hirobito and Wiegand

Yesterday was the "hottest day in years," and the overwhelming thusiasm of the Japanese for the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Eckener, his officers and crew and the passengers was expressed in entertainment without end which all but smothered the Zeppelin party.

AT ROYAL PALACE

It began with calls in the morning, a Japanese luncheon by the newspaper Asahi, where for once Dr. Eckener made a poor showing with chopsticks. Then came the tea by the Imperial Court by Command of Emperor Hirobito at his detached palace Hama.

We then enjoyed a garden party at the German Embassy with Ambassador and Mrs. Voretzsch and attended a farewell dinner given by President Kajiuro Runakoshi of the Mitsubish Company, Japan's second greatest industrial and financial institution.

To the amazement of the younger members of the party, the old "storm king" was still going strong at midnight, despite the most oppressive heat and a strenuous day in which he was besieged by endless requests for autographs. He almost got writer's cramp.

FUEL TAKEN ABOARD

Dr. Eckener's room was so filled with parcels that it was difficult for him to navigate in it. They contained gifts from the Emperor to the Commander and several officers from the ministry of communication. Special documents accompanied the order of merit conferred on the commander and officers by the Imperial Aeronautical Society.

While we were being entertained, the Zeppelin was being cared for to the finest points by the special Japanese naval force stationed at Kasumigaura Air Station. Fifty-thousand cubic feet of fuel were loaded aboard and tested for this great flight across the Pacific, which we will conquer the second ocean to even up the number of continents passed already on the Hearst-Zeppelin World Flight.

And there's wreck and ruin along the route

ENVOYS BATTLE TO SAVE WAR DEBT PARLEY

Three Main Objects in View; the Dawes Plan May Win Over Young Scheme

The Hague, Aug. 22 (AP)—The delegates to the reparations conference, still stubbornly trying to reach an agreement, today turned to private conversations after deciding there was no longer any use trying to settle their differences in committee or in groups.

Premier Jaspar of Belgium, at a meeting of the six powers today, intervened when he saw the discussion was making no progress whatever. He proposed that the delegates adjourn for the present, leaving the rest of the work of the conference to be done in private conversations.

These conversations, which will probably go on this afternoon and tomorrow, will have three principal objects:

Agreement of the other creditors with the British as to the distribution of annuities.

Agreement between the French, Belgians and Germans as to the date for final liberation of the Rhineland from military occupation.

In case the two others fail, how to break off the conference so that it can be resumed under conditions permitting hope of success.

During today's meeting, Premier Briand of France showed some optimism, saying: "This conference is not dead. We must do all we can to save it."

He was replying to a suggestion by Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany that if no agreement were reached, a sort of partial moratorium might be accorded Germany, which would permit her to pay under the Young plan instead of the Dawes plan after Sept. 1.

MOTHER AND SUITOR TO HANG

Viau in the Fullom prison for women.

Lefebvre is in a state bordering upon collapse. He has not eaten for five days and refused food at the Ottawa prison.

In contrast, the woman appears in good spirits, without fear of the final chapter to be written tomorrow in her love affairs.

She is a dark-haired French-Canadian housewife type, rather short in stature and plump, but seemingly without a fiery temperament.

For breakfast today she ate two eggs, toast and coffee.

Arthur Ellis, Canada's official hangman, arrived here today and will spring the scaffold at Hull tomorrow.

The man will be hanged first. His body will be cut down and a brief inquest held before Mrh. Viau is led forth from another part of the jail on the short walk to the trap.

HUSBAND MADE ILL

A matron from Fullom prison will accompany her, as will Fr. Verschelden, chaplain at Bordeaux jail, and Rev. Fr. Z'Amour, chaplain of the woman's prison.

The original plan of Viau occurred at his home at Montpelier, Que., some 50 miles from this city, on January 22. He had been ill for some time previous to that date from the effects of the poison, which he used at intervals by the illicit lovers.

Viau, a backwoodsman, was absent from home at the time, and the crown prosecutor at the trial produced evidence to show that his wife and Lefebvre had been planning for several months.

Efforts were made to have the sentence of death commuted in the case of the woman, defense counsel claiming that she was not aware of the enormity of the crime.

The minister of justice, Hon. Ernest Lepoint, himself a son of the Quebec backwoods, declared that morality in the rural communities of his province was as high as anywhere in the world and should remain so, and the victims be held examples of its breach.

The last hanging at the Hull jail was 9 years ago. It resulted in a demonstration quelled only after considerable difficulty by the police.

There is little sympathy in Canada for the pair that must hang tomorrow. No condemnations are expected at their deaths but the authorities are taking no chances.

The last woman to be hanged in Canada was Florence Lassandra, who died on the scaffold at Winnipeg in 1924 for murdering her husband, her motive being similar to that of Mrs. Viau.

U. S. GIRL REPRIEVED

Doris McDonald, a United States girl who was condemned to be hanged two years ago for participation in a "taxi murder," had her sentence commuted at the eleventh hour by the Canadian cabinet.

The cabinet met Tuesday to consider the case of Mrs. Viau and Lefebvre and announced that there was no reason to commute the sentences of death.

Although the signature of the governor-general was not to be affixed to the sentence until late today there was no precedent for hope that he would save the woman from hanging. No appeal from sentence in Canada ever has been made to the governor-general.

COSTE DELAYS U. S. FLIGHT

Le Bourget, France, Aug. 22 (AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, French aviation ace, today postponed probably until tomorrow a projected long-distance flight which, it was believed, would take him across the Atlantic in an attempt to reach New York.

The aviator's takeoff with Maurice Jacques Bellonte, his mechanic, had been set for dawn, but it was learned the plane's radio had not stood up under tests. Weather conditions, somewhat adverse today, were expected to be better tomorrow.

There still was some speculation today as to Coste's destination. Most of the aviator's friends accepted his story of a flight to overtake the Graf Zeppelin as camouflage to cover the intended westward transatlantic hop, which only one plane ever has negotiated.

The noted flier told friends yesterday, just before a final tuning up of his plane, that he would go eastward in an attempt to catch the Zeppelin. Later he strengthened this declaration by making a bet with a friend for 10 bottles of champagne that he would overtake the big ship before it reached Lakehurst. He proposed to accomplish this by making a nonstop flight to Vladivostok, then a hurried trip to Tokyo and a two-hop attempt to reach the United States by way of Hawaii.

extent. But the women and girls outnumber them more than two to one. Some of the fair sex, engaged in the 18-day or other diets, step on the scales two or three times daily, and are happy or disconsolate as the case may be.

The recorsing scales in the doorway of the Toledo Scales Co., 40 Broad st., show that 126,000 persons have weighed themselves there since June 1.

The company has 400 scales distributed about Greater Boston for recording the weight of humans. Three or four years ago it had only 100. In the subways there are 120. But wherever crowds congregate you'll find them—in drugstores, fruit stores, restaurants, banks, gymnasiums, beauty parlors, hotels.

BOY, 12, CHIDED FOR DROWNING, KILLS HIMSELF

Father Finds Body of Second Son in Pond Where First One Died

Springfield, Aug. 22—After six weeks of mental torture, Hubert McGovern, 12, of Roy st., is at rest, and his body will be buried beside that of his brother, Peter, seven, who was drowned July 9 in Hogan's pond and for whose death Hubert had been chided.

Hubert's body, fully clothed, and with eyeglasses on, was found floating in the same pond by his father four days after he disappeared. The child had committed suicide in the same waters that had claimed his little brother.

Before disappearing Sunday, Hubert's parents saw him kiss the picture of his little brother. He had loved Peter and was his constant companion. Peter was drowned while the brothers were poling a raft on the pond.

Hubert has been disconsolate. In addition to the blame placed upon him by his mother, he was also chided by playmates, according to police.

The police believe that ever since Peter's death Hubert had contemplated suicide, but could not get up courage to carry out his idea. But on Sunday night he did so and now he and Peter will rest side by side.

HUNT SEAS FOR SWISS FLIERS

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—With only the barest hope that the two young Swiss fliers, Oscar Kaesar and Kurt Luescher, survived their westward transatlantic flight attempt, crews of naval and merchant vessels today scanned the North Atlantic for trace of them.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, has ordered naval vessels to maintain a sharp watch for the Swiss airmen, and has requested merchant ships to do the same.

At Roosevelt Field aviators clung to a faint hope that the white monoplane Young Switzerland might yet appear on the eastern horizon, but the hope grew dimmer with each passing hour.

The youthful fliers were last seen flying westward over a village in the Azores on Monday afternoon. They should have reached American shores early Tuesday. The possibility that the aviators might have survived a forced descent was based on the rubber suits and rubber boat which they carried.

They have political ambition as well," he said. "They have sent two governors in Rhode Island, where they are the largest foreign group, and they now have a senator from that state, where they really control the political situation."

"The most problematical aspect of the situation," he said, "lies in the fact that French-Canadians are not easily assimilated, remain a separate entity, frown on intermarriage and cling to their own language, churches and schools.

"They are the best people of the problem are not many," he said. "French Canadians furnish our employers of unskilled labor with a cheap and docile labor supply. There is no danger of radicalism from the French-Canadian."

"Of the 278,678 immigrants who entered the United States last year, 64,440 came from Canada. The significance of this Canadian group is due not only to its numbers, but to its concentration in the border states and to its almost continual contact with the parent population in Canada.

The only thing that I will have left when various claims against the estate are settled," she said, "will be the house at Miami Beach, Fla., which is in my name. That house cost $75,000 to build.

"Some $200,000 that Tex invested in the dog track at Miami can be written off as a dead loss, due to the manipulations of certain people who were supposed to be my husband's friends.

"If I could collect five per cent of the money that was owed to Tex, I would never have to worry. The I. O. U.'s he left would fill a good sized scrapbook, but not one of them appears to be worth the paper it is written on."

London 'Reds' Burn Judge in Effigy

London, Aug. 22 (INS)—About 1000 Communists held a mass meeting in the shadow of the Tower of London today and burned in effigy Judge Barnhall, who presided at the hearing of cotton mill strikers at Gastonia, N. C.

The Communists adopted a resolution protesting against the arrest of Gastonia trade unionists on a "faked murder charge." The prisoners were accused of killing the chief of police during troubles at Gastonia.

spent the day abed and returned to the air base here at sunset.

Immense crowds remained all night and through today at the outskirts of the air field to witness the takeoff of the Graf. The accident had disappointed them, but at least half remained in their places with the true Oriental patience, trusting the promised thrills would be fulfilled in due course.

FIRST OF ITS KIND.

It was recalled that this was the first accident to the Zeppelin on a takeoff. On her first westward transatlantic crossing a gust of wind ripped some of the fabric from a rear fin and on the unsuccessful westward crossing attempt last May three of five crankshafts were broken. Both landings and take-offs heretofore have been without incident.

The accident here occurred as the airship was being walked out of the hangar shortly after 4 a. m. today (3 p. m. yesterday, Boston daylight saving time). It was explained that there was not 18 inches of headroom between the top of the dirigible and the roof of the hangar and just when the ship was about half way out she threatened to bump against the top of the doorway. The crew ceased her toward the ground. But she came down faster than expected and rear motor gondola hit hard upon the concrete flooring of the hangar. Two girders supporting the motor gondola were badly bent. Dr. Eckener immediately ordered the Zepp returned to the hangar and repairs were started immediately.

William B. Leeds, New York multimillionaire, exclaimed:

"Now, isn't that the dickens! Not a thing happens to us all the way over Russia, and we have an accident just as we are starting home! But, thank God, it wasn't the fault of the people who are flying the ship. We've got all the confidence in the world in them."

PIGEONS ON BOARD

Doju Spral, the only Japanese journalist aboard the Graf for this leg of the flight, is allowed 40 pounds of baggage. Although he insists he is not nervous, he said he had not relished the assignment until he saw the Zeppelin gliding steadily over Tokio on its arrival Monday. His assignment also includes entraining for New York at Los Angeles to "see the country." His carrier pigeons form a part of Spral's baggage. These will be released within the first half hour of flight for he fears the birds will be unable to get back to Tokio otherwise. He carries cylinders by which he will file his messages in English when over American cities.

The Graf itself has aboard three pigeons to carry the first dispatches written in the air to Tokio, whence they will be filed to London and New York. These pigeons are good for 20 hours sustained flight at about the same rate of speed as the Graf, and will bring the first news from aboard the Zeppelin since the dirigible's radio station is not permitted to work for the first two hours of the flight.

The food stored aboard the Graf occupied 100 containers, which will make refrigeration easier for the duration of the flight. The quantity of dry ice put aboard should last for about three days, after which unperishable foods will be used. One of the three trucks was filled with delectable drinks, running from champagne to beer and bottled mineral waters.

A large quantity of fresh vegetables also was stored to provide the principal meal of goulash and Japanese "sukiyaki," which is nothing else than the usual beefstew—a national Japanese dish.

When the Graf takes off, it will carry 10,980 pieces of mail consigned for delivery in the United States, Canada and Germany.

Ramsay McDonald to Visit U. S. in October

Washington, Aug. 22 (INS)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald now plans to visit the United States in mid-October, according to advices reaching government officials here.

The visit of the British Premier will not be dependant upon the state of the naval negotiations at the time, it was said, for he plans to come irrespective of whether an agreement has been reached.

eyed from loss of sleep. They conferred.

When the news of the crash reached the crowd around the field, they broke through the military police and marine cordon, making for the hangar over the 80-acre airfield. But they were checked before they reached the disabled giant of the air.

There was great anxiety and many of us wondered if the damage would endanger the success of the world flight. Among the Japanese, consternation revealed that such an accident should occur in Japan.

the hospital at Bridgewater State Farm, where Cullen has been under observation, that the prisoner is not insane, although probably feeble-minded.

The district attorney ordered Cullen returned to Plymouth county jail to await trial, which will probably take place during the October session of Superior court at Plymouth.

The body of Mrs. Cullen was found in a field at South Hingham with a .22 calibre rifle nearby. Cullen had disappeared but later turned up in a Florida hospital with a fractured skull, believed to have been received when he fell from a freight train.

He was arrested and brought back to Massachusetts, and on April 2 was committed to the State hospital for observation.

Fine 12 Storekeepers in Cambridge Drive

As the result of a campaign by the Cambridge Board of Health, 12 storekeepers appeared before Judge Edward A. Counihan in the East Cambridge District Court today on charges of maintaining their stores in an unclean and unsanitary condition. All were found guilty and fined $10.

Solomon Epstein appealed and was held in $100 bail for appearance in Superior Court. Joseph L. Johnson, an inspector of food and provisions, told the court he found the soda fountain and utensils in Epstein's store, Massachusetts ave., unclean.

Bear and Apes Among Hub Man's Trophies

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (INS)—Bringing 4000 animals and birds bagged in the Orient by the Roosevelt expedition, Harold J. Coolidge, Jr., Boston cousin of Calvin Coolidge, was here today on his way to Chicago, Washington and New York.

Most of his charges were stuffed and preserved specimens for American museums. But one much alive companion was "Bozo," a rare Malayan bear cub whose antics kept passengers on the liner President Jefferson amused on the Pacific trip. Bozo is destined for the National Zoo in Washington.

Other living specimens included a family of gibbons, long-armed apes from Indo-China. Coolidge brought news that the Roosevelts planned to leave the Orient for the United States in a few weeks.

ZEPPELIN'S PAUSE DISAPPOINTS 100,000 JAPANESE, SAYS WILKINS

REGRET MISHAP OCCURRED ON THEIR LAND

It Is the Only Accident So Far on Record Round the World Tour

Kasumigaura Air Station, Japan, Aug. 22—As the old saying goes accidents will happen in the best regulated families, so it was this morning when, shortly before 6 o'clock, 450 Japanese sailors were pulling the Graf Zeppelin out of the hangar for its start to Tokio, the rear gondola struck the ground.

Sir Hubert Wilkins

While the damage to the gondola and the rear engine was not thought serious, it was promptly decided by Dr. Eckener that the start should be delayed until Friday morning. (Tokio time.)

The accident and the consequent delay caused great disappointment to 100,000 Japanese, who had gathered at and near the flying field to see the great airship take off. At Ueno Station, Tokio, at midnight, there were literally thousands waiting to board the trains running to Kasumigaura Field.

On the way from Tokio, the first lap was by train, punctually in keeping with the Zeppelin's usual departures. Everything ran smoothly under the efficient management of the Japanese, who are accustomed to do everything in a business-like manner.

FETED OFTEN

We had been kept going at almost the Graf's speed by official gatherings, business, luncheons theater parties, teas and dinners, served by quaint Japanese girls who take their entertaining seriously. We had been surfeited with food, and at many meals were able to eat only for politeness' sake.

We gladly watched weird performances accompanied by weirder music and the best actresses in Tokio. Until the final minute, almost, Dr. Eckener and his staff were dined, toasted, lauded and decorated by high officials, important business men, diplomats, court officials and military and navy officers. Everyone was generous in praise and admiration; they realize that the time has not yet come when Japan can engage in an airship program.

"No other nation need fear Japan will ever engage in a militaristic program of airship building," a high military official said at the function given at the Imperial Palace.

"Japan, with her two lighter than air machines will naturally keep them for training men who may help us or our friends in time of trouble. But it would be foolish for any power to suspect us of engaging in an airship program.

"Japan, because of its surrounding meteorological conditions, is perhaps least suited of any country for such operations."

The storm which Dr. Eckener skilfully used last night was a practical demonstration of what might be expected about this island country where the various oceans meet.

GREAT THRONG

As we travelled to the hangar, the sky was clear and the moon shining brightly; the temperature was falling rapidly and the ground haze such as we had when leaving Friedrichshafen.

Such enthusiasm on a midnight excursion train was something never heard of in Japan before.

On the last train that left there was one first-class coach which was almost wholly occupied by Zeppelin passengers and newspaper people. In that coach were Karl Von Wiegand, Lady Hay, Robert Hartman, cameraman, and myself, besides the German and Japanese writers who will make the trip.

I could not help being interested in the crowds. The third class coaches were jammed like a Mississippi river moonlight excursion. It seemed like everybody in Tokio and Yokohama wanted to get out to the flying field right away to see the Zeppelin leave for America.

We finally arrived at the field and our passengers climbed aboard. The "old timers," who have made many journeys in the airship, taking the lead like they were walking up the steps of a railway coach —in fact there was not half the excitement that there was in getting out of Tokio.

And then came the disappointment. The announcement of 24 hours delay was quickly made and the business of transporting that huge throng back to Tokio began. Park row, New York, and City Hall vicinity when the evening rush hour crowds turn loose, had nothing on this jam.

The repairs will be quickly made and the start will be made Friday morning, if all goes well. That will be Thursday afternoon at about a corresponding hour in New York.

Air temperatures in Tokio are far higher than those at Friedrichshafen, but fortunately the hangar is situated on the shores of a great lake not high above the sea level and near the sea. It will, therefore, be necessary to lift the ship only a few hundred feet before coming over the sea, where the air will be steady, possibly giving an upward lift in the early morning hours. The extreme sultry conditions in Tokio the last few days may promise cooler conditions shortly.

Flee as Forest Fire Advances on Town

Columbia Falls, Mont., Aug. 22 (AP)—Every available man of the Great Northern Railway and the United States forestry service were fighting today to save the town of Belton, on the border of Glacier National Park, from being destroyed by a forest fire.

Park administration buildings were in the path of the flames.

Tank cars of the Great Northern were pressed into service to carry 40,000 gallons of water from Coram to supplement the water supply.

Residents of the town, except those who remained to fight the flames, were taken from the fire zone on special trains.

PANTAGES WILL DENY ATTACK

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP)—Alexander Pantages, 54, multi-millionaire theater magnate, was summoned to appear in superior court today and enter his plea to charges of attacking Eunice Pringle, 17, dancer, in his private offices.

Defense attorneys indicated the theater magnate would plead not guilty. They said they would ask a "reasonable time" to prepare their case.

Buron Fitts, district attorney, announced the state would ask that the trial be set for September 17. Two other cases have priority, one of which is the second degree murder charge against Mrs. Pantages.

The theater magnate's wife must go to trial September 3 for the death of Joe Rokumoto, who was killed when his motor car and an automobile driven by Mrs. Pantages collided. Witnesses at her preliminary hearing testified she was driving while intoxicated.

Melrose Official Injured in Crash

Word has been received from St. Stephen, N. B., that M. J. Connolly, head of the waste paper collection department of the municipal sanitary division of Melrose, who was in an automobile accident near St. Stephen, is injured and in the hospital there. He is said to be improving.

TROOPS GUARD DERBY FLIERS

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 22 (INS)—After nearly a full day's delay on account of electrical storms ahead on their route, 17 women participants in the Santa Monica-Cleveland air derby soared from El Paso today on the fifth leg of a long Texas stretch with pauses at the control points of Pecos, Midland and Abilene.

Mrs. Louis McPhetridge Thagen of Pittsburgh retained first place in elapsed time for heavy planes on arrival here. Miss Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, Tenn., led the light ship class.

Cavalrymen from Fort Bliss patrolled the municipal airport throughout the night while officials of the derby board that guards be provided for the planes at all control points still to be visited.

The request was inspired by charges of sabotage voiced by several of the contestants after Pilot Marvel Crosson of San Diego plunged to her death in her plane on the desert in Arizona.

Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic, who headed the racers into El Paso, had the lead-off position for today's start.

Completing the fourth lap from Douglas, Ariz., 16 of the aviatrixes landed in El Paso within a period of 44 minutes. The 17th, Thea Rasche, German flier, who was forced down at Holtville, Cal., arrived here nearly four hours later.

Methuen Boy Drowns With Mother Nearby

Methuen, Aug. 22—Within view of his mother, who was unable to aid him, eight-year-old Carl Gobelein, Jr., of Strathmore rd., was drowned when he stepped into a deep hole while bathing at Mill pond.

Henry Murray, a Lawrence policeman, who was fishing nearby, and Louis Green, 23, of Jay ter., this town, dived and recovered the body a few minutes after the boy sank.

Dr. E. J. Donohue of Lawrence and Dr. Wheatley of Lowell, worked vainly over the boy for nearly three hours.

Columbus, O., Aug. 22—Convict No. 60,656, Dr. James Howard Snook, slept soundly during his first night in "death row," his guard said.

The debonair former college professor, who slew his "love-nest" sweetheart, Miss Theora Hix, attractive co-ed at the Ohio State University, and who is sentenced to "burn" Nov. 28, the day after Thanksgiving, is his usual calm self, apparently unimpressed and unshaken by his fate.

Boy, 15, on Bicycle Killed by Hit-Run

Leominster, Aug. 22—Robert MacMillan, 15, was fatally injured when he was run down by an automobile while bicycling here. Police said the driver of the automobile went away without making himself known. A search was started for him. The boy died at the Leominster Hospital.

Note Explains Why Girl Took Poison

Chester, Vt., Aug. 22 (AP)—An unidentified girl, whose body was found in a field on the farm of Robert Fields, two and a half miles from here, Tuesday, was a suicide by poison, F. W. Kent of the State laboratory decided today.

Her purse contained 38 cents and a note dated June 19, New York city, which read:

"I am sick of life and I am going where I will be happy."

GROSS LEADING LEGION FIGHT ON HAVERTY

Hot Contests Due in Election at Westfield Convention; Resolutions Are Drawn

Westfield, Aug. 22—War clouds were gathering rapidly today as the State convention of the American Legion opened here, with Dennis H. Haverty, State adjutant for five years, apparently the storm center.

Seventy-five per cent of the delegate strength is expected to be present when Dr. William H. Griffin of South Boston, department commander, opens the convention in Ely Mathew community building on Elm st.

The first political bombshell broke when the constitutional amendments committee, under Michael Mulkern of Dorchester, was given a series of proposed amendments which, if accepted, and if Haverty is elected again, would eliminate him as a powerful factor in legion affairs, and at the same time take away his salary of $75 a week.

These amendments were proposed by Edmund W. Gross, commander of the Suffolk County council of the legion, past commander of the All Dorchester Post, who will contest with Haverty for the post of State adjutant. It is said that several county organizations have instructed their delegates to vote against these amendments, and there was a feeling among Haverty adherents that they will be "killed in committee."

The battle for department adjutant is considered by many to be far more important than for department commander, for which there are three candidates.

Under the scheme presented by Comdr. Gross, no member of the finance committee would be a salaried officer of the department. The adjutant is the only salaried officer, and this would affect him only. Another amendment would permit the department commander, subject to confirmation by the executive committee, to appoint an office manager, who would take over the work of the adjutant.

RAPS SENATORS AT OUTING OF G.O.P.

Selfish local interest among United States Senators has caused the noticeable lack of party unity in the upper house of Congress, according to a statement made by Congressman Charles L. Underhill of Somerville, addressing 5000 members and friends of the Republican city committee of Somerville at their annual outing held at Shore Gardens, Nantasket.

"Every Senator appears for himself and the devil take the hindermost," said Underhill in his address.

"The Republican party, as a party, is not the least bit afraid of success. Party loyalty is the paramount issue in the United States today, but it is being seriously threatened by Senators who are involved mainly in selfish local interests."

Speaking directly to the candidates the mayor of Somerville, all present at the outing, he urged them to state their case without villifying or throwing mud at each other. Threats to bolt the party because of failure at the polls would never bring about party loyalty.

"I have never mentioned the name of an opponent in any political campaign, and I urge you to follow the example of an old-timer in the game," he said in closing.

Running all through the speeches of the evening was the insistence on party loyalty. There are six candidates for mayor in Somerville, and party primaries will be held on October 15. With so many candidates in the field, the party is apprehensive lest the city be split into factions, and strong efforts are being made to keep peace and unity.

The Curious Quizzer

Pedestrians on Summer St. Answer His Question and Pose for Picture

THE QUESTION

Do working girls garbed in overalls meet with your approval?

WILLIAM G. LAGRO, Hancock st., Malden—In these days when a woman can walk across the Common in her pajamas, and hardly attract attention, overalls on working girls should be considered proper. Girls appear in public places wearing men's sunback bathing suits, and they offend nobody. If they put on overalls when working in factories or in other places where they are employed, the girls would be more comfortable and should be credited with being sensible.

MISS VIOLA A. PETERSON, Cliff rd., Milton—The modern woman carries her ideas too far when she tries to dress as the men do. Let the men stick to their styles in clothing, and let the women dress in the clothes meant for them. A girl in a factory or in a business office is there to work. She is not supposed to appear in men's clothing. There are very few business people who would approve of a girl who thought of nothing except to imitate the men working beside them. A girl's beauty can never be improved by her wearing men's overalls.

HARLEY P. LEIGHTON, Watkins st., Wollaston—Overalls for working girls, if of light material and tailormade, would look very pretty. In factories, especially, there could be no clothing more suitable. Overalls would serve not only as a protection for the flimsy dresses worn by the girls, but would also be economical and comfortable to the wearer. Girls seem to be able to do the same work done by men and they should be allowed to wear the same kind of clothing the men wear when doing it.

MRS. GERTRUDE M. CULVER, Hooper st., Islington—The girl who wears overalls at work is not suitably dressed. She should wear the clothing made for women and not make herself ridiculous by wearing sloppy overalls. Our champion girl tennis players obtain freedom enough when playing in regulation women's skirts. If they are comfortable when playing that strenuous game, I think working girls should not try to dress as men. Pants are all right for girls when hiking or when riding horseback.

BANK TO FIGHT EXCISE TAX IN COURT

The Atlantic National Bank of Boston objects to the mathematics used by Henry F. Long, as tax commissioner and commissioner of corporations, in computing its excise tax for the year 1929.

Counsel for the bank before Judge Field in the Supreme Judicial Court pointed out what he claimed were errors. The action of the bank seeking a review of the board of appeals in upholding the ruling and figures of Mr. Long, will be decided by the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court. Judge Field reserved the issues raised for the full court.

It was also claimed by the bank that the Commonwealth has no power to tax national banks, excepting in accordance with an act of Congress. Counsel admitted there were no cases dealing with the questions of law involved.

MORE CHARGES IN MURRAY CASE FADE

Although no member of the court martial would discuss the matter, it is unlikely that recommendations for further action will be taken in the case of Capt. Samuel E. Murray.

Capt. Murray was tried for assault against three privates and drunkenness. The official record of the proceedings against the accused is expected to be given Adjt.-Gen. Stevens within three days.

There were predictions that charges of perjury would be preferred against some of the witnesses, in view of the highly contradictory character of some of the testimony, and all who ventured to prophecy qualified their remarks by saying that there could be no action until the governor has approved or disapproved the findings. The procedure after the findings are submitted, it was learned, will be to refer them to Lieut.-Col. Ralph M. Smith, State judge-advocate, who will examine them and return them to the adjutant general with such comment as he may care to make.

The findings will then be forwarded to the governor for review.

YOUR ZEPPELIN ESTIMATE MAY WIN AWARD

Ever since the Graf Zeppelin left Lakehurst, N. J., on August 8, the Boston Evening American has been giving its readers exclusive news stories; special articles about the trip by a corps of trained writers and exclusive news pictures of the ship and those aboard.

The readers of the Boston Evening American also have been given an opportunity to turn the globe-circling journey of the Graf Zeppelin into a real cash profit by estimating the actual flying time of the Zepp on the trip and preparing a charted map of the world-course which the Zeppelin travels.

Today another section of this map which you are to chart appears in the Boston Evening American. The last two sections of the map will appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

If you have been a daily reader of the Boston Evening American it will be easy for you to chart your map and compile your estimate. Those who have not been following the flight of the Graf Zeppelin daily in the Boston Evening American should consult the large map which has been erected on Sullivan's parking space, in Stuart st., near Tremont st.

Follow the Graf Zeppelin's progress from Tokio to Los Angeles by reading the Boston Evening American every day and by visiting this map. There is a representative of the Boston Evening American on duty daily at the map to answer your questions.

WORLD FLIGHT TEST RULES

1—Daily and Sunday until August 25, the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser will print a map of the world in strip form, one or more strips appearing daily. An invitation is extended to readers of either paper to make a complete map from the published strips; to chart the course of the Graf Zeppelin on the completed maps—and to estimate the total flying time of the Graf in making the flight.

2—The Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser will pay $200 to cash awards to the readers who send in the most nearly correct estimate of the actual flying time of the Graf Zeppelin on the Hearst-Zeppelin Around the World Flight, accompanied by the neatest completed map composed of map strips published in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

3—The cash awards are:

First Award	$100
Second Award	50
Third Award	25
Fourth Award	15
Fifth Award	10
Grand Total of Awards	$200

4—This offer is open to every one, men, women, boys and girls, with the exception of employes of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families. It costs you nothing—just a test of your skill and knowledge.

5—Estimates must be submitted, with complete maps. DO NOT send in each separately. Keep all map strips until you have the complete set of 21 strips. Be sure to include the strips which appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. After you have completed your map, send it, together with your estimate of the Graf Zeppelin flying time on the Hearst-Zeppelin Around the World Flight, to World Flight Editor, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass. All entries must be in by midnight, Tuesday, August 27.

6—Each entry must be sent by first class mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Each entry must give your name and complete address. Readers may submit as many estimates as they wish, but each estimate must be accompanied by a complete map. No contestant will be entitled to more than one award. Neatness and skill in arranging the map will count in making the awards.

7—It is not necessary to buy the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. You may copy or trace the map strips and send them in.

8—The judges will be appointed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their decision will be final.

9—The right to amend or modify these rules from time to time as occasion may require is reserved by the publisher.

Postoffice Employe at Portland Drowns

Portland, Aug. 22—Edward Dennison, 39, of Emerson st., chief of records at the Portland postoffice garage, was drowned in Bonny Eagle Lake, a resort 18 miles from here.

Dennison, a capable swimmer, dove from a raft, located some distance from the beach, and landed head first onto a rock. Divers located the body a short distance from the rock.

The victim is survived by his widow and three children.

2 Killed as Truck Plunges Into River

Peterboro, N. H., Aug. 22—Two persons were instantly killed when a light truck in which they were riding plunged through the guard rail of a bridge about two miles north of here and fell 20 feet into the Contoocook river.

The dead are: Frank Jeannette, 64, life-long resident of Peterboro and driver of the truck, and a woman thought to be Mrs. Amy Bennett of Providence, R. I.

Lives 4 Years After Crash Breaks Neck

Orange, Ct., Aug. 22—Four years after he was helplessly crippled in an automobile accident, Watson Stiles Woodruff, Jr., junior member of the firm of S. H. Woodruff & Son, died at his home here in his 28th year.

Woodruff, a graduate of Yale and Cambridge (Eng.) Universities, suffered a broken neck when his roadster was in collision with a horse-drawn carriage at Easthampton Mass., in December, 1925.

Unable to do heavy work, he had devoted his time to supervising experiments with seeds and plants in the gardens of the company, which deals in farm merchandise.

Woodruff, senior, is president of the West Haven Bank & Trust Co.

Lynn Shows Cut in 1929 Tax Rate

Lynn's tax rate for 1929 is $28.20, a cut of 20 cents from the 1928 rate, and a gross cut of $7.80 per thousand of valuation in the four years that Ralph S. Bauer has been mayor. The rate in 1925, the year before Bauer became mayor, was $35.00, the peak of Lynn tax rates.

The actual valuation over all this year is $137,626,705, as against $137,233,600 last year. The real estate this year goes up to $121,031,929 from $117,609,285 in 1928.

Argentina Urges 'Orderly Marketing'

Washington, Aug. 22—A communication urging that the United States center its attention on "orderly marketing" of agricultural products instead of "declaring an economical war by your tariff scheme" was received by the Senate finance committee from the Association Nacional De Agricultura of Argentina.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Cohasset Horse Show Festivities Will Start Tonight

THE COHASSET HORSE SHOW is being ushered in with much gaiety by the hospitable group that looks forward to this event all summer. Festivities begin this evening when the Misses Mary and Frances McElwain entertain with a dinner dance for 100 young friends at The Breakwater, home of their parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain. Both girls are to ride in the show on Friday when it opens at Deer Hill, the Cohasset estate of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft. Among the other attractive young horsewomen who will compete for the several prizes and trophies will be Miss Jane Bancroft, Miss Betty Bird, Miss Alison Kimpton, Miss Virginia Tolman, Miss Anna C. Danforth, Miss Patricia Bird and Miss Lillian Davidson. Mrs. William C. Cox (Jessie Bancroft), Mrs. William B. Cagnebin and Mrs. George G. Crocker have some prize winning entries this year.

THE FASHION FETE AND tea to be held at Pinehurst, Pride's Crossing, on next Thursday is uppermost in the thoughts of many of the young matrons and debutantes set on the North Shore. Mrs. Robert S. Bradley is to be the hostess for this affair, which is in aid of the North Shore Babies' Hospital, pet philanthropy of society for many seasons past. Mrs. Frank Seabury of Beverly Farms is in charge of the ticket sale and a famous New York designer is directing the revue. Officers of the institution, including Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Mrs. Charles F. Ropes, Josiah Gifford and Mrs. Edward F. MacNichol, are assisting in the preparations for the event. Many distinguished names make up the roster of the board of managers for this hospital, which is always open to children of the North Shore district.

MRS. WALWORTH PIERCE has entered her 8 boat, The Roamer, in the yacht race to be held tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Beverly Hospital. Mrs. Pierce is an excellent "sailor" and enjoys racing her craft. Mrs. George Patton of Manchester is another feminine entrant, also Miss Elizabeth Hovey of Marblehead Neck and Miss Anne Clark of Nahant. Caleb Loring, in charge of the races, assisted by Robert Amory, William P. Aldrich, Herbert M. Sears, B. Devereaux Barker, J. B. Gentry and Frank C. Paine. Bar Harbor is sending the largest boats entered, those of the George Lees and A. W. Pinleys. A fashionable gallery will assemble for the start of the race at 2 o'clock off the Marblehead Light. Charles Francis Adams is among the many sponsors of the race.

Gloucester Society of Artists Hold Ball Tonight

large contingent of society in beautiful costumes. The Hawthorne Inn Casino is to be the scene of this colorful dance. Prizes are to be awarded for the best costumes by prominent Gloucester residents, acting as judges. Miss Katharine Lane of The Chimneys, Manchester, is among those interested in the dance.

MRS. SAMUEL STEVENS and Miss Louise Fessenden are in charge of the annual field day for junior members of the Beach Club, Magnolia, tomorrow afternoon. This active couple constantly plan new activities to keep the younger members interested and happy. Older members of the club find it an ideal place for informal luncheon and tea parties, such as Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., gave yesterday, when 25 friends were her guests at a beach party. Mrs. L. W. Richardson will give a luncheon for seven guests there tomorrow.

JUDAISM FACES PROBLEM, SAYS DR. HAYDON

Hyannis, Aug. 22 (AP)—Judaism today faces a great problem in maintaining itself because there is no orthodoxy of creed, Dr. A. Eustace Haydon, professor of comparative religions at the University of Chicago, told the Institute of World Unity today.

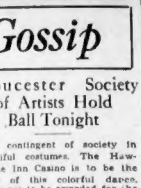
"The ghetto walls," Dr. Haydon declared, "are now thrown down. There is neither physical nor cultural separation between the Jews and their fellow-citizens. This has created the distinctive problem of Judaism in our age: how to maintain Judaism.

"It is especially difficult because in Judaism there is no orthodoxy of creed, but an orthodoxy in behavior, and it is in the social and individual behavior patterns that modernism makes its most powerful impact. The Jew today must live in two civilizations at the same time."

The speaker said reform Judaism had thrown overboard all the weight of the ancient law code, "come to terms with modern thought," and becoma very much like "another denominational group of Christians.

"In Palestine Jewish culture and civilization recognizes its final chance of survival."

Auction Bridge



By WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

THE BUSINESS PASS
The Bidding

Auction: South (Dealer) pass; West, pass; North, one No Trump; East, double. South, pass; West, pass; North, redouble; East, pass. South, two Spades; West, pass; North, pass; East, two No Trumps; all pass.

Contract: East's bid of two No Trumps would be reached in the same manner as at Auction. West should then bid three No Trumps, concluding the bidding.

Salient Points of Bidding

While East unquestionably held the high-card values to justify his informatory double, still his double was also a defensive measure. With East's type of hand, it is usually better to double in order to get some indication from partner as to the best suit open, or else drive the opponents to a suit bid at which the game might be more easily defended. West's pass of East's informatory double automatically changed this double into a business double. It is for this reason that a pass in this situation is termed a business pass. A business pass is made when the high-card values held warrant the assumption that the bid informatorily doubled, should be defeated, assuming the double to be sound.

North, following West's business pass, sees clearly that he is in between two strong hands. To extricate himself from this precarious position, he redoubles, thus asking his partner to rescue him with his best suit, feeling sure that the impending loss would be minimized by playing the hand at a suit bid instead of at No Trump. His redouble was clearly informatory because, if reasonably sure of making his contract, all he needed to do was to pass, which would have closed the bidding.

East bids two No Trumps, following South's Spade bid and the two succeeding passes, believing that this procedure would result in greater gain than a problematical business double of two Spades.

The Play

South opens the 2 of Spades and North plays the Queen instead of the Ace, expecting to drive the King unquestionably held by East. East's play of the King would enable North later to put South in. East, however, reading South as holding a worthless hand, places the Ace with North and refuses to play the King, thus blocking North's attempted coup. North leads the Ace of Spades followed by the 4, which East wins. East then establishes Clubs, losing the first Club trick to North's King. North leads a low Heart, which West wins. After making the established Clubs, the Diamond finesse is taken and Declarer loses but one more trick—the Ace of Hearts—and makes game on the hand.

WOULD DETOUR FULLER TO EUROPE

That a diplomatic appointment can be had by Alvan T. Fuller if he will remain out of the race for United States senator next year was generally accepted today by political wiseacres following a recent visit to the Fuller summer home at North Hampton, N. H., by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire.

Senator Moses is chairman of the committee charged with the responsibility of electing Republican United States senators next year, and Washington reports were to the effect that he had conferred with President Hoover regarding the situation in Massachusetts and elsewhere, saying that Fuller is sure to run if Gillett seeks renomination and may do so anyway.

But it was learned from reliable sources that Senator Moses, in his conference with the former Massachusetts Governor recently, made it pretty clear that he and other Republicans in this section of the county are ready to "go through" with Fuller for appointment to Madrid, Berlin or any other European embassy in which there may be a vacancy, provided Fuller desired such recognition.

When reports that Moses had given him broad intimations along that line were put up to the former Governor he replied that he had nothing to say. He admitted that Senator Moses had called upon him, but declined to divulge what had transpired at the visit.

It has been known for some time that President Hoover is willing to make Fuller ambassador to Spain or Germany, but no definite offer of a place has been made.

In common with Republican leaders in the state, despite the assertion of Louis K. Liggett that they "have the Democrats on the run," the possibility of Democratic success in the Senate campaign next year is a nightmare to Moses.

State Republican leaders admit that if Fuller should be party candidate for the Senate they would win the election with comparative ease. But the trouble is that most of these same leaders would prefer defeat by a Democrat to victory with Fuller.

It is his own knowledge that this is the attitude of the Republican "bosses" generally which has contributed, more than any other factor, to the Fuller declarations that he may be a candidate for the Senate. He is also sharply after the scalp of Senator Gillett and has made it clear to personal friends that if there is no other way to get rid of Gillett he will surely be a candidate.

There is a strong feeling that the refusal of Louis K. Liggett to make any reply to Fuller's characterization of him as a "Jonah" who should be "thrown overboard" may have been a part of the program of Republican leaders generally to placate Fuller and get him out of the way. Any one who knows Liggett knows that he is not of the type who enjoys being called names without hitting back.

Charge Woman Beat Brother to Death

Walpole, Aug. 22—Mary Dugan, 60, was arraigned in district court on a charge of slaying her brother, Charles, 65, in Milford. She was held in $20,000 bail for a continued hearing, September 10. In default of bail she was remanded to the Dedham County Jail.

Dugan was taken to the Milford Hospital from the home occupied by him and his sister in Franklin. He was badly beaten about the head and died within a few hours.

Potatoes Shiver? He Doubts It

Editor Boston American:

I read in the Boston American what Sir W. Beach Thomas has been saying about cruelty in nature. If his principles are true, there is nothing that is not sensitive to pain in the wide world.

What interested me most was this: "Prick a potato with a pin and you can detect a perfectly real protest against the injury by means of a delicate electric machine. The potato shivers and sets about repairing the wound."

Max Henry Newman on Gas Rates

Editor Boston American:

The Boston Consolidated Gas Co. should not be permitted to charge poor people not using a large amount of gas for gas they do not use. Such is out of proportion to an equal price to all consumers alike.

Why the benefit to the large consumer, with a loss and higher rates to the small consumer? Poor people use gas only in proportion to what they can afford to use. They should not be taxed for what they do not use.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

Praises Pajama Style for Comfort

Editor Boston American:

Now that we have the Pajama Girl in Boston, what of it? Why not? There's nothing unseemly in her appearance. Of course, a cold snap will raise havoc with this style.

Some old women, dear souls, will be saying; "this is perfectly dreadful. What are we coming to?" I'd say we were coming to our senses in dressing. We wear too many clothes, anyway. Let us get down to wearing few and have many on hand to wear when we want them.

SARAH H.

Thrilled by Stories of Graf Zeppelin

Editor Boston American:

I just think that your stories of the Zepp's trip are just wonderful.

A number of girl friends of mine are just crazy over flying and we read every word about the Zepp. Just think of flying over Siberia and having natives falling down and worshipping the bird.

Of course, they did not know what it was, but they will some day. Zepps will be plentiful over the ocean some 50 years hence.

What Has Become of Ford's Milk Machine

Editor Boston American:

Henry Ford proposed some time ago to make good milk by a machine. I have followed this man's ingenuity for a long time, and I am a great admirer of his ability, but I have not found out what has become of his milk machine. Do any of your readers know? ARTHUR T.

Pittsfield.

Objects to Special Parking Priveleges

Editor Boston American:

Why is it that the traffic commissioner of Boston permits the special privilege of painting the curb yellow, so as to keep autos and other vehicles from in front of certain places? Then special purpose used the marked-off space is a special place for parking the autos.

Too many enjoy such privileges without sufficient reason.

If this is allowed then I believe we all have the right to such privileges.

The red painted curb serves a necessary purpose, but the special privilege of the yellow painted curb in too many instances is not necessary.

With some it is but a matter of selfishness. Let us not barter the right to our public highways to those whose motives are for self alone.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN

Scoffs at Poverty as Means of Success

Editor Boston American:

In your paper of Aug. 19, I find a letter in which the writer commended poverty as a means to success.

If you want to know whether poverty is best for children just note the number of poor children who die as compared to the number of those of well-to-do families.

Poverty is not to be recommended from any point of view, nor is it according to natural law. Just note the abundant supply of leaves on the trees, note the joy with which they dance in the breeze, or bend to catch the rain. Then note the lavish coloring of the flowers, their beautiful shadings. Do you for a moment think that a power that has given all that beauty to nature would do so much less for a larger form of life? Get the idea that you are of as much value as the trees and flowers at least. The best is not too good for you. You think it, believe it and you will be a whole lot happier, to say nothing of other benefits that will follow.

2 HUB BROKERS HELD IN MAINE

Two Boston brokers, J. A. Perault, 55, and Samuel H. Cohen, 33, face court in Portland, Me., today on a warrant issued by Hal G. Hoyt, securities examiner of Maine, charging them with dealing in securities without a license.

When they were arrested in the Maine city, Portland police intimated that more serious charges may possibly be preferred against the brokers after investigation of their alleged sale of stock believed to be of little or no value.

N. E. TAKES LEAD IN AIRCRAFT BUILDING

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

These six New England States, long spoken as the last section of the United States to accept aviation, is perking up in such a way that soon the remainder of the country will be sitting up and taking notice of us. This statement is borne out in a dispatch received from the New England Council.

The total aviation investment in the past month is reported as well over $3,000,000. For instance, the Pratt and Whitney Co., has started work on a $2,000,000 factory and field in East Hartford, Ct. This is just one of the five new companies that flung the gauntlet in the faces of the rest of the country in the line of aircraft production.

Eastern Aircraft Corp., of Pawtucket, is building the famous all-metal Messerschmidt planes, designed by the Barvarian Aircraft Corp., of Germany. The planes will be built in the plant of the Pressed Metal Co. Ray C. Van Arsdale, president Boston flier, is one of the company's executives.

The Granville Aircraft Corp. is another. Z. D. Granville used to operate an aircraft repair depot at the Boston Airport. Granville is now producing the product of six months' engineering in his "Gee Bee," and he is the second aircraft manufacturer in the New England States. Granville is backed by the Tait brothers, of Springfield. His first production ship is off the line and is having various tests performed on it.

Airplanes and seaplanes are to be built by the Olesen Aircraft Corp., of Bridgeport, Conn., of which Svend Olesen is president. This chap is also designer of the planes he hopes to build. He has the backing, and he also has the factory site. The factory will occupy the former site of the Lake Submarine Co., in Bridgeport.

The third company to begin operation within the month is the Viking Flying Boat Co., which will build the Schreck plane, at New Haven, Conn. The Viking Co. has a flying boat that will perform when all others have failed. It is to start operations with 180 workmen. The plane, as may be judged by its name, is of French design. The company will specialize in flying boats, and will be the only company of its kind in the New England States.

The Chance Vought Corp., now established at Long Island City, N. Y., will move to its new $1,000,000 plant adjoining the new flying field of the Pratt and Whitney Company at East Hartford. It is estimated that 400 men will be employed in the new factory.

Both the Chance Vought and the Pratt and Whitney Company are subsidiaries of the United Aircraft and Transport Corp., of Hartford.

It is reported that this same outfit, the United Aircraft Corp., also owns the Whitelsey Avian Corp., of Bridgeport, Conn., and also the Standard Propellor Co.

The chances of a whale of an air meet being put on at Whitefield, N. H., are bright, according to the Whiter's survey of the various commercial airplanes not as yet bought out by Curtiss, in New England. Harry Finnell, general manager of the meet, wanted at least fifteen commercial planes up at the base of Mt. Washington. We know every independent pilot in New England who can be present Friday will be there.

COST OF LIVING UP 1 PER CENT

An increase of one per cent in the cost of living is noted by the commission on the necessaries of life in July over the previous month of June.

The increase, the commission reports, is due to higher prices for food, and light. These increases over-balanced lower prices in the clothing part of the budget.

Based on average retail prices in 1913, the pre-war year, the same elements which could then be bought for $100, today cost $161.10. In July 1920, the same elements cost $202.60, while a year ago in July, the cost was $160.50.

SAY SIX WERE KIDNAPED BY DICE GANG

Joseph Sherman of Dorchester, who was kidnapped in Revere and imprisoned in a Weymouth house, was one of six Boston men who have been subjected to similar treatment within recent weeks, according to a hint given investigating authorities.

That a syndicate of kidnappers has preyed upon winners at a dice game, is a well developed theory of the police.

Sherman denied having been present at the gambling place in question.

Boston police visited John J. "Cocky" Roach, Sherman's "guard" at the Weymouth police station and interviewed him briefly. Roach a short time later, was arraigned before Judge Avery in the Quincy District Court charged with assault with the intent to rob and larceny, and was held for grand jury action in bonds of $10,000.

Roach claims to be a mere underling in the plot, saying that on a lay-off from his work at the Somerville Ford plant he was hired to guard Sherman, and had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

His mother and sister were present in Quincy Court when he was arraigned and pleaded with him, for his own sake, to divulge details to the police. Roach, police say, stubbornly refused to give ear to their pleas.

98 out of 100 Women Report Benefit.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the written endorsement of half a million women.

By accurate record, 98 out of every 100 women who report after taking it say, "It helped me."

What other medicine has such a record of success?

ETHEL FLEETWOOD
3023 Bandin St., New Orleans, Louisiana

"I am a saleslady in a store. My nerves got the best of me and I never had good finger nails because I couldn't stop biting them off. My appetite was poor and I was always tired. One of my friends told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help me. I know that it controls the nerves because I have no desire to bite my nails now and they are long and well kept. My appetite is enormous and I feel like a new person. I have recommended your good medicine to many girls and I assure you that they have found the same good results. I will gladly answer letters from women or girls."—Miss Ethel Fleetwood.

MRS. ANGELINE MAJKOWSKI
517-153rd Place, Harvey, Illinois

"This is to thank you for helping me get my health. After I was married I had to be operated on and it didn't do me any good. I was so worried and cried all the time for I had spent over $800 for sickness and yet I didn't get better. I saw a sign about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in a drug store and I took four bottles. Now there is happiness in our home, for we have two little boys with nice red cheeks. I am healthy myself and the more Vegetable Compound I take the better I feel. I have told my friends about it for I believe it will help anybody if they take it regularly."—Mrs. Angeline Majkowski.

MRS. W. OVERMANN
918 Regina Ave., St. Louis, Missouri

"Nine years ago when my little girl was born dead, I seemed to lose every bit of strength and vitality. I had an awful pulling down feeling in my back and my legs were so stiff I could hardly walk. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11-pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. About four months ago I became very nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. Overmann.

DOLORES WINTERS
842 N. Lawndale Ave., Chicago, Illinois

"I got so nervous I could not sleep at night. I felt weak and had no appetite. My mother recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took two bottles. It helped me very much and I recommend it highly. I feel so much stronger, have a better appetite and work in the factory every day."—Dolores Winters.

CANADA GOES APPLAUSIVE OVER FILMS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

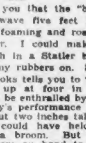
Moncton, N. B., Aug. 22—

YOU never can believe all that is printed in guide books designed for anxious tourists. I discovered that today at the exact cost of $10.85, the price of remaining in town a second day to witness one of nature's most inspiring phenomena—the "bore." You're wrong—the "bore" is not a new kind of mixed drink; it is the tide all flushed into the Petitcodiac river in one grand swash. Only somewhere in China may the same thing be seen, but after today's demonstration of how it is done in New Brunswick, I wouldn't risk another cent or another smile on the idea.

Nicholas Young

They tell you that the "bore" is a tidal wave five feet high which rolls foaming and roaring up the river. I could make a bigger splash in a Statler bathroom with my rubbers on. Still, the guide books tells you to wait for it; get up at four in the morning and be enthralled by the sight. Today's performance was a ripple about two inches tall, if that. You could have held it back with a broom. But the apologists were on hand to explain the "bore's" meagreness. Nature was blamed for the mishap; the moon was in the wrong quarter and the season is too early. It should be viewed on a full moon in October or May. Well, we couldn't wait that long for many reasons—most of them having considerable to do with finances.

Except for the "bore" Moncton gives indications of being a rather nice town in a quite, virtuous way. There are more churches than schools, and only three picture playhouses. The theaters are commodious without being too clean, and the local habitant has yet to face his first talkie. Bud Gray wouldn't like the town for the name Publix is unknown, and Joe DiPesa would writhe in his own brand of Latin agony at the absence of a Loew Theater. Still there are reasonably good M-G-M films—of second third and what-not variety. We discovered last night that Greta Garbo in "Wild Orchids" is worth just 23 cents (Canadian currency) these days. Regardless Greta didn't draw so well. At a neighboring theater a mystery-thriller-part was being unreeled and a mob stormed the doors. One feature film and a Canadian newsreel make up the program. Two shows a night are the rule, with the 9:15 exhibition catching the elite, if there be any.



The Moncton movie spectator is enthusiastic. His applause is widespread and takes in villian as well as hero. And he does not stop at mere cheers; he can whistle like a harbor siren. A study of the people who attend the movies in New Brunswick reveals an overwhelming taste for virtue triumphant. The opinion of the people is fairly well reflected in the decisions of the Censor's censors who, I am told, ruthlessly cast out scenes and subtitles that might contaminate the minds and habits of the plain people that make up the province. At any event, there are no palaces of plaster marble to lure the unwary; just films, good and bad, and not too ancient. Pictures here are sold at bargain prices—25 cents for the best and the same for those not so inviting.

(Another article by Mr. Young on his experiences along the Canadian motorway will be printed at an early date.—Note.)

Pathe Has Three Films in Production Process

Three pictures are in work, two are in the cutting room and another is in preparation at Pathe. In production are "Red Hot Rhythm," which Leo McCarey is directing with Alan Hale, Josephine Dunn, Walter O'Keefe and Kathryn Crawford in the cast. Three color sequences are being incorporated.

Another in work is "Rich People," starring Constance Bennett, under direction of E. H. Griffith, with cast including Robert Ames, Regis Toomey and Mahlon Hamilton. Robert Armstrong and Carol Lombard are busy in "The Racketeer," which Howard Higgin is directing. In the cast are Roland Drew, John Loder, Al Dunn, Herbert Clark and Jeannette Loff.

In preparation is the William Boyd picture, "His First Command," a story of army life.

GUILD TO MAKE BOSTON A PRODUCTION POINT

By ANNE FORD

THE THEATER GUILD'S plan of presenting shows to organized audiences seems to have worked in Boston. That is, if you will accept the renewal of many subscriptions as a authority. Last year, you will recall, the Guild came to Boston and presented four of its plays to subscribers. These subscribers bought tickets for the four plays and received, for their loyalty, a reduction on the box office price and a preference in seat locations. The great majority, something like 85, have renewed their subscriptions for the coming season and many new subscribers have been enrolled. And the Guild, maintaining that those who do not care to subscribe to the series of plays, has made arrangements with the Hollis Street Theater management that a certain ratio of seats must be held nightly for the public.

Judith Anderson

This year the Guild is sending "Strange Interlude" here to begin a limited engagement of several weeks, on September 16. Judith Anderson, Tom Powers, Glenn Anders, Richard Barbee, Ethel Westley, John J. Burns, Eva Condon and others of the New York cast will be seen. Following that we are to get two plays by Bernard Shaw, the Guild's favorite playwright, "Major Barbara" and "Pygmalion."

In the cast giving these plays will be Dudley Digges, one of the Guild foremost players who was not seen here last year. Frieda Inescort, who most recently was the Portia in the Shylock of George Arliss, Elliot Cabot, of Boston's famous family, Percy Waram, Phyllis Connard, and many others who were with the plays in New York.

Then will come "Wings Over Europe," a fanciful melodrama concerning the time when a young scientist throws the political forces of the world into something resembling despair by his mild announcement that he has learned a neat way of blowing the world to bits in a minute.

Following this, Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne and others of their unit of the Acting Company will present "Meteor," a new play by S. N. Behrman. The Lunts will have spent their time before coming to Boston touring in "Caprice," which was introduced so successfully here last year. It seems that it is the Guild plan to make Boston the producing point for the Lunt and Fontanne plays. Which is, in its way, something of a privilege considering the present eminent status of this pair.

Guild officials agree that Boston seems like one of the prime spots for their companies. Now, with Alice Brady, Otto Kruger, Frank Conroy and other famous players taken into the Acting Company, it is certain that we shall get them in their new plays next season. It is explained by the Guild that in the future, every player of the Acting Company will play both in New York and on tour in the same season, thus putting the road on a precise basis with New York.

It is nice to know that the Guild has realized the importance of such a policy—it seems the surest way of rekindling a great public enthusiasm in the theater. For, after all, we in Boston do pay New York prices for shows —it would seem by logical deduction that we had a right to the best.

Something like 4500 Bostonians subscribed to the Guild's local season last year. That number has already been surpassed for the coming season and one may ascribe two reasons—contentment at the programs given last year and the fact that the much-discussed "Strange Interlude" is offered among the subscription items this season.

LONDON STAR IS TO MAKE TALKIE

EVELYN LAYE, London's most famous musical comedy queen, is to make a musical comedy talkie in Hollywood early next year, according to word from London.

Miss Laye said she has received an offer from Flo Ziegfeld of $5000 a week, with a guaranteed minimum of $50,000, to make a talkie under his direction.

She expects to arrive in Hollywood next February, after starring in a play in New York this fall.

"Mr. Ziegfeld telephoned to me recently, offering me $5000 a week to appear under his direction," Miss Laye said, "we talked for a quarter of an hour and I accepted."

RINES MUSIC UNIT STAGE FEATURE

JOE RINES and his orchestra, famous all over New England, will be a feature attraction next Sunday night at the Central Square Theater in Cambridge. The appearance of the band will be in connection with the institution of the "Publix Big Five" policy in which the Scollay Square, the Fenway, the Capitol in Allston, the Strand in Dorchester, and the Central Square will be linked for the showing of major films day and date. Twice next Sunday night the Rines band's music will be broadcast over the air through Stations WNAC and WEAN. The first time will be at 7:30 o'clock, and the second at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Rines was formerly master of ceremonies at the Metropolitan, and by his work has established an orchestra as among the very best.

LASSIES ARE SUNKIST IN BIG REVUE

HENCEFORTH Hollywood is to have its own "glorified girlie" Golden State pulchritude will be revealed at the premiere of the "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont Theater on Monday night, August 26. In presenting the first revue of the Ziegfeld type ever to be screened, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer introduce more than 200 beautiful girls assembled from all parts of California to support more than a score of outstanding celebrities of stage and screen in spectacular ensembles. This aggregation was coached in the intricate dance steps and formations of the production by Sammy Lee, celebrated stage and dance director of Ziegfeld Follies, "Rio Rita," and "Show Boat" fame, with the assistance of George Cunningham.

Anita Page

A girl of average intelligence can learn the routine of a dance chorus in four weeks, according to Mr. Lee.

"Average common sense and the right height and figure are the only necessary requirements," he says. "Of course, there are so many very beautiful girls in Hollywood that I had no trouble whatever in selecting the most beautiful who also possessed a greater degree of intelligence and charm."

As a result of the greater latitude of the audible screen, Lee's "Say It With a Big Brass Band" number, in which the chorus passes in review in military formations, the ensembles of "Minstrel Show," "Singin' in the Rain," "Orange Blossom Time," and other spectacular dance novelties, are considered masterpieces of the sound stage director's art.

Gotham Gossip

MADGE KENNEDY, who did a little cautious uplifting of her vocal chords in the interest of song a few seasons ago in "Poppy," is to have another go at lifting notes in the course of her acting this season. Her new vehicle, selected by the ever prompt Charley Wagner, will be a drama of operatic life and, as such, will require Miss Kennedy to accompany it herself here and there with her voice—or maybe it's the other way around.

But, anyhow, "Prima Donna" is the title of the play and it is the work of Dorothy Spear, operatic singer and writer. Just who will compose the incidental music is not yet disclosed, but the Gus Edwardses have already heard Charley Wagner practising some one-finger compositions on his office piano the other day. So maybe he's tackling the job.

"Prima Donna" is to be tested in Greenwich the week of September 16 and the New York production will follow a month later.

The operatic stage and its people have furnished the basis of many a drama plot in the past but none of them has quite measured up to Mr. Wagner's ideas of what such a background should provide. He said yesterday:

"This is the first opera story in playform I ever have read which impresses me as being thoroughly authentic. It is real, as of course it would be, considering that Miss Spear, the author, is so much a part of the life of which she has written."

And Charley, who long has guided the destinies of such stars as Mary Garden, should know.

Hassard Short, it seems, has allied himself with Meyrose Kendall for the theatrical year at hand and will supervise the direction of several productions for that entrepreneur. Hassard, now aboard, will arrive in town on September 15 and a week later begins operations for the new firm by taking charge of rehearsals of "The Sandy Hooker," in which Lenore Ulric will star.

EQUITY TRUCE GIVES STARS JOBS BACK

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22—All of the Equityites who refused jobs pending a decision in the battle between Equity and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, are now back at work. Most folk in Hollywood are mighty glad the trouble is settled, because none of us like to feel that any of the picture folk, or stage people, either, for that matter, are out of work.

Sam Hardy, who orated valiantly for Equity, signed within 24 hours for Columbia. Mr. Hardy will play a character part opposite Margaret Livingstone and Lloyd Hughes in "Acquitted." This is young Hughes' first appearance at Columbia. Frank Strayer is the director.

James Gleason, who was waiting to see what would happen with Equity, was one of the first to sign a contract with United Artists to play in Harry Richman's picture.

Other actors who were admittedly waiting for the outcome of the battle were on hand at other studios.

LOOKS as if Constance Bennett will be fairly busy for the next few months. Just the moment she finishes "This Thing Called Love," at Pathe, she will move all her Parisian frocks, make-ups, etc., to First National. She is to play opposite Richard Barthelmess in "Sons of the Gods." Dick, 'tis a well-known fact, can have nearly anything he wants at First National these days. He made "Drag," didn't he—voted early and often as one of the ten best pictures of the year and both he and Frank Lloyd, the director consider Miss Bennett just born for the part. Edmund Lowe who has found free lancing unusually profitable will play the male lead in "This Thing Called Love." Zasu Pitts who hasn't been in a picture in ages also has an important role.

Barrymore Part Chosen

'Modern Bride'

JOAN CRAWFORD

Film Completed

"Frozen Justice" Lenore Ulric vehicle for Fox, has been completed under the direction of Alan Dwan. Robert Frazer, Louis Wolheim, El Brendel, George MacFarlane, Charles Judells, and Alice Lake are also in the cast.

"Three Sisters"

Sidney De Grey has been assigned an important role in "Three Sisters," the Fox production being directed by Paul Sloane.

HUBBY IS HER HERO, TOO, IN REEL LIFE

JOAN CRAWFORD, who plays the leading feminine role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sound picture, "Our Modern Maidens," coming to Loew's State next week, spent part of her early youth in a convent. Another fact about her is that the leading male role is being taken by her present husband, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who was not her husband when the picture was being filmed.

Miss Crawford was born in San Antonio, Texas, and was educated in a convent and at Stephen's College, where she specialized in arts and sciences. She then decided on a stage career and made her first appearance as a dancer in the Winter Garden, New York City.

She has lived in Lawton, Okla., Kansas City, Mo., and New York City. On the stage she was known as Lucille La Seueur, but was given her present screen name through a magazine contest.

Miss Crawford is five feet, four inches high, weighs 120 pounds, has blue eyes and red hair. Her mail is received at M-G-M studios, Culver City, California.

Pictures in which she has taken part are: "The Taxi Dancer," "The Unknown," "Spring Fever," "West Point," "Twelve Miles Out," "Four Walls," "Rose Marie," "Across to Singapore," "Dream of Love" and "Our Dancing Daughters."

Talker Started

Ken Maynard has just started work on a new Universal talking western, "The Wild West Show." Included in the cast are Otis Harlan, Frank Rice, Gladys O'Connell, Bobbi Dunn, Jackie Hanlon, Frank Yaconelli, Fred Burns, Stanley Blystone, Blue Washington. Harry Brown is the director.

CRIME WAVE LANDS 108,000 IN PRISONS

Washington, Aug. 22 (INS)—The growth of America's criminal population since 1910, with federal and state penitentiaries and municipal jails crowded to overflowing, was indicated today by official census figures up to 1928, and estimates showing probably more than 108,000 persons in prisons and reformatories alone.

In 1910 the American census enumeration showed 78,735 prisoners under sentence for felonies. In 1923 the figure had grown to 81,260, by 1927 to 96,256 and in 1928 to 98,724. In the later year there were 90.4 per cent to each 100,000 population confined in felon prisons.

From these figures Department of Justice penologists, who have worked out a $6,250,000 five-year penitentiary and reformatory building program to house the rapidly increasing federal prison population, declared that the state governments and municipalities apparently were faced with just as serious penal problems as were the national authorities.

Census figures showed a total of 83,002 persons in state prisons and reformatories in 1928, while estimates for the present time place he figure at about 100,000, as compared to 96,831 in 1910, 77,285 in 1923 and 89,552 in 1927.

HULL GALA DAY PLANS READY

Plans have been completed for the 22d annual Hull Gala Day which will open tomorrow night with the annual ball in Pemberton Inn. William T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deeds, is chairman of the ball committee.

Saturday's programme will open at 9 a. m. at Bayside playgrounds with a number of races limited to children of various ages. Pony rides and a Punch and Judy show will also be held at the playground. At 1 p. m. the children will take part in a grand parade around the playground to the Bayside Theater, where they will see the show.

Other features of the gala day will be baseball games, tennis tournament, golf tournament, band concerts and dancing in the afternoon and evening, water sports and fireworks.

Tea Room Employe Held as Attacker

York, Me., Aug. 22—John Hett, Jr., of Portsmouth, N. H., was arraigned in the York municipal court charged with assault with intent to kill Nunzio Vayana, New York artist and director of the Ogunquit Art Center. The case was continued until next Monday.

According to the warrant, Hett, who is employed at an Ogunquit tea room, attempted to interfere with some picnickers at Phillips Beach. He is alleged to have attacked Vayana and attempted to push him over a cliff into the ocean.

Ludlow Worker Is Crushed to Death

Springfield, Aug. 22—The pulling of a wrong lever by a fellow worker cost the life of Earl Nesh, 23, of Windsor st., Ludlow, today when his head was crushed in a hydraulic press at the plant of the Fiberloid Corp.

The lever was pulled by Michael Jurkicewsy of Ludlow. The police are investigating.

Scotch Verdict for German Consul in Speeding

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 21 (AP)—Gov. C. C. Young's office received documents from Acting Secretary of State W. R. Castle, Jr., stating that although Hans A. Kroll, acting German consul-general in San Francisco is immune from arrest on misdemeanor charges, he should assure Palo Alto he will not speed within that city again.

Castle agreed that Kroll was technically immune from arrest, but said that the case apparently "calls for an expression of regret and assurance that in the future he (Kroll) will be prepared to observe all local traffic laws."

Anagrams—A New Craze—Try Them Today

See If You Can Make the Right Changes in the Printed List

By ANNA GRAMME

The Boston Evening American today invites YOU to get into the Anagram swim with all of New England's up-to-the-minute game followers. It's the brand new craze that is keeping the best minds merrily occupied.

It's easy to learn. You are given a word "rope" and the problem is to unscramble the word with the letter "S." The rules of the game do not allow you to make it plural like "ropes" or a past tense like "roped." You must change the complete meaning of the word by inserting that letter "S" wherever you can by rearranging the word "rope" to suit your desires. Thus, to make an Anagram of "rope" with "S" the word becomes "pores."

Here are a few more Anagrams just to show you how easy the rules are. Unscramble the word "cram" with the letter "a." The Anagram is "cream." Unscramble the word "task" with the letter "e." The Anagram is "takes." Unscramble the word "rest" with the letter "e." The Anagram is "steer."

Now try your hand at the Anagrams which the Boston Evening American presents today. They are necessarily simple ones to begin with, but watch out for harder ones as the unscrambling goes on day after day in the Boston Evening American.

You'll soon get the swing of it, and probably be making up new Anagrams yourself. When you get a particularly good one, send it with the answer to the Anagram Editor, P. O. Box 185, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, and it will be published with due credit.

The answers to today's Anagrams will be printed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, too, there will be published more of the delightful brain-teasing Anagram series and every day thereafter. Watch for them.

It will make it much easier for you if you write out the letters separately and move them about until you form the new word.

GRILL AUTHOR IN ZEE ZEE DEATH MYSTERY

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (AP)—The breath of mystery which has haunted the paths of actors in the racy French farce Easy for Zee Zee" since its opening in a theater of the Latin quarter here a year ago drew the attention of the police today as they investigated the death plunge of Robert Chapman, 28, leading man in the comedy.

Chapman, son of a prominent Piedmont, Cal. attorney, jumped, fell or was thrown to his death from the sixth story window of the apartment of Allen Hoffman playwright and author.

Displaying a bruised face and other marks of violence Hoffman told police Chapman and he had just returned from a party in the home of another member of the Zee Zee cast. The doorbell rang and Hoffman found two strange men at the door. He said he told them he had no liquor, whereupon they beat him into unconsciousness.

When he came to his senses, he said, the window was open and the crushed body of Chapman lay below with police grouped around it.

The occupant of a nearby apartment told of hearing two men go to Hoffman's quarters, sounds of scuffling and then the fall followed by a scream. Fingerprints identified as Chapman's were found on the window sill.

Chapman's death recalled other mysterious happenings, incidents Nana Bentova, Svedish lady and others in the cast. His name was linked with that of Greta Peters, gangster queen in his apartment above the theater a year ago.

As Peters' "girl friend" the actress was questioned. Others of the Zee Zee cast were also drawn into the case because of their friendship with Peters.

Mascagni, Disgusted by Jazz, Quits Opera

Paris, Aug. 22—Opera is dead. Long live jazz!

Such is the sardonic salute of Pietro Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and 13 other operas, who is about to give up in despair.

Mascagni says jazz is merely an itching for new sensations and nobody with a heart or brain can bear it.

Opera that appeals to the heart is out-moded, and he, for one, will write no more for the present unsatisfactory, jazz-preferring public, he says.

For this scornful viewpoint he has just received a torrent of abuse from French composers, music critics and others who disagree with him.

20 ARREST IN EATON ATTACK

London, Aug. 22—Roland Bateman, 22, was arrested today in connection with the attack on Philip Eaton, instructor at St. Mark's school, Southboro, Mass., which occurred Aug. 13 in his room here.

Eaton, staying in London on a vacation, was found cut and badly beaten. The American, a graduate of Harvard and a war veteran, was in a serious condition for some time, but is now recovering.

Scotland Yard officials sought for Bateman and J. Moore, alleged to have been his companion. Moore was found and questioned. Bateman's arrest followed.

Woman's Only "Job" Was Drawing Pay

Chicago, Aug. 22 (INS)—Sixty seven witnesses, formerly on the payroll of the sanitary district, today testified before the grand jury, bringing the total of witnesses heard to date to 135.

One witness, a woman candidate, admitted she had been on three public payrolls at the same time, and that the only "work" she had performed while on the payroll of the sanitary district was to visit the offices on payday and draw her salary.

Ex-Judge's Daughter and 'Reds' Sentenced

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (INS)—Found guilty of disturbing the peace in connection with a "radical" demonstration in front of the Chinese consulate, Miss Anita Whitney, daughter of a former justice of the California Supreme Court, and nine co-defendants, were at liberty today after being given suspended sentences of 30 days.

Council at Revere Votes $56,829.17

The Revere City Council has unanimously appropriated $56,829.17. Of this $20,3000 was voted for two new pumping engines and an ambulance for the fire department and the rest split up for road work, salaries, mothers' aid and other charities, and a pension for Patrolman George Wilson.

About half of the money will be raised by tax levy and the remainder by notes and bonds.

200 FLEE FIRE IN THEATER

Two hundred patrons at the Orpheum Theater in Converse sq., in the heart of the Malden business district, fled the auditorium in great confusion when two rolls of film in the operating booth exploded with a puff of flame and smoke.

One woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Duffy, 51, of Berkeley st., Malden, collapsed at the entrance to the theater and received slight bruises from being trampled on.

The film exploded during the showing of the feature picture. In the operating booth at the time were James O'Brien of Fairmont ave., Dorchester, chief operator, assisted by Edmund J. Sout of Farrington st., Cliftondale, and Fred McLeod of Malden.

Mrs. Myra Forsaith Thurman, well known Malden concert singer who is manager of the theater, assured the audience from the stage that there was no cause for alarm, and Mrs. Abbie Perkins, organist, kept playing to calm the patrons.

Auto Crash Restores Eyesight of Victim

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug 22 (AP)—Francis A. Smith, hotel manager, is inclined to think an automobile accident in which he was hurt may be a blessing. The first time he tried to read after the accident his glasses obscured his vision. He took them off and found he could read without difficulty. An expert told him there was precedent for the correction of eye afflictions by a severe blow.

OLD GOLD CONCEALED NAME CIGARETTE TEST

Ask us another if we haven't answered here every question ever asked about it

There are 48 states in the Union, but there's a touch of Missouri in each and every one. A bit of the good old "show me" spirit. So when a cigarette invites the public to test and compare the 4 leading brands and then wins 112 out of 116 tests, many open-minded Americans would like to know how these tests are conducted. Here are the questions most frequently heard... if we haven't answered every one... ask us another!

Question: Does OLD GOLD publish the score of every public test taken?

Answer: Yes... win, lose or draw!

Question: Is OLD GOLD always the same number?

Answer: No. In the actual tests there are no numbers on the cigarette masks. The smoker, himself, tears off the masks and finds out for himself which brand he has chosen as best.

Question: Is the Concealed Name Test a "guessing contest"... does the smoker attempt to guess brand names?

Answer: Decidedly not! The smoker states only which cigarette tastes best to him, and does not try to guess the name of the brand.

Question: Who conducts these tests?

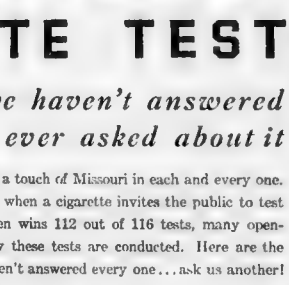
Answer: Never the makers of OLD GOLD, or their agents. The tests are conducted either by certified public accountants or officials of the organization or institution under whose auspices the tests are given.

Question: Are all competing brands equally fresh and in the same condition?

Answer: All four brands are purchased before each test at the same time, in the same store, out of regular retail stock, just as the public buys them... and the clerk who sells them certifies the purchase.

Question: Does the official conducting the test know which cigarette is which while the smoker is making the test?

Answer: No! Emphatically no! The cigarettes are arranged in sets of four... one each of the four leading brands. Then they are masked... their names completely concealed. When the official hands out these masked cigarettes it is impossible for him, or anyone, to know one from another.



NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

WHY not make this test yourself in your own home? We'll be happy to send you a set of the brand name masks and complete instructions. Write to P. Lorillard Co., 119 W. 40th St., N. Y. C.

LOCAL MARKET PRODUCTS ARE PLENTIFUL

A plentiful supply of fruit, vegetables, meat and fish at reasonable prices marks the opening of the second half of the week in the Boston market.

Blueberries still hold the lead in popularity. The native growth is not available in any large quantity, but there is plenty of the Nova Scotia berry at 45 and 50 cents a quart.

COLD STORAGE DEMAND

The demand of warm weather dishes is manifest in the ever increasing needs for lettuce, cucumbers and tomatoes. New York state lettuce sells for 10 cents a head and iceberg for 15 cents. Hothouse tomatoes are 15 cents and 20 cents a pound. Native outdoor tomatoes bring 10 cents a pound. Cucumbers are 15 cents each.

Green corn sells for 50 cents a dozen and there is an adequate supply. Potatoes are 75 cents a peck and green peas $1. String and butter beans of exceptional quality are 20 cents a quart. Lima beans bring 25 cents a pound.

Summer squash is still on the market at 15 cents a pound. Cauliflower brings 25 cents a head. Cabbage is high at 8 cents a pound.

New Maine potatoes bring 75 cents a peck and sweets are three pounds for 25 cents. Onions retail at 8 cents a pound.

Honey ball melons at 50 cents are most popular among the fruits. Honeydews of good quality range from 75 cents to $1.00. Arizona melons sell for $1.75 a dozen.

Peaches at 65 and 75 cents a dozen, pears at 75 cents a dozen, apples at 90 cents a dozen and bananas at 50 cents a dozen for the yellow and 90 cents for the red find a ready market.

Story of Modern "Hard-Boiled" Flapper Who Was Easy

What Has Gone Before

Ann-Marie Macy wanted to be an artist. She told John Lawler, handsome son of a banker and "catch of the town," that she would never marry. But when John came in his car to take her to her father's tiny book store, Ann-Marie's heart pounded violently. Later when she knew he wanted to embrace her, she resisted. All girls pet, John argued; even her sisters, Jeanne and Alice, but Ann-Marie is different. Still arguing, they arrive at Ann-Marie's home to find a gay, informal party. Alice boldly asks John to take her to the Christmas dance, but he replies he has asked Ann-Marie. When Ann-Marie suggests that he take Alice, he agrees to, but is angry. Lamenting, Ann-Marie calls him back, but Alice makes Ann-Marie forego the dance. She even asks Ann-Marie to paint flowers on her dress. Mrs. Leasure, who is housekeeper in the motherless home, sympathizes with Ann-Marie, who is the "goat" of the two more modern flapper sisters. Ann-Marie, however, is secretly saving to study art. Florence Lawler's John's sister, calls on her with "good news."

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 5

"TELL me the grand good news," Ann Marie said shivering and pulling her blue cotton kimono around her as she came into the chill of the front parlor. The old house was hard to heat because of its high ceilings and it was never comfortable until noon on winter days.

"New man!" Florence Lawler answered, and there was a note of triumph in her voice for a new man was a real event in the little town where everybody had known everybody else always. "He's a friend of my cousin, Neal, in New York He's driving up from Virginia and last night he had dinner with us - He's a bachelor, not so terribly good-looking, but simply fascinating all the same. One of those 'strong, silent men,' you know"—She giggled, and while she was giggling she looked about 15 years old instead of 20 plus.

"I asked him to stay over for the dance tonight—you know. Little Flossie never lets the grass grow under her feet!" She giggled again. She always giggled when she spoke of her huge self as Little Flossie.

"Johnny says he's asked Alice to go to the dance with him, so I thought maybe you'd go with Jim Goodwin—that's his name," she went on, closing the door of the room and dropping her voice.

"How did Johnny happen to ask Alice to go with him?" He never could STAND Alice, you know."

A little pucker came between Ann Marie's black eyebrows "He asked her because I said I wouldn't go with him," she blurted. "So, of course, I can't go with this Goodwin man, can I?"

Suddenly her face brightened as a brilliant thought struck her. "Maybe Alice would like to go with him—and then I could go with Johnny after all! If I telephoned him and asked him to take me

FINISH LAST LINK OF SOUTHERN ARTERY

SOUTH ARTERY FINISHED AT LAST

Opening of Repaved Morton st. Next Sunday Completes the Project

Here's good news for autoists.

For the first time since the Southern Artery, the leading gateway to the South Shore, was opened to traffic, autoists will be able to drive over the entire roadbed without detouring, starting Sunday.

The last connecting link in Morton st., Dorchester, between Harvard and Norfolk sts., will be completed in time for the week-end travel.

Another remarkable fact is that this particular section was completed in 35 working days, making it one of the quickest contract accomplishments in the history of the city.

More than 20,000 square yards of sheet asphalt was laid on a concrete base and 50,000 square feet of artificial sidewalks were completed by Contractor M. F. Gaddis. The cost of the contract to the city amounted to $80,000. One hundred and fifty laborers were employed.

The speed of the work compares favorably with the contracts awarded to Gaddis for the sheet asphalting of Shawmut ave., between Warren and Roxbury sts., Broad st., from State to Atlantic ave, and Kneeland st., from Washington to Atlantic ave. These traffic highways were also completed in record time.

With the opening of this section of Morton st., on the Southern Artery, autoists may now travel in a direct line east and west to points along the South Shore and to the west of Boston.

Fine Driver $50 for Fleeing Accident

Michael Callahan of Chestnut st., Lynn, was fined $50 on a charge of going away after an accident without rendering himself known, and $50 for operating a motor vehicle so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, when he was arraigned before Judge Ralph W Reeve in the Lynn District Court Callahan was involved in an accident two weeks ago Although the lights on his machine were out, a street car motorman obtained the registration numbers and reported the matter to the police.

Thomas Hammond, 57, of Willard st., West End, was found dead in a vacant room on the first floor of his home. Gas was flowing from open jets in the room.

Hammond wrote two letters, one to his wife in Cambridge, and the other to his brother, John, telling them that he was going to end his life.

FIND 3 MISSSING TOTS ASLEEP UNDER PIAZZA

Little East Boston Wanderers End Tour in Lynn; Pet Dog With Them

Wearied from their two-days' tramp, in an attempt to see the world on nothing but nerve, the three East Boston children, for whom the police of New England have been searching, were found fast asleep early today under his front piazza by James Dugas of Lynnfield st., Lynn.

The bulldog pal which they took along to protect them was very weary, too, and was cuddled up asleep near the youngtera when the discovery was made.

The feet of "Jamesie" Burns, 11, owner of the bulldog "Leo," and leader of the "three musketeers," betrayed the trio.

Jamesie" feet were protruding from the bidding place and as Dugas tripped down the front steps on his way to work he spotted them.

"Ah, ha," said Dugas to himself. "What have we here?"

He investigated and found that the protruding feet belonged to a very tired boy whose wanderlust had carried him 18 miles, all the way from his home in Savage st., East Boston, in his world conquest.

To use Dugas' words, "Jamesie" was "used to the world." Maybe he was dreaming of pirates on the Spanish main or of cannibals in the South Sea, for "Jamesie" has a first-class imagination and no doubt his subconscious mind may have been affected by the tales he has read

His two companions, Miss Colletta George, nine, and her brother, Simon, otherwise "Sonny," seven, were also asleep. So was the dog.

Dugas awakened the children, escorted them into his home and gave them breakfast. He then got in touch with the Lynn police and the tired little adventurers were held pending the arrival of their parents.

MAN BURNED IN APARTMENT HOUSE BLAZE

Roxbury Resident Vainly Tries to Stop Fire Set by Lantern Blast

John F Hurley of Suite 1, 134 Vernon st., Roxbury, was badly burned about the head and arms when a kerosene lantern exploded in the cellar of the building. He was taken to City Hospital

According to the police, Hurley went into the cellar with a lighted kerosene lantern and in some manner knocked it against a wall, causing it to explode.

Hurley attempted to put out the blaze with his coat, but was severely burned. His screams attracted the attention of other occupants of the house, who sent in a still alarm.

The fire spread to the cellar stairway, causing damage estimated at $300 by the police The building is owned, according to the police, by ex. William Ivory of No. 116 Vernon st., Roxbury.

CHILDREN HOLD 'SAFETY SHOW'

Children assembled from eight West End playgrounds gave a series of "safety first" demonstrations at a "safety show" in the Lancaster Theater today, staged by playground teachers in co-operation with the Mass. Safety Council

Twelve hundred children gathered to see the demonstration and view the various stunts and movies put on to educate childre in safety measures.

The show was one of a series in the safety work organized on Boston playgrounds in which those children are taking part The demonstrations consisted of safety drills and pageants and other entertaining features.

The shows was conducted by Martha E. Crane, Maud A. Dooley and Margaret M. Burns, playground teachers, under direction of Lewis E. MacBrayne of the Mass. Safety Council.

POLICE STAGE DOWNTOWN RAID, SEIZE $5000 WORTH OF LIQUOR

ENTER OFFICE BY WAY OF SKYLIGHT

High-grade liquors valued at $5000 were seized by Special Officer "Barney" McGinnis and officers of his unit of the police headquarters liquor squad, in a raid on Central st., in the heart of the insurance district.

It was McGinnis's first day on duty after a two weeks vacation and his return saved the regular of the headquarters raiders from being returned bank for the tour of duty.

In connection with the raid Paul Mazoni, 37, of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, was arrested on the charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He was released on bail shortly after he had been booked. He will appear in municipal court today.

The accused claimed to be engaged in the insurance business and had an office on the second floor of the building. The cache where the liquor was found, together with a modern "spitting" outfit was on the fifth floor, in a two-room office.

To gain entrance the officers were obliged to reach the roof by means of a ladder from the fifth floor fire escape, and from that point entered the outer room by way of an unfastened skylight.

After he had reached the room Officer David Richard opened the door for McGinnis and Officer Arthur Eunson, and the trio made a search of the room without success.

The door connecting with the other room was decorated with a large picture, placed on two hooks. The picture was removed and pulling downward on the hooks the officers were able to open the door. There were found many cartons containing alleged liquors.

It is estimated the lot confiscated will amount to nearly 200 gallons, much of which was in pint and quart containers.

SUPREME BENCH TO ACT ON TAX SUIT

Temporary Injunction Denied, Hub Assessors May Proceed

Boston assessors may proceed with the 1929 tax levy as though John C. Dowling and other taxpayers had not petitioned to enjoin the board from making the levy, it was decided in Supreme Court.

By their petition the tax payers seek to prevent making the levy until the assessors have first deducted $3,000,000 received this year from back taxes and $250,000 from state income tax received in previous years.

Samuel Silverman, assistant corporation counsel, pointed out that if the city should be enjoined from sending out a tax rate without deducting $3,500,250, Boston would be unable to meet $17,000,000 in temporary loans which are due Oct. 1.

Philip Nichols, counsel for petitions, claims the city has no right to accumulate a surplus without giving the taxpayers the benefit of it.

The case thus reported will go before the Supreme Court, full bench, on Sept. 9, and will be submitted on briefs, without oral argument. It is hoped by Samuel Silverman, assistant corporation counsel, that the full bench will decide the case before tax bills are sent out. The law provides that unless taxes are paid by Oct. 2, they will bear interest from Sept. 15.

Judge Field declined to issue any temporary injunction and did not require the assessors to stipulate they would not prepare and send out tax bills, pending the Supreme Court's determination.

Here Is the Whatisit

Airplane, automobile and motorcycle parts were utilized by Walter H. Cummings of Darling st., Dorchester, and Charles A. Hill of Granite st., Melrose, in constructing the Whatisit. It will go 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline and has traveled 55 miles an hour. (Staff photo.)

Plane, Auto and Cycle Parts in Whatisit

Have you seen the newest form of transportation—the Whatisit?

Although it contains airplane parts it does not fly. While it has a "kick" starter, similar to a motorcycle, it can't be called a motorcycle and despite the fact that it has the parts of several discarded automobiles, picked up from dumps, it is not an automobile, as it carries motorcycle license plates.

Two frameworks of motorcycle sidecars that had been discarded were also obtained and the springs utilized. They were found in an auto junk yard in Dorchester ave., Dorchester.

In a Morton st., Dorchester, dump the steering column and exhaust pipe were taken from an old Ford.

40 MILES ON A GALLON

The aluminum hood of an old Peerless was purchased for a few dollars. The aluminum top of an old Packard sedan was bought in an auto junk yard.

The Whatisit is six feet long and 48 inches wide and has travelled 55 miles an hour. It goes 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

This unique machine was built by Walter H. Cummings, 25, a solicitor, of Darling st., Dorchester, and Charles A. Hill, 35, a mechanic, of Granite st., Melrose. They constructed it during their spare time since last January.

TWO GASOLINE TANKS

A special gear box was the only thing purchased from an automobile accessories store. A few nuts and bolts to fasten all these things together completed the equipment for construction of the Whatisit.

Two gas tanks under the hood which hold 1¼ gallons each release gasoline at the same time.

Lucky Buck Begging For Winners

By WON LUCKY BUCK

For nearly 40 days I've been calling my great money game characters lucky bucks and lucky onespots. Just where I got the word lucky I don i know for I've come to the conclusion folks, that "Luck" only plays a role in my game when YOU folks are astute enough to pick him out.

Of course you'll have to admit that it's luck when you find one of those old $1 bills which I'm buying up at either $20, $10 or $5 each But "Luck" won't help you a bit if you don't co-operate and recognize these lucky bucks when they come to you with open arms

Take for instance the mailman who received the lucky buck worth $100 in change from a purchase he made in a drug store the other day. I watched him pocket the $100 winner as though the old bill was just another greenback of the ordinary class with the buying power of 100 cents. Here's a fellow who passed a chance to pick up an easy $100.

THOUSANDS JUT LIKE HIM

There are thousands of other folks just like this mailman. They're afraid there are some strings attached to my offer for these old $1 bills.

When you get hold of an $1 bill compare the serial number on it with the serial numbers published in the Boston Evening American every day. Each day there's an additional 16 winners for $150 added to the list.

I've been mingling with folks lately who remark "Oh the Boston Evening American knows where those lucky bucks are." Well folks if you think this I suggest you get in touch with the 200 persons who already have cashed in on lucky bucks

Mary Maloney, 9, of 44 Langley rd., Brighton, has confidence in my money game Mary went to the store for mother and when she got home she checked over her change with the list of lucky bucks in the Boston Evening American She found lucky buck T70405545D. It was a $20 winner.

2 HOME FROM FITCHBURG

Two lucky bucks arrived home from a sojourn in Fitchburg yesterday.

Otto W. Goranson, 50 Clyde st., Fitchburg, sent me lucky buck N73413141D, a winner for $5.

Damon D. Manchester, 376 Kempton st., New Bedford, sent me lucky buck Z44572065D, another $5 winner.

Traffic Officer Joseph L. Moriarty, 25 Edison st., Quincy, was so elated over finding lucky buck Y74272839D in his change from a Quincy grocery store that he brought the lucky buck in yesterday. It's another winner for $5.

BURNS FATAL TO WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Wilson, 65, of 166 Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, died at the Haymarket Relief Hospital from burns she received when her clothing caught afire while she was cooking

She was alone in the house, cooking the noonday meal, when her clothes caught fire. Excited, she rushed upstairs, her blazing clothes igniting the woodwork in the hallway.

John Boyle of East Boston, a fireman off duty, heard her screams, climbed a waterspout and entered the house through a window. He tried to beat out the fire in her clothes, unsuccessfully, and with the aid of Joseph Gillen, 187 Bunker Hill st., who had also climbed the spout, she was lifted to the window and dropped into the arms of several young men

Dr. Fred Lyons administered first aid treatment and then took her to the hospital in his car

SCIENTISTS MEASURE HORSEPOWER USED BY A SPRINTER

The figures on this store of an athlete's energy and some discoveries as to how he expends it were presented to the thirteenth international physiological congress at Harvard Medical School today by Dr. W. O. Fenn of Rochester, N. Y. Athletes may find pointers in his observations.

"Subjects so far available," he said, "all have pushed themselves backward slightly when the foot touches the ground."

He estimated this loss of foot energy as one-half horsepower. Imparting drive to the legs and swing to the arms takes up only 1.67 horsepower. Stopping these motions is a distinct drain, requiring a little more than a half horsepower.

Overcoming the force of gravity absorbs one-tenth of a horsepower. The total arm and leg motions, their checking, gravity, wind resistance and foot contact with the ground were estimated as absorbing 22.6 per cent of the sprinter's energy.

BENEFITS OF EXERCISE

Motions that have been made famous by some "sidewinder" sprinters, such as transfer of energy from one leg to the other and the "sideways movements", also absorb some energy, Dr. Fenn said, but he did not estimate the amount.

The lasting effects of physical exercise were shown by Drs. Edward C. Schneider and Gordon C. Ring of Middletown, Ct. They found that one hour of physical exercise daily increases the capacity of lungs and ability to transfer oxygen into the blood so rapidly that the maximum result is achieved in five or six weeks. If then exercise is completely neglected, the body returns part of the increased power for several months.

The condition of the adrenal gland, in the neighborhood of the kidneys, has an important bearing upon hay fever, it was disclosed in findings presented by Dr. W. Cramer of London and Dr. Ulf vol Euler of Stockholm.

Dr. Cramer found that exposure to cold is a powerful stimulant to the adrenal medulla, and that prolonged stimulation of the gland produces fever.

Dr. von Euler's researches unfolded that adrenalin, a substance resulting from stimulation of the adrenal gland, plays an important role in fever.

LIVER AS ANEMIA CURE.

Use of liver in overcoming anemia was endorsed by several medical authorities who presented papers dealing with experiments on liver in connection with anemia. Three Boston physicians contributed to the researches. They are Edwin J. Cohn, Thomas L. McMeekin and George R. Minot. Dr. W. N. Reidyroff of Battle Creek, Mich., also presented a study along the same general lines.

The Boston experts' findings indicated that a method has been found to isolate and prepare the beneficial substance in liver for treatment of pernicious anemia, which would greatly simplify the present method. At present anemia is treated by eating liver itself, after cooking.

Use of liver because of claims of its value in the treatment of anemia has grown to such an extent in the past year that today the retail price of calves' liver is 65 cents a pound. Beef liver sells for 22 cents a pound.

HOW THE SPEEDY TROTTERS STEPPED OUT ON THE GETAWAY

The horse racing program on the opening day of the Marshfield Fair provided plenty of excitement, especially for the children. It was children's day. Photo shows the start of one of the 2:20 class heats.

SUSPECT'S BODY IS CLAIMED

John Barry, 21, of Brockton ave., Quincy, who was killed in a gun duel with Santa Barbara, Cal., police Tuesday, will be buried in Pasadena, according to word which reached his family. The body was claimed by his aunt, who lives on the West coast.

Santa Barbara police also reported that stolen property had been found in the automobile in which Barry, Ralph Kemp of Quincy, and Charles Gillig of New York were riding. Kemp is said to have given information which implicated Barry and himself in a series of robberies which they committed en route for California.

Auto Death Case Set for Tomorrow

The case of Charles M. Spanks of Vestry st., Beverly, charged with manslaughter and operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, was continued until tomorrow when he was arraigned in the Charlestown district court. He was held in $600 bail on both charges.

Police reported that his car fatally injured Frank Sheppard, 65, of Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, whose funeral was held yesterday. The accident occurred on Chelsea st.

Garrett Incognito As Fair Horseman

Marshfield Aug. 22—Camouflaged by a pair of yellow goggles and a becoming outfit of blue silk, Oliver B. Garrett, deposed czar of Boston's rum squad, stepped out of the role of policeman long enough to prove himself a first class horseman in the trotting races at the Marshfield fair.

Though his presence, had it been announced, might have proved an added attraction, Garrett preferred to remain incognito, until he was spotted by an alert reporter.

It was the opening of the Marshfield Fair, the 63d annual showing in this locality. "Children's Day" was the announced feature of the program, but the presence of the much-debated Boston liquor squad leader occasioned the greater comment. Garrett, who filed with Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson of the Boston police department his denial of statements attributed to him affecting his alleged "lift the lid" prognostications, stepped into the arena before several thousand persons and drove two horses from the Mulrean stable of South Weymouth in the trotting races.

He managed to place third in the first two heats of the 2.20 class "Weber Duck Inn" cup trot and pace, driving Peter Hellman, and fourth, driving Peter Bryce in the 2.17 class trot and pace.

Bostonian Named Phone Group Head

Jeremiah Coughlan of Boston was elected president of the International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers at the convention of the organization at Narragansett Pier.

Other officers elected are: First vice-president, Thomas B. Delaney of Lowell; second vice-president, Patrick J. Sullivan of Worcester; third vice-president, William F. Kelly of Boston; secretary-treasurer, Timothy F. Murphy.

To Represent Mass. at Ship Conference

Harris Livermore and P. S. Davis, chairman and manager respectively of the maritime department of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, have been appointed to represent the commonwealth at the 22d annual convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, which will take place on a Hudson river steamer, New York to Albany, Sept. 18-20, next. The organization is expected to take an important action to induce the government to improve the Cape Cod canal to meet requirements of New England industries and, also, to safeguard navigation.

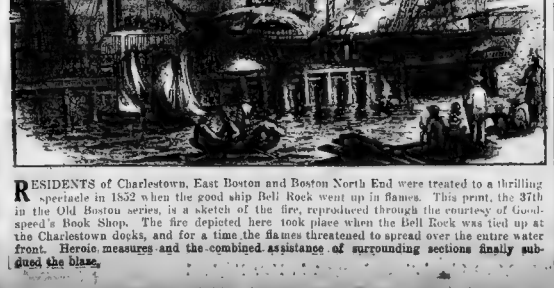
Old Boston in Pictures—No. 37



RESIDENTS of Charlestown, East Boston and Boston North End were treated to a thrilling spectacle in 1852 when the good ship Bell Rock went up in flames. This print, the 37th in the Old Boston series, is a sketch of the fire, reproduced through the courtesy of Goodspeed's Book Shop. The fire depicted here took place when the Bell Rock was tied up at the Charlestown docks, and for a time the flames threatened to spread over the entire water front. Heroic measures and the combined assistance of surrounding sections finally subdued the blaze.

COUNCIL SENDS SUMMONS TO BARNUM

Letter to Ex-Governor Fuller

Hearings on the proposed increase in gas rates open before the City Council special committee today with President Dana H. Bartlett of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. and Wycliffe C. Marshall, who has previously represented the concern, scheduled as star witnesses.

Reaching into the past for authority that has not been used since the reorganization of the city government, the special City Council committee issued formal summonses on Barnum and Marshall. They have been ordered to explain their reasons for supporting the increased rates.

Councilor Herman [illegible] of Roxbury, an attorney, found in the general laws a provision which he claimed gave the council more authority than it reached it actually commanded.

Legal experts while declining publicly to express an opinion on the law, stated that if this authority is vested in the council it will revolutionize the power. For this power has been dormant in late years as the council hopeless saw witnesses refuse to accept invitations to past hearings including the Sunday baseball investigation.

Chairman Dowd contended that the gas rates form a matter within council authority as defined in the law, because of the fact "that the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. is now holding a 10-year contract with the city of Boston for which they will receive close to $2,500,000 of the taxpayers' money," he explained.

Chairman Dowd declared that the committee was particularly anxious to have President Barnum inform the committee "whether the statement of former Governor Fuller is correct or not when he states that he had definite assurance verbally that there would be no increase in the cost of gas to the small consumers."

The former Governor, on a telegram addressing his support to the committee in the fight against the scheduled rates, stated that he was given assurances while Governor that the rates would not be increased after the repeal of the sliding scale act in 1926.

There Is Sentiment Synthetic, But Then Alex Gets Paid

Seen Around Town Berty Broke Hand So Can Page Chance

ALEX'S SUSPENSE AND SUSPENSION ENDED

THERE is some sentiment in baseball, after all. It may be synthetic, but it's there, which is what counts. The suspension of Grover Cleveland Alexander has been lifted. The old boy has been sent home with his salary intact, to rest up the famous souper until another year comes along.

Nick Flately

Sam Breadon, who owns the Cardinals, explains it thusly:

"We cannot forget Alexander's heroic work in baseball. In particular we are unable to forget Alex's great pitching in the final game of the world series which the Cardinals won from the Yankees in 1926, when Alex performed his great relief feat."

We can imagine Sam weeping when he told some reporter to say those words for him. That full salary part made him weep. There will be cynics who will not believe it, unless they see Alex's cancelled checks. They're tough about money in St. Louis. But this statement almost has to be on the level.

If Alex had been knocked cockeyed by the Yankees in that 1926 finish, Sam would have saved plenty of thousands on the '27 contracts. So he loves the great veteran like an ex-husband admires paying alimony. But in this case he has to make things look good.

Pressure Did It

Manager Will McKechnie, on the job about three weeks, did not suspend old Alex without orders from home. Will isn't that kind of a chap. St. Louis managers cannot think for themselves. That's why they change so often.

But the edict, immediately after the big boy had cracked the N. L. pitching record, stirred up plenty of adverse comment. M. Breadon of St. Louis received many a protest. We can imagine Col. Jake Ruppert of the Yankees wiring: "How can I give the Babe one hundred grand, if they think I might fire him, any time he feels like hoisting one."

And Barney Dreyfus phoning: "I suspend the stars in this league, not you. Lay off, Sam, for the good of the great old game."

Perhaps even Judge Landis stepped in, and said a few words. It must have been something as strong as that to cause the change in St. Louis. But anyhow, Alex will get his salary, and the boys can argue still that sentiment in the dear old game is not dead yet.

But watch Grover try to get a job next year. Unless the Giants, through McGraw can net him. Mac, tough and cold hearted as he seems, does more for the old timers than all the rest of them. He used to be a player himself.

Seen Around Town

Riccardo Was Hurt

Riccardo Bertazzolo, licked by Jim Maloney, dropped around to show a left thumb swollen up like an overlarge ham. Riccardo claims he cracked that on Jamesey's crown in the second round. After that he could only wave what he calls his mighty left, in fluent Italian.

The digit was cracked in the fight: no doubt of that. So the defeated gladiator has a real alibi. Most of us thought the Italian would have been beaten, if he owned three or four more hands. But the injury will give him a chance to page another try.

If he can be taught to hit straight and sharply, he may lick a lot of the boys. For he can certainly take it. But he isn't exactly a child.

MISS PALFREY LOSES TO MISS GREEF

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 22—Mary Greef of Kansas City upset 16-year-old Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, Mass., in the national women's tennis championships here by the decisive score of 6—3, 6—2 to gain a place among the eight survivors of an original field of 64.

Hammering away at Sarah's only weakness, the Middle Western star fully earned her victory by brilliant all-around play.

Helen Jacobs, the country's second ranking star, encountered stiff opposition at the hands of Mrs. B. C. Covell of the English contingent, before she finally won by scores of 10—8, 6—2. Betty Nuthall, the British ace, pounded out a victory over Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, national champion of 25 years ago, 7—5, 6—1, and Helen Wills took just 24 minutes to outclass Alice Francis of Orange, N. J., in two love sets.

Another to reach the quarter-final round was Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven times winner of this championship. Pitted against Virginia Hillery of Philadelphia, the veteran Norse woman's still powerful forehand brushed aside her young opponent by scores of 6—0, 7—5.

In three of the four Anglo-American battles the British were successful. Mrs. Covell being the only loser. In addition to Miss Nuthall, Mrs. Phoebe Watson scored for England over Anna McCune Harper of Los Angeles, 11—9, 6—4, and Mrs. Peggy Saunders Michell outclassed "Midge" Gladman of Santa Monica, Cal., 4—6, 6—0, 6—1.

At Edith Cross . San Francisco came through easily against Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester of Glen Cove, N. Y., 6—2, 6—2, the United States still has its first four ranking players—Miss Wills, Miss Jacobs, Miss Cross and Mrs. Mallory—to depend upon

A CLERK WHO'S A TRACK STAR IN SPARE TIME

Rena MacDonald Is "Spare Time Star"

By JOHN GILLOOLY

THOSE athletically inclined young ladies who see or hear of the travels and accomplishments of Rena MacDonald and envy her are wasting their time. There's no good reason for it.

Life is not all running, jumping, swimming and tossing the shot for Readville Rena. In fact, sports are more or less of a side issue in her every day schedule. A sort of diversion, as it were.

Rena toils daily in a local insurance company's office. Just another private in the great army of the employed. All of which causes many praises to be loaded on the anything-but-slender shoulders of this husky young miss.

How Rena can work all week and then smash up records and win all sorts of medals on her days off is puzzling. Golf, tennis, baseball and track stars all have to get a daily dab of their particular sport if they go stale in a week.

Rena's daily workouts are limited to pounding a typewriter, opening and closing the drawers of a filing cabinet, and bat ling her way each evening to the Readville limited.

At any rate here's a very modern miss who works d plays, enjoys both and takes both with the utmost sincerity. A real girl with a world of natural talent and the ability to give the world a glimpse of it.

Rena started on her athletic career at a very tender age. In grammar school, she used to steal away to engage in masculine sports.

Miss MacDonald has all kinds of medals and titles. She has been a member of the United States Olympic team and has annexed many New England and national track and swimming crowns.

In track, she competes in the dashes, hurdles, discus, shot, javelin and standing broad jump. Her favorite swimming distance is the half mile, using either free-style or breast-stroke. Volley ball, basketball, field hockey, ice hockey, football, baseball and horseback riding all get a bit of attention from Rena.

She keeps in condition by avoiding, and it might be mentioned that this is done with much difficulty, all parties, dances, movies and other attractions that would keep her out late at night.

A really remarkable miss is Rena. A distinct exception to the ancient cry of the "weaker sex." And the fame she has won has been deserved. For she works as hard as any girl during the week yet has the reserve energy to excel in sports.

TILDEN PICKED TO WIN BOWL

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22 (INS)—Six Americans, one Englishman and one rather amazing young Frenchman were playing in the fifth round of the Newport Casino invitation lawn tennis tournament.

William T. Tilden, the favorite, who has two legs on the Cushman singles trophy, was the first to reach the fifth round, and was joined by George Lott of Chicago, Fred Mercur of Harrisburg, John Van Ryn of Orange, Berkeley Bell of Austin, Wilbur Coen of Kansas City, H. W. Austin of England and Paul De Ricou of Paris.

Today's matches brought together Tilden and Mercur, De Ricou and Coen, Austin and Van Ryn, and Lott and Bell.

Eight teams have reached the doubles quarter-finals, including that veteran pair, Tilden and Hedges.

FIND SPONGE IN HORSE'S NOSE

Chicago, Aug. 22 (INS)—A successful plot to prevent the favorite horse from winning the Meditation purse at Hawthorne track resulted today in suspension of the trainer's license and a $100 fine, and the summoning of him and several stable employes for an investigation that may lead to their prosecution on conspiracy charges.

After Click, three-year-old which ruled a 2 to 1 favorite, had finished next to last in a field of eight, the paddock veterinarian discovered a sponge stuffed in the thoroughbred's left nostril.

TRIBE SEEKS TO KEEP UP LEAD

By JOE CASHMAN

THE St. Louis Cardinals, the champions last season but now at the bottom of the first division and in danger of falling lower, open a four-game series with the Braves this afternoon. They are the last of the Western entries to visit the Hub this season.

To date, the Tribe has made a better showing at home against the Red Birds than against any of the other clubs from the far parts. The natives dropped six out of 11 to both the Pirates and Cubs, and seven out of 11 to the Reds.

They go into this series with the Cards, however, leading four games to three, and if they can split even, they will gain the edge for the campaign. They might also gain a bit on the seventh place Phils. They need to, at any rate, as they are two games behind the fixed.

Ed Brandt will do the local tossing in the first game, while the hostiles will probably rely on Haines, who used to be poison for the natives but was knocked out of the box the last two times he faced them.

WHILE it will be the final appearance of the Cards here this season, it will be the first appearance of the year of Bill McKechnie as manager of the club.

The last time the Mound City athletes were present, Billy Southworth was in charge, and it was the three defeats they suffered at the hands of the Tribesmen then that caused Owner Sam Breadon to return Southworth to exile in Rochester and take McKechnie back.

The Braves, though, need expect no favors from the new pilot just because they were responsible for bringing him back to the fold, for McKechnie didn't get any break to speak of when he was recalled to about the toughest managerial berth in the land, for one thing, and he always does like to win every game against all opposition, for another. What games the Tribe may win, it will deserve.

McKECHNIE hasn't performed any miracles with the Cards since taking over the reins, but that Breadon's fault rather than the pilot's.

If he had been kept on the job, as he certainly should have been after leading the club to a pennant last season, the Cards would very likely be up there fighting for the flag right now.

Because he was unfortunate enough to drop four straight games to the Yanks in the world's series, the St. Louis fans yelled for his scalp and he was sacrificed on the altar of public opinion.

FAVORITES FAIL TO QUALIFY

WORCESTER COUNTRY CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT FIRST ROUND

D. D. Goodwin, Oak Hill, vs. John Merwin, Concord.

W. L. Brumby, Marlboro, vs. C. A. Crowley, Wollaston.

W. J. Cosgrove, Green Hill, vs. A. V. Ellis, North Shore.

J. Howland, Worcester, vs. H. S. Franklin, Worcester.

W. H. Donnelly, Jr., Woodland, vs. H. G. Dick, Worcester.

By BILL GRIMES

WORCESTER, Aug. 22—Six divisions began match play in the annual Worcester Country Club invitation here today, in what promises to be the fastest tournament ever staged by the local club.

Although the scoring during the qualifying round yesterday was disappointing, only eight of a field of 120 broke the 80, there are more low handicap players here this year than ever graced any of the previous three-day invitations.

Bill Grimes

Among the leading Bay State players who failed to make the championship flights where Joe Lynch, Albe, marle, former junior and caddy champion, Winthrop Hersey, who paves on Saturday for Peeble Beach, and Jimmy Conroy, another ex-junior title holder.

Carl Nettelbladt, Green Hill winner of the Country Club of New Bedford invitation last week, and runner up to Phillips Finley, here last year, who was the medalist yesterday, is playing Clark Hodder, possessor of the trick putter, in the first round. Nettelbladt turned in a 74 yesterday, which was one stroke better than the round shot by Eddie McGrail of Scarboro, winner of the recent Croscup-Pishon Post tournament at Unicorn. McGrail is playing Gordon Brinley of Sandy Burr.

FEATURE MATCH

The Nettelbladt-Hodder match is the class of the opening round, for it brings together a rising youngster and a seasoned veteran. Nettelbladt has been going well for the past month, and is favored to repeat his feat of last week, thereby winning his second medal and match play invitation in two weeks.

Bill Donnelly, the present junior champion, who qualified with a 78 after finishing 7-6-5-4, or five over par for the last four holes, is engaging R. G. Dick of Worcester in the opening round. Donnelly has the game to go right through this tournament, and although little known in this section he may be the talk of the Heart of the Commonwealth by tomorrow night.

Francis Hersey is tackling George Smart, now playing from Longmeadow, who formerly played for the Connecticut State team, and this match should create almost as much interest as the Nettelbladt-Hodder affair. Fran Hersey was many strokes away from his normal game yesterday, but he will be back in the groove today, which spells trouble for the former Nutmeg stater.

Unless Johnny Merwin suffers a relapse such as overtook him in New Bedford, he should experience little trouble with D. D. Goodwin of Oak Hill, and if he gets through the first round he will meet the winner of the Nettelbladt-Hodder match. Charlie Crowley of Wollaston is playing W. L. Brumby, Marlboro, in the upper half of the draw, and although he has better than an even chance of weathering the first round, the outlook is not bright for the Montclair player.

Match play will continue through tomorrow for all six divisions and there will be classes for the Beaten 8's after the first round.

Held vs. Thompson in Canadian Golf

Jasper, Alberta, Aug. 22 (INS)—The Canadian amateur golf championship swings into the third round today with Eddie Held of New York strongly favored to battle his way to the title.

The difficult course here, built in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, holds little terror for Held and his steady game. Yesterday he eliminated M. W. Forrest of Lowell, Mass., runner-up this year in the U. S. collegiate tourney and today meets Frank Thompson of Toronto, twice Canadian champion.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a Hitchcock's partiress and the best are advertised daily in the For Sale columns.

SWEDISH VICTORS HAPPY

SWEDES WIN YACHT CUP

Sweden made a clean sweep of the three-cornered international 30-square meter yacht series at Marblehead when the Bacchant, flying the colors of the Royal Swedish Yacht Club, won over the German boat Kickerle and the American contender Tipler III on the final race.

In addition to the Marblehead Challenge bowl, Skipper Eric Lundberg and his shipmates, Sven Rinman and Carl Plym, lifted the Corinthian Yacht Club cup, which will go overseas to augment the silverware collection in the trophy locker at Stockholm. The point standing for the three-day series was Sweden 9, United States 5 and Germany 4.

The American boat Tipler III sailed by E. A. Shuman, Jr., led the squadron almost to the initial turn upwind when the Bacchant just luffed around first to take the lead and pull away steadily over the next two legs for a four-minute victory.

The Kickerle was second when Skipper Wilhelm Raatsch overlook and passed the Tipler III on the spinnaker run home.

The three boats were sent over a 10-mile triangle in a moderate southwest wind, which hauled more to the southward and provided a beat out the south mark, a broad reach to the southeast mark and a slide home to the line off Six Fathom buoy.

The starting honors went to Capt. Wilhelm Raatsch who timed it to the tick and shot the Kickerle nicely into the weather berth at the flag end of the line with the Tipler under his lee and the Bacchant on the committee boat's extremity.

Tolson to Replace Grimm for Cubs

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Los Angeles Times said today that Angel's outfielder, a fiery right handed hitter of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league, has been called in by the Chicago Cubs to take the place of Charlie Grimm, Cub first sacker, out with a bad arm. The Cubs hold an option on Tolson.

Tolson's batting average with the Angels is .365. He was reported en route east today from Seattle where the Angels are playing this week.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

"THE record gate of $60,376, at the Maloney-Bertazzolo bout proves that Boston is one of the best boxing cities in the United States," said Mr. Boston today. "The net gate, after payment of Federal and State taxes, was $49,911, which gave each of the boxers $12,477 under their percentage arrangements with the club.

JACK CONWAY

"The star boxers are anxious to show in the cities which can draw large crowds. The 27,109 persons at the Maloney-Bertazzolo match places Boston with the leaders.

"New York and Chicago are the only cities which draw larger gates than Boston.

"Detroit and Philadelphia are as good boxing centers as the Hub, but they will have to fight to hold their present positions.

"At the time William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, was considering Boston as a possible site for the proposed Sharkey-Schmeling match, he asked me how much the show would draw here. I told him $400,000 if the top price was $25. I believe this particular match might have done even better here.

"Tex Rickard told me shortly before his untimely death that he was going to give Boston a world's heavyweight championship match. He felt that such events always drew better in a new spot. He pointed with pride to the $1,800,000 gate at the first Dempsey-Tunney match in Philadelphia and the $2,600,000 gate at the second Dempsey-Tunney null at Chicago.

"If a Sharkey-Maloney bout had been possible in Boston this summer, the show would have drawn $200,000.

"As long as Sharkey remains the world's leading heavyweight contender, another Sharkey-Maloney bout is unlikely. Just now Sharkey gets $100,000 and up every time he steps into the ring. No Boston promoter could afford to meet his price for a bout with Shamus.

"If the Sharkey-Loughran bout draws $500,000 at the Yankee Stadium on September 26, the Boston battler will pull down $150,000 for his services.

MISS AGNES FINNERAN,

Eddie Mack's secretary at the Garden, proved she knew a great deal more about gate receipts than some of the more experienced followers of cauliflower when she guessed that the Maloney-Bertazzolo bout would draw a net gate of $49,838. Johnny Buckley was second with an estimate of $49,228. The correct net figure was $49,911.

Dave Egan, $35,110; Rip Valenti, $38,000; W. Willard, $48,294; Frank Ducey, $57,846; Eddie Mack, $45,000; S. H. Fairbanks, $41,151; Capt. Ingersoll, $28,976; Anna, $57,50; Russell Mack, $44,265; H. G. Evans, $29,874; Al Lacey, $49,450; J. Donley, $49,228; A. Finneran, $1[illegible]; P. LaChapelle, $51,000; French, $44,206.27; J. H. O'Brien $37,410; S. Mahoney, $53,000; E. Hurley, $50,000; Harriet Rice, $65,387.75; John Carney, $40,000; Tom Waters, $41,000; C. King, $38,650; La Foy, $61,478.50; J. H. O'Brien, $53,887.50; S. F. Usher banks, $44,444; C. Turner, $41,000; S. R. Simon, $44,559.48; B. Wiseman $54,000; K. Bassett $43,841; H. King, $37,637; 4 brokers, $39,500; Tom Mc-Farland, $43,000; A. Delmont, $62,642; D. Arata, $42,572; H. King, $36,500; Billy Ames, $27,250; J. Carr, $45,320; B. Hamilton, $26,500; Lulu Lonz, $28,000.

FRANK McGOWAN dropped in with the information that the Lieut. Lawrence J. Flaherty Post American Legion will stage a 14-mile road race on Labor Day. The race will feature the annual field day of the post, which will be held at Wood Island Park, East Boston.

Spencer Again King of Pedallers

Some 12,000 fans crowded the Newark velodrome to watch the youthful star wind up a brilliant season of racing by taking the final of the series of twenty-four five-mile sprints.

Spencer has won titles in 1928, 1926 and this season.

LAMB MAKES DEBUT AT REVERE

"FATTY" LAMB of Australia, an up and coming motor pace follower, will make his season's debut at the Revere Cycle Track Saturday night, when he rides in the International Derby of 100 kilometers, or 62 miles. Lamb has been signed to replace Vic DeBates in the race.

Lamb has been riding consistently at New York and Newark and expects to ride home with a victory in the international classic.

George Chapman and Frankie Keenan will represent Uncle Sam in the race, Francesco Zucchetti will wear Italy's colors, Franz Duelberg will uphold Germany, Al Letourneur is French, Lamb, English and Larry Gaffney, Irish.

A little personal feud is due to explode, but it will not be with fists as was the case between Keenan and Letourneur last week. Both the combatants were fined $5 and told to confine their battle feelings to their riding. Each has promised to do so and the battle between these two should be a race in itself.

Freddy Spencer, only recently crowned American sprint champion, and Willie Honeman, runner-up for the title, are booked to meet in a special sprint match, best two one-mile heats in three.

Spencer has had little trouble in beating Honeman, when several riders were in the race, but in a match contest, it is something else again. Honeman is picked by many to pin a defeat on the champion.

The usual amateur and pro races will complete the card.

McEwans Winners

Manchester, Vt., Aug. 22—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McEwan of Albany led a large field in an 18-hole Scotch foursome handicap at the Equinox links club with a net card of 70.

Twixt Tee and Cup

THE Cohasset Country Club will be the mecca of all South Shore golfers for the qualifying round of the South Shore championship, which will take place there today. The South Shore championship is gaining favor annually and the largest field in the history of this event is expected.

The Duxbury Country Club play a[illegible] ers have featured in South Shore championships. Dwight Barnum was the winner two years ago and last season Bill Snow went through to the title, which he eliminate was unable to defend.

However, it will be well for Duxbury and the other South Shore clubs to keep a watchful eye on Gerard W. Moore, Scituate, who was the medalist in the recent junior championship at Pine Burn. Young Moore is capable of shooting championship golf and he is entering this championship determined to make his best showing.

Les Cottrell claims it will be worth the price of a suit of clothes to him to have any player shoot a 70 during the two-day Bear Hill open. Les has been at Bear Hill for three years and he has never been able to step around that layout in such figures and after all of his attempts he is willing to hand anyone an outfit for such a feat.

All that is necessary to win a dozen Spaldings is to equal par at the South Shore Country Club on either Friday or Saturday of this week. In spite of the fact that South Shore is a real test of golf someone is going to come into possession of an armful of agates.

The members of the New Bedford Country Club to a man are pulling for Carl Nettelbladt to win the Worcester Country Club invitation. Carl got off to a fine start by winning the qualifying round and if he can regain yesterday's form, he is going to be the man to beat for the title.

There were three professors from Hotchkiss school playing as the guests of Richard Baldwin, the former St. Louis University Olympic runner at the Country Club of New Bedford recently. Joe Garner Aatill, H. N. White and C. F. Grant. Prof. Astill and White although veterans furnished one of the biggest surprises of the Great Barrington invitation last year by winning the four ball match.

Until such a time as the U. S. G. A. sees fit to make some radical changes in the distribution of golf money, there is going to be a terrible lack of interest in United States open championships as far as the professionals are concerned. There is no denying that power is opens is an expensive proposition for the pros while it is a costless outing for many of the amateurs.

A few of the members of the Thursday Club are leaving for California in a private car next Saturday. Among the penalists will be Henry H. Lapham, Jim Hollis, Charlie Cross and Francis Ouimet.

Up in Park Commissioner William P. Long's office, there is a collection of silverware which will be presented to the winners of the Newspapermen's Golf Association tournament at Franklin Park next Monday. It should be a banner day for the scribes for most of them began their golf at Clapp Park and are anxiously looking forward to Monday.

ZERAMBY OUT FOR MANDELL

The spectacular ring career of 19 year-old Jake Zeramby, Lynn schoolboy, who graduated from the ranks of the preliminary boys and $50 purses to a place at the top of the lightweight class almost over night, is expected to continue successfully when he faces Bruce Flowers, the Ebony Streak, of New Rochelle, N. Y., in the next Boston Garden boxing feature, which will be staged at Braves Field, Tuesday night, September 3.

And, while Flowers is regarded as one of the most formidable of all title contenders in the lightweight class, Zeramby feels capable of punching out another victory and increasing his chances of stepping into the ring with Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion.

MILLS PICKED TO BEAT RAWSON

BIG BOY RAWSON, Dorchester puncher and Bob Mills, heavyweight champion of New Hampshire, will meet in their much discussed return bout next Thursday night at Fenway Park, under the direction of the Arena A. A.

The return match has been in the making since the night when Mills fighting a great uphill battle overcame Rawson's long lead and knocked him out in the sixth round. That was one of the most sensational heavyweight fights ever contested in a Boston ring, and was one of the major upsets of the indoor fistic season as Rawson was a top-heavy favorite.

Mills however will be the favorite when they square off a week from tonight. The 230-pounder from New Hampshire proved in his previous bout with Rawson that he can take everything the Dorchester heavyweight can throw and get up for more. Since then he has defeated Italian Jack Herman and has successfully defended his New Hampshire heavyweight championship against Tiger Tom Dixon, floating Dixon four times in the first round.

A defeat for Rawson will put him out in the cold and end his promising ring career. He has scored 17 knockouts in 18 professional bouts, losing only to Miller but if Mills bangs another knockout on him the Dorchester heavyweight will be through for good.

Rochester Golfers Win

Rochester, N. H., Aug. 22—In the final game in the schedule of the New Hampshire State Four-ball Golf League on the links of the Rochester Country Club Rochester defeated the Amoskeag Country Club of Manchester 3 to 0.

Dorchester Twi Nine in Sensational Spurt

TEAM WINS 4 GAMES IN ROW

By DICK McSWEENEY

WHILE the three-cornered fight among Quincy, Salem, and Roslindale for top honors continues to occupy the attention of Twi League fans, the remarkable spurt of the Dorchester club deserves men-

One week ago today, Dorchester was in seventh place and the local fans, dissatisfied with conditions, began to pan manager Harry Galvin.

As if in rebuke to the complaints of the fans, the club went out and took Malden into camp on Friday night and followed it up with a win over Roslindale on Sunday.

score and just to demonstrate that the same feat could be accomplished twice, dumped Southie, 6—4 on Tuesday.

DORCHESTER did not have a game scheduled for last night, but will go into action tonight at Malden. Manager Galvin expects his charges to continue their winning streak and will send Jim Shea to the hill after the club's fifth straight win.

Malden will use Eddie Gill, former Dorchester hurler, as the class test shapes up as a nine inning thriller with the Malden pitcher striving for a victory over his former mates, while they in turn are battling for a higher berth in the standings.

Salem should be all set for South Boston tonight. The Witch City team had a fray billed with Taunton last night, but did not play it as carpenters are busy building a fence around Donovan Field, Salem.

If the work is completed by Saturday, Salem expects to entertain the Taunton club at that time.

IN tonight's melee, Salem is liable to start Joe Bishop, but it recently picked up in an effort to better the team's chances of taking second half honors. Opposed to Batchelder will be McNulty, one of South Boston's most dependable boxmen.

South Boston has crumpled under successive beatings at the hands of Dorchester and a win over Salem tonight would be in the nature of a token both for the club's playing and the incidental gate, or rather piste, receipts.

Relief does not appear to be in sight for Southie tonight, however. Salem is getting more than it's share of breaks, hits, and pitching and there is no reason to believe that the fortunes of the Witch City will suffer a decline.

Roslindale is finding the road to second half laurels a bit rocky but hopes for smoother footing at Reading tonight. The local ball-hawks will look over the slants of Frank Millikan, one of the many Roslindale mound aces.

STAR BACK IN LINEUP OF WOODSIES

By BILL McAULEY

THE Woodsies management has adjusted the grievance which Dave McEachren had with them and the star left forward will be included in the lineup against the New York Nationals which club the locals

McEachren, however, will be shifted over to the right wing for this game with Nilsen partnering him. Freddy Wall, the ex-Philly star, will be given another chance to lead the local front line and with Sunderland and Gordon Burness on the left wing he may strike his last favorite who was given his unconditional release in the middle of last season when his knee went bad, and who was reported to have signed for Fall River a couple of weeks ago, will also be included in Saturday's lineup, the center-half and the local management coming to terms.

Should Priestly's leg stand up, and he is quite certain that it will, the locals will be much better balanced in the defense, the Hub pivot being one of the best in the game.

The place of the clash with the Nationals is in doubt, there being a possibility of it being played at the old Tech Field in Brookline, which is very adaptable to soccer.

Should the local club fail to obtain this ground it will be played in Fenway Park.

The reason for the change is that the outfield at Fenway doesn't seem to make a hit with the fans and it is impossible to play along the diamond near first base until after the baseball season closes.

When the ball season does close a shift will be made there and the fans will be able to watch a game in comfort protected from the elements.

MANCHESTER AND LYNN BATTLE

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

THE Lynn Stadium will be jammed to capacity today when Lynn and Manchester battle in a doubleheader which will go a long way towards settling the second half winner.

The first game starts at 3 o'clo k. Manchester has a two-game lead on their Lynn Rivals.

The two clubs will play again at Manchester Saturday.

Pennant day at Lynn, was well celebrated, the home club winning the ball game. Governor Allen, with other State officials, were on hand to assist in the ceremonies. The league banner was unfurled by the governor.

Jack Cushman and Dewey Spaulding, engaged in a pitcher's battle, the Lynn twirler proving to be the more effective, when hits meant runs.

Besides the two games at Lynn, there are two other contests on the schedule. New Bedford goes to Portland, and Brockton visits Lewiston.

Joe Murphy, ex-Holy Cross and Lewiston catcher, attempted to twirl a game for the Fitchburg club, which resulted in a disastrous ending. Manchester garnered 17 hits for a total of 14 runs.

Shayback and Dorman, second baseman and shortstop of Manchester, had a great day with the stick, both getting four hits out of five times at bat.

Everyone on the Manchester club got at least one hit, with the exception of Bill Bailey, the pitcher.

Gen. Butler, Nashua twirler, held Brockton to four hits and his teammates banged out 11, yet he was barely able to win the game, 8 to 4.

Bob Walsh won the game in the ninth inning, when he cracked out a single with the bases loaded, scoring Butler, which was enough to win.

IN THE BEGINNING

ROWING NO. 2—College Rowing in England

THE preparatory school of Eaton is generally credited with having blazed the trail which led to the establishment of college rowing in England. As early as 1811 Eton put a 10-oared and three eight-oared boats into the water, but what the crews of the would boasts accomplished history saith not. Two years later the Westminster school manned a six-oared boat, the Fly.

In 1818, Eton challenged Westminster School to row from Westminster to Kew bridge against the tide, but the race never took place, owing to objection by the London authorities.

Eleven years later the crews of the two schools competed and the contests were repeated at intervals until 1847. There was a slight revival in the sixties, but the competitions did not continue long, as rowing in 1868 or shortly thereafter was discontinued at Westminster.

Rowing at Oxford began in 1815 and at Cambridge a few years later. At both institutions the sport for some years was of an intramural character. The first Oxford-Cambridge race was rowed in 1829 over the Henley course. After an interval of seven years the crews of the two universities met again, this time rowing from Westminster to Putney. The first race was won by Oxford and the second by Cambridge. The Light Blue was again winner when the races were resumed in 1839, from which year the competitions have been fairly continuous.

In 1856 the first keeless, smooth-bottomed boat was used at the Henley regatta by the Leander club and its success led to the general adoption of the type of boat.

PENNSYLVANIA STOCK CROSSES $100 MARK

Continued good earnings with probability of a stock allotment in the fall and possibility of an increase in dividend are responsible for renewed buying of Pennsylvania, which carried it to a new peak just short of double par Local financial circles feel certain of the stock allotment, although opinion is divided as to an increase in dividend rate at this time

Amount and price of stock allotment is a matter of conjecture, but many guess 10 per cent at par, as they feel shareholders are entitled to some remuneration for the cut in annual dividend in the early post-war period to a point where that the stock earlier for years was limited to the long established 6 per cent rate while wage and supply and material bills were substantially higher than pre-war days

Although Pennsylvania does not have any industry to meet until spring, a stock allotment may be made at an early date to give stock holders ample opportunity to exercise rights for additional shares

In March, 1928, Pennsylvania made a 12½ per cent stock allotment at par, $50. It was then selling around 70, and the allotment gave stockholders rights which initially around 2¼. At 100 a 10 per cent stock allotment at par, $50, would give rights worth about $5 each, right worth initially $4.50 At 100 a share a 10 per cent allotment at $60 would give rights worth about $3.63

The 12½ per cent stock allotment in 1928 resulted in issuance of $62,500,250 additional stock, bringing outstanding capital Dec. 31, 1928, to $561,673,950. This was exclusive of $17,500,000 stock offered to employees at par in 1928 with privilege of making 10 payments of $5 each or 25 of $2 each Estimating outstanding stock will be increased this fall to $573,000,000, a 10 per cent stock allotment would result in issuance of $57,500,000, and if new shares are sold at a premium of $15 per share company would realize total premiums of $11,500,000

Employees who elected to pay for stock in 25 monthly installments will complete their payments this month and certificates will be delivered to them in September Those who elected to pay at rate of $2 per share a month have also been given the privilege of anticipating future payments and receiving stock certificates in some quarters this is interpreted as a move to place these employees in position to participate in the next allotment on the same terms as other stockholders

Last April stockholders were also given privilege of subscribing to shares of the new Pennroad Corp. at $15 a share on basis of one share of Pennroad for each 2 shares of Pennsylvania, and this resulted in additional valuable rights, as Pennroad has since sold at $30, or double subscription price, and is selling currently around $27

Pennsylvania has $50,000,000 10-year seven per cent secured gold bonds maturing April 1, 1930, and raising funds to pay off these bonds is the basis for estimates of a 10 per cent stock allotment which would produce $57,500,000 or $60,000,000 depending on whether shares are sold at $50 or $60

There have been a number of rumors that the dividend rate would be increased to 10 per cent from 8 per cent, but many of these have had their origin in speculative circles. On August 31 Pennsylvania will pay only its second quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on par, having been increased to an 8 per cent from a 7 per cent basis only last April. The next dividend is due November 30

Rumors of a further increase in dividend rate have been based on continued expansion in earnings, the company having earned the full year's dividend of 8 per cent in first six months Earnings are continuing to make great strides and unless there should be a sharp let-up in final months of the year it is estimated the company will earn over 16 per cent on the outstanding stock, or more than double the present 8 per cent rate. Pennsylvania set a record for the first half at $63,318,909, against $50,760,063 in first half of 1928, increase $14,558,846 and $11,558,846 in first half of 1927, increase $14,193,496 Net for June was $12,020,-998, against $10,203,032 in June 1928, increase $1,817,966, and $9,398,420 in June, 1927, increase $2,622,578. The statement for July will make another good showing.

July gross gave no indication of the usual summer slowing down in business. Car loadings for five weeks ended August 3 were 848,133 cars, against 794,850 in corresponding period of 1928, increase 53,503 or nearly 7 per cent. For week ended August 3 loadings were 176,583 cars, against 163,518 in corresponding week of 1928, and for the week ended August 10 they were 174,796 cars, against 161,689 in 1929, showing the early summer momentum is continuing through this month.

Babbitt Metal Sales

The total apparent consumption of Babbitt metal in July, based on reports received by the Department of Commerce from 31 firms, was 8,360,711 pounds, as compared with 8,929,607 in June and 4,692,858 in July, 1928.

Brokers Turn to Banks as Bootleg Loan Gain Sags

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug 22 Brokers in recent months have gone to an increasing extent to established banking channels for additional loans instead of to outlaw bootleg lenders

That little emphasized change in the source of additional financial fuel for feeding the flames of speculation is highly significant For example, it tends to make the Federal Reserve authorities more sensitive to brokers' loan increases, and threatens to give the market a more inflationary character The funds which came from bootleg lenders were presumably capital or savings, at least to a considerable extent, whereas that which comes from the banks is very largely manufactured credit, with which the Federal Reserve authorities are directly concerned

In the recovery of stock prices since late in May, the demand for brokers' loans appears to have come until the Federal Reserve Bank of New York raised its rediscount rate to 6 per cent, but there was a diminishing rate of increase in bootleg loans in terms of the total increase in brokers' loans in this quarter

The relatively high interest rates prevailing in June and July are largely explained largely by the fact that the banks were then supplying an increased ratio of the expansion and responded only when lured by very high bids for money Since the shakeout, occasioned by the action of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, interest rates have been somewhat lower, and the total decrease last week in brokers' loans outstanding. The decline in loans to non-banking sources was far from weak, thinly margined buyers to purchasers who operated entirely on cash or, at least, put up broker margins.

With 27 leading dividend-paying railroad stocks now selling 12 times their current annual earnings, it is interesting to observe that 16 representative public utility holding companies have been selling 31 times their earnings for the 12 months ended June 30 last. The simple comparison does not prove that railroad stocks will go up faster in the future than public utilities, but it does emphasize the truth that the opportunity to purchase earning power (and actual assets) far cheaper in the railroad than in the public utility field. In buying utilities, the new buyer is paying a huge premium in expectation of a steady future progression in earning power. If the expected long term prosperity materializes, it is difficult to see why the well managed carriers should not also participate in natural growth, as they are, in fact, now doing

5,500,000 CARS SEEN AS 1929 OUTPUT

Philadelphia, Aug. 22—Automotive industries this week held out a

Automobile production during the last several days has shown a slight tendency to recede from the peak of the month, when the factories, taken as a whole, showed increased activity as compared with July, and a considerable advance over the level of last year. With the continuation for the early months of 1930 of the favorable conditions of demand in the field and the consequent high production thus far this year, early predictions of 5,000,000 automobiles and trucks in the United States and Canada for the year generally have been revised upwards

Production during the first seven months of the year has been estimated at 3,920,000 units and in the absence of any indication of widespread curtailment in the industry as a whole, estimates for the year's output have been placed at 5,500,000 in many quarters, a total of 6,000,000 units as the possible showing of entire industry for the year is considered by a number of factors within reason, in view of the huge increase in export business.

Taking an estimate of 500,000 cars and trucks for August production, a figure considered conservative by the first seven months' production trends, and adding this to the estimated production of 3,920,000 units for the first seven months of the year, gives the tentative figure of 4,420,000 cars and trucks for the first eight months of the year. This would leave 1,080,000 units to be produced in the last four months in order to bring the total for the year to 5,500,000 for the entire industry, or an average of 270,000. This would compare with an actual output of 1,304,777 units for the last four months of last year.

While, of course, it is too early to predict the extent of possible curtailment in the last four months of this year, this being dependent upon the demand in the field, the opinion prevails that it will be sufficient to bring the year's total below 5,500,000 is rare.

IRON AND STEEL TAPERING OFF

The Iron Age says: A tapering demand is yet to be reflected definitely in mill operations, which are still at capacity rates in the leading districts. Meanwhile shipments are cutting heavily into backlogs in some lines and in relatively small quantities and in less aggregate volume than last month. Indications point to lower motor car output next month.

Other metal working industries are on high production schedules and apparently are consuming steel in undiminished tonnage. Notable among the most active lines are building construction and manufacture of oil tanks, fabricated pipe, farm tractors and railroad cars.

Plates are in strongest position among finished steel products. Chicago plate mills are booked for four to 10 weeks and Pittsburgh mills six to eight weeks. At Chicago 50,000 tons of plates are now ordered for oil tanks to be built in the Southwest, and 15,000 tons for similar work are pending

In sheets specifications are holding up fairly well, despite the decline in consumption by the automobile industry. The leading sheet producer is operating its mills at just above 100 per cent of capacity and has a backlog sufficient for 60 days.

Tube mills are operating at about 65 per cent, which is considered a good rate in view of the large tonnage placed in recent months, a ness which has gone in recent months to a fabricator of pipe electrically welded from plates. Recently 250,000 tons of pipe will be required for a gas line from Amarillo, Tex., to Omaha and Chicago, and 200,000 tons for a pipeline, a 10,000-ton pipe line at Everett, Wash., is up for bids.

Pig iron output is about a 75 per cent operation, will soon reach the end of their orders, with the beginning of the fall buying movement at least four to six weeks off. Mill schedules may be reduced somewhat in the first September 1.

Iron Age composite prices remain at last week's levels, pig iron at $18 a ton, finished steel at 2.396 cents a pound. Pig iron is $1.35 higher than a year ago and finished steel $1 a net ton higher.

Distillers Show Increased Profit

National Distillers Products Corp. reports for six months ending June 30 net profit of $320,945 after depreciation, but before federal taxes, against $61,175 in the 1928 period.

For quarter ending June 30 profit was $88,666 before federal taxes, against $152,692 in the June quarter of 1928.

CALL Money opened at 7 per cent again.

U. S. RUBBER reports balance of 87 cents a share on 8 per cent preferred stock for first six months of 1929.

FINANCING FOR EXPANSION

Business of Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. is increasing so rapidly that it has become necessary to consider further financing despite the fact that only a few months ago it offered additional stock, which brought in about $2,600,000.

As a preliminary to financing needs, directors last week voted to split present stock on a four-for-one basis, and to increase authorized stock to 2,000,000 shares from 500,000. On the new capital basis, on which stockholders will vote Sept. 20, there will be outstanding 1,150,000 shares, against the present 288,000.

An indication of expansion this year is shown by six months' report to June 30, when net profits have been running 60 per cent ahead of similar period of 1928, sales billed 26 per cent ahead and net 60 per cent ahead

Unfilled orders June 30 last were $15,657,366 and were $5,569,-279 greater than a year before an increase of 55 per cent. On July 31 unfilled orders totaled $16,200,000 and were substantially in excess of a year ago.

Just what form the new offering of stock will take has not been disclosed, pending action on the increase by stockholders next month. Assuming approval, however, it is possible at least 36,000 shares will be offered, bringing the total outstanding to an even 1,200,000 shares for the present year. Stockholders would be given right to purchase new stock in ratio of one share for each 20 held

The new stock is expected to be placed on a $2 annual basis, the equivalent of $8 on present stock, on which $7 is being paid The dividend policy is conservative, as evidenced by the fact that the company in first half earned practically a full year's dividends.

Convertible Now Goes on New Basis

Charles W. Kellogg, president of Engineering Public Service Company, announced that over 160,000 shares of the company's $5 dividend convertible preferred stock has now been converted into common stock. The basis of conversion, therefore, changes from annually from 16 shares of common for each 10 preferred to 15 common for each 10 preferred for the last 160,000 shares outstanding.

COPPER SELLS AT PREMIUM

A London correspondent writes:

"Manufacturers of copper and brass in Great Britain are said in trade circles to be booked only moderately ahead, and that only against five months ahead earlier this year.

"The better buying of copper is due to consumers having completely exhausted stocks bought on the last movement a few months ago. Cases are reported of premiums being paid for prompt deliveries.

"Additional small lots of rough copper have been withdrawn from warehouses since August, for shipment to refineries in America.

"It is said that the Germans have been sellers of rough copper here to the extent of 1,000 tons this year, finding this a better way to dispose of it than to send it to America, as formerly. Germany's imports of copper have increased recently, being for the first half of this year 156,000 metric tons, or only 12,250 tons less than in the corresponding period last year. Her imports of copper ore, concentrates, matte, etc., for the same period were much larger, 257,099 tons, against 158,210 tons a year ago.

"Before the price advanced copper was taking the place of lead, and also to some extent of zinc, in the countries of Europe that are most advanced industrially. Now as compared with last year's average prices, copper is up £15; lead is up about £2, and zinc is a few shillings per long ton lower. In consequence, lead and zinc are being faced again by competition, also being used more largely than a year ago as a substitute for brass.

"Though not a large tonnage of copper is being displaced by this competition, it is significant, it is the growth in the amount that is significant. Fabricators of copper, generally, believe copper too high, are urging consumers to use lead, zinc or aluminum in its place."

Amerada Brings in Wildcat Well

Amerada Corporation, drilling in partnership with Hunter Bounds, Inc., reports that the Haught Well No. 1, in section 191 of the B. B. & C. survey in Fisher County, Texas, was swabbing ten barrels hourly, or 120 barrels daily at a depth of 5,123 feet. The well, which is uncompleted, is located five miles from the nearest drilling well and is located on a 2,500 acre tract which Amerada owns in partnership with Rosser & Pendleton.

NATIONAL CITY IN BIG HAVANA HOTEL DEAL

Representing an important contribution of American capital to the Cuban government's extensive program of improvements designed to establish Havana as an outstanding resort center in the Western Hemisphere, The National City Co and United States Realty and Improvement Co. announce that they have agreed to sponsor the financing, construction and management of the National Hotel of Cuba, a project which will be larger than any hotel now on the island. This hotel, which will contain approximately 500 rooms and will occupy a 12-acre site on the Malecon, immediately adjacent to the Maine Monument Park, will be built and land appropriated by the government and leased free of rental for 60 years to an American corporation organized to erect and operate the structure. The financing of this enterprise will follow in general outline the plan developed by The National City Co. and United States Realty and Improvement Co. in which a public offering takes the form of a projected investment security yielding a liberal rate of return combined with a permanent participation in the profits of the company through ownership of common stock.

The financial program provides for an actual investment of more than $7,000,000 in the enterprise, covering the estimated cost of the building, architects' fees, carrying charges during construction, provision for working capital, etc. The required funds will be obtained through the public offering by The National City Company of $6,250,000 20-year six per cent income debentures and 62,500 shares of common stock of the National Hotel of Cuba Corporation and the sale to the United States Realty and Improvement Company of 15,000 shares of $6 cumulative preferred stock without par value, comprising the entire issue, and part of the common stock for a cash sum of more than $1,300,000.

The debentures and common stock will be placed on the market in units, consisting of $100 principal amount of debentures and one share of common stock, and will be priced at $100 per unit.

Plans for the hotel, which have been prepared by McKim, Mead & White in the style of the Spanish renaissance, are designed to attract not only winter tourists but also visitors throughout the year. The need for a high-class hotel of this character is indicated in the growing appreciation of the advantages Havana offers as a resort, the trend of tourist figures showing a rapid increase in the volume of tourist travel.

Upon completion of the buildings, which are expected to be ready for the tourist season of 1930-31, the net earnings of the corporation, after amortization, available for interest and United States income taxes, are estimated at $935,200 per annum, equivalent to approximately 2.6 times the maximum annual interest charges on the income debentures.

Pending complete retirement of the income debentures and preferred stock, net earnings, after interest, taxes and preferred dividends, are to be applied to the retirement of these issues, all of which calculated on the basis of estimated earnings, will have been retired on or before March 1, 1942. After such retirements the estimated earnings also calculated as equivalent to more than $6.30 a share annually on the 147,000 shares of common stock to be presently outstanding. The lease will extend for 30 years beyond the maturity of the debentures, and for more than 47 years beyond the date when retirement of all debentures and preferred stock is expected to clear the way for payment of dividends on the common. At the expiration of the 30-year period, the land and improvements will revert to the Cuban government.

Cuban Dominican Deposits Are Urged

Immediate deposit of The Cuban Dominican Sugar Co. 6% 10-year sinking fund 7½ per cent gold bonds, due November 1, 1944, in approval of the plan recently announced to provide $4,000,000 in cash for current-year maturities of underlying obligations, interest payments on outstanding bonds and for other corporate purposes, is urged in a notice being sent out by the bondholders' committee, comprising The National City Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., Cassatt & Co., Potter & Co., and W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc. The action is recommended to avoid any postponement of the meeting of bondholders scheduled for September 5 to act upon the plan. The City Bank Farmers Trust Co. is serving as depositary under the plan and certificates of deposit being listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Declaring that it is obviously to the advantage of all bondholders to deposit their bonds, the committee reports that the plan has already met with widespread approval of the bondholders, as evidenced by the volume of deposits to date. The plan and the $4,000,000 underwriting, however, will absolutely be conditioned upon prompt approval of the plan by more than 75 per cent of the $13,750,000 7½ per cent issue of bonds outstanding. The committee draws particular attention to the fact that the plan and underwriting agreement involve no assessment, no obligation to purchase stock, and no expense in any kind whatsoever to any depositing bondholder.

Whalan's Dummy Admirals Made Tobacco King Give In

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (INS)—Back of the big financial transfers control of the United Cigar Stores Company of America from George J. Whalan and associates to a syndicate headed by George K. Morrow, chairman of the Gold Dust Corporation, is a romantic story of business that has few parallels.

It is the story of George J. Whalan, the man who automatically retired those "wooden Indians" you used to see poised, tomahawk in hand, before the cigar stores of the country years ago, and of the kind of a story Horatio Alger would have reveled in writing.

Whalan, it is related, got the idea of a national chain of cigar stores on a visit to New York years ago from his home in Syracuse, N. Y., where, as the youngest of seven brothers, he was in the family business of selling plugs, cigarettes and tobacco goods.

On this particular day he saw plenty of cigar stores — with "wooden Indians" outside—but in none of them could he buy a good, fresh cigar. This amazed him. Why, even New York, blase, up-to-the-minute New York, countenanced the "wooden Indian" and musty cigar stores, too.

So, in 1901, a widewake, enterprising man named Whalan, Whalan opened the first of the chain of United Cigar Stores in a basement on Broadway at 34th st., with the proverbial "Shoe String," plus an idea. He put the idea over in a big way—"and how," as they say, along Main st.

The United Cigar Stores and affiliated companies grew to the point where today it is credited with assets of more than $200,000,000 and operates the largest cigar store system in the country.

How did Whalan, sans money, accomplish this great feat? Well, no one knew better than he did that it took more than an idea to make his dream a reality. First of all he made a success of his little store in Nassau st. There wasn't any "Wooden Indian" in front of it. He made it The "Model Cigar Shop," which had as its slogan.

"The goods to the customer—don't ask him to step to the other end of the counter to get them."

It went over—big.

Whalan dreamed a similar store "on every busy street corner." But, in 1901, the "chain store idea" was a new one and it was hard to get financed. Whalan conceived the idea of meeting James B. Duke, tobacco king, and interesting him in the project. Besides he wanted to sell Duke some of the old American Tobacco Trust and not those of small manufacturers

Duke, after profits, mere deals, quicker turnover," were things in the back of Whalen's active mind. He couldn't seem to meet Duke, then a very busy man. He was repeatedly rebuffed. Finally, in desperation, he purchased a number of young men and dressed them up as admirals. Whalan was then ready for a cigarette called "The Admiral."

The mannikins followed Duke everywhere he went. The tobacco king was surprised at seeing so many admirals those days. Finally, he humbled," he went to Whalen that he could see him and, once they met, an alliance was quickly formed.

SOUTH BOSTON GETS BIG A & P BUILDING

Construction of a building in South Boston, opposite Boston harbor, to serve the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company as a terminal in connection with receiving, storing and shipping fresh vegetables, fruits and fish to more than 1000 of its stores in New England territory, will be financed through the investment banking house of Harris & Forbes and the Century Trust Company of Baltimore, of a new issue of $425,000 Massachusetts Chain Store Terminals, Inc., first mortgage leasehold 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, due 1939.

The bonds, which will carry non-detachable stock purchase warrants, entitling the holder to purchase at $5 a share 10 shares of Class A stock of the corporation for each $1000 principal amount of bonds, at any time prior to August 1, 1934, are being offered today at par.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company has leased the entire property for an annual rental of $61,000 for a period extending beyond the maturity of these bonds. The total annual rent is assigned to the trustee and $51,199 applied by it to the annual ground rent and interest and sinking fund requirements of this loan, the balance being paid to the corporation. The lessee pays all light, heat, power, water and expenses of up-keep, with the exception of outside repairs, insurance and taxes. The amortization of funded debt is expected to result in a substantial increase in the equity for the 28,000 shares of capital stock of the corporation.

AUTO EXPORTS BOOM FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S.

Washington, Aug. 22 (INS)—Exports of finished manufactured goods during the month of June 30 amounted to $2,500,000,000, nearly half of the total foreign sales of $5,374,000,000, the Department of Commerce announced.

Finished products accounted for the month's gain in the increase in export values of $497,000,000 over the preceding fiscal year.

A large part of the growth in exports was due to the record sale of automobiles, the value of which was $581,000,000. Automobile exports increased 39 per cent, Ten times as many automobiles were shipped abroad as in 1922.

Exports to Canada increased 15 per cent and aggregated $938,000,000. Heavy exports of grains ultimately destined for Europe were made to Canada. Considerable gains were made in the shipment of coal, gasoline, machinery, automobiles and iron and steel.

Latin-American exports increased six per cent over the year before on a total of $430,000,000. Exports to Mexico were nine per cent higher while those to Cuba showed a decline.

Argentina was the leading Latin-American purchaser for American goods, making purchases of $207,000,000, a gain of 23 per cent.

Exports to Europe totaled $2,397,000,000. Increases in exports to a majority of European countries were partly offset by decreases in trade with Germany, the Netherlands and Soviet Russia. There was a large expansion in exports to Italy and France, chiefly in the heavier sales to China and Japan. Australian exports gained nine per cent.

Midland Utilities in Illinois Merger

The Midland Utilities Investment Company has acquired the General Utilities Company which supplies electricity, gas and transportation to diana with electric service and two with water service

Chilean Municipal Loan Is Offered

A banking group comprising Grace National Bank, Brown Brothers & Co., E. H. Rollins & Sons and Continental Illinois Co are making public offering of a new issue of $15,000,000 31-year 7 per cent external sinking fund gold bonds series "A" 1929 of the Chilean Consolidated Municipal Loan. These bonds, which are dated September 1, 1929, and mature September 1, 1960, are priced at 94 and interest to yield 7.50 per cent. Of this offering $1,000,000 bonds have been withdrawn for simultaneous sale in Holland by the Amsterdamsche Bank of Amsterdam

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN WOOL TEXTILES

Developments of a construction nature have taken place in the wool textile situation recently, with a decided expansion in the demand for worsteds and continued good activity in woolens, according to a statement made by President John J. Martin of The Exchange Trust Company.

"Prices of goods for the spring of 1930 revealed declines that were moderate in view of the weakness that has prevailed in raw wools," says the bankers report. "While competition is keen, the prices named by larger manufacturers are tending to have a stabilizing effect upon the trade.

"Style plays a particularly important part in the present woolen and worsted markets. This is true to such an extent that small well managed mills with quick adaptability to changing fashion trends have an advantage over many larger mills with a greater amount of equipment.

"Recently manufacturers have developed new fabrics for women's wear fabrics, with the result that bookings thus far are reported well in excess of last year. Fall deliveries in some cases are being extended until September or early October.

"Raw wool prices are about 15 per cent below the level of August, 1928. There was heavy buying of raw wool in July and this was reflected in some decline of sales in August.

"Price recessions have been more pronounced for fine wools than for the coarse grades. The drop in prices is not due to any great excess in supply, because stocks in the United States in July were 10.8 per cent lower than one year ago. The price drop has been affected by the world quotations, the latest London auction resulting in the lowest prices of the year at that great wool mart.

"One fact tending to some unsettlement in the outlook for raw wool, is the large amount now being shipped on consignment. It seems that there was little trading in wool futures, and the holding of buyers has left much wool in the hands of growers and pools. These holders are now shipping their wool to the London market to be sold at a stated price. The tariff of 31c a pound on wool has helped to maintain the price of wool in this country. On the whole, the situation with respect to raw wool presents no elements of uncertainty, but distinct improvement is noted in wool markets with prices holding fairly steady."

38 P. C. GAIN FOR N. E. POWER

New England Power Association, controlled by International Hydro-Electric System, a subsidiary of International Paper and Power Company, produced 140,677,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy in June, an increase of 38 per cent over the output of the association in July, 1928, and 79 per cent over that of July, 1927. In the first seven months of this year the output of New England Power Association was 1,000,583,000 kilowatt hours, 31 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1928 and 70 per cent greater than in the first seven months of 1927. The output of the association in the 12 months ended July 31, 1929, was 1,814,905,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 28 per cent over the output of the association in the 12 months ended July 31, 1928.

The 185,000 horsepower hydro-electric plant of New England Power Association, now under construction at the lower Fifteen Mile Falls site on the upper Connecticut river, will have the capacity of the hydro-electric plants of the association to 414,500 horsepower. In addition to the 185,000 horsepower of the Fifteen Mile Falls development, the New England Power Association has a steam-electric plants. The Fifteen Mile Falls development is the largest hydro-electric development in the New England states and is scheduled for operation October 1 of next year.

With the completion of the lower Fifteen Mile Falls development, International Hydro-Electric System which controls both New England Power Association and Canada Hydro-Electric Corporation, Limited—will have hydro-electric plants in the United States and Canada of an aggregate capacity of 1,037,109 horsepower installed and in operation

Kreuger & Toll in Big Pulp Deal

A holding company to take over majority control of ten saw mill and pulp mill concerns in northern Sweden has been formed by Kreuger & Toll Co. and Svenska Handelsbanken. It will control approximately 600,000 cubic meters a annual production of wood pulp.

Kreuger & Toll Co. stated: "The companies in the new holding company are earning at a satisfactory rate but it is expected earnings can be increased through the consolidation. All snares in the new holding company will be taken over by Kreuger & Toll Co. The formation is part of the company's policy to make investments in large industrial enterprises of different natures in order to make the basis for its expansion as broad as possible"

HARRIS, Forbes, E. H. Rollins & Sons and Coffin & Burr will soon offer $15,000,000 refunding mortgage 6 per cent bonds of Southern California Edison.

MISSOURI PIPE LINE STRIKES OIL IN KY.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line Co has struck oil in Muhlenberg County, Kentucky. This announcement was accompanied by a statement from Frank B. Paris, president, that the discovery will add hundreds of thousands of dollars in value to the company's holdings in western Kentucky. He added that the company is preparing to enter into the active production of petroleum, particularly on its leases in the vicinity of Greenville

Mr. Paris said that Missouri-Kansas has 1000 acres under lease in the heart of the new oil discovery. The fact that the area, which is three and a half miles square is at the top of structures and is proven geologically, has led veteran oil men to assert that the company's field will develop into one of the largest in the State Kentucky is noted for its large oil developments in recent years, particularly in the territory where Missouri Kansas is operating

The company's well No 1 is to be "shot" this week First oil was struck at a depth of 1850 feet, with W. J. Hughey, a vice president in charge of the operations S J Madden, another Missouri Kansas vice president, in charge of the company officials, took an airplane from Kansas City to Kentucky in time to witness the first oil development arrived

Other high gravity oil wells have been drilled in the field, 1500 barrels a day have been drilled in in this same general territory and Missouri Kansas brought in one small well last May

Drilling rigs are now being rushed to the company's leases and directly'le in intensify operations

Missouri Kansas, with principal offices in Chicago, has been actively entered Kentucky last January to develop natural gas resources and now controls through lease or gas purchase contract, more than 60000 acres in eight western counties of the state

The company began supplying natural gas service to Owensboro Ky., in the fall of 1928 and has now a reserve of several million cubic feet of gas on top of the ground

The subsidiary pipe line company is Missouri Kansas Pipe Line Co. which operates a principal operations, aside from Kentucky, are in Kansas and Missouri where it supplies natural gas from its fields in Kansas to Kansas City, Mo., and dozen other cities and towns in the two states

The stock of the company is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange and on the New York Curb Association

GOOD BUYING IN CHEMICALS

New York, August 22 - Production of chemicals so far this year has been on an enlarged scale Consuming demand has been an almost daily expansion and stocks have not accumulated in sellers' hands. Chemical & Metallurgical Engineering reports Prices held actively firm in the absence of active buying, and under such conditions Lower price levels are not probable.

While the weighted index for the month was slightly lower, it for the most part reflected adjustment in sales quotations for nitrogenous fertilizer materials and did not indicate any weakness in the position of general heavy chemicals. The most important price factor to rise was that of phenol are using their current production to fill existing orders and have withdrawn from the market the quotations purely nominal and buyers would find difficulty in obtaining supplies at any figure if immediate delivery were in question Alcohol has been an item of firmer tendency during the set since the tariff situation opened up the possibility of a higher import duty on blackstrap molasses

SEABOARD AIR LINE DEPOSITS

An extension in date for deposit of 5½ per cent adjustment mortgage gold bonds (due 1949) of Seaboard Air Line Railway Co. until September 6 next has been announced by Charles S McLam, chairman of the protective committee, with Robert L. Nutt, chairman of board of Seaboard Air Line Railway Co., Potomac & Ohio stated that $24,924,000, or 79 per cent of the total of $25,000,000 of these bonds, had been tendered up to August 16 last. More have been turned in since. The statement follows in part "As the deposit period has been a long one, it is believed that many holders of undeposited bonds have not deposited their bonds because due to absence from their customary residences they have not learned of the plan or have not had ready access to their bonds.

"It is the conviction that the consummation of the plan is greatly to the benefit of all adjustment bondholders and the committee accordingly urges the undeposited adjustment bonds to deposit them promptly

One of Most Trying Times, Says Noted Physician

By Louis E. Bisch, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

THE adolescent period is one of the most trying times for the boy and girl. It usually begins at about fourteen.

It is then that the individual is almost swamped by the thousands of impressions that crowd in upon his mind, some from outside himself from the environment in which he happens to be placed, and some from within his own body and mind.

Adolescence is a kind of re birth It is the great viaduct of life that spans childhood and adulthood

The child, often for the first time, realizes that he is an individual with instinctive demands that seem to crave fulfillment. That is why he becomes so confused, why he chafes under any restraint that may be imposed upon him

At one and the same time his physical being is changing, he feels older and more self-assured, yet he still wants to cling to his parents to be petted and be sympathized with, to be protected

Usually adolescents, whether masculine or feminine, feel that they are misunderstood. They believe no one has ever lived who has been exactly as themselves They wonder what life is all about

In trying to get the adolescent's point of view and in helping him over his or her difficulties, it is well to ask oneself the following questions:

Is excessive day dreaming being indulged in?

Is there any plan of work or conference in work or any definite ambition? If not, such a goal of life and ambition should be established.

Does the young man or woman mix well with others? Is he liked by his companions? It is always important to try and prevent these boys and girls from developing a shell-like, negative and morose attitude. They should be encouraged to go to dances, mingle with the opposite sex, indulge in athletic and competitive sports

Amusements are also valuable aids in making the adolescent express his emotions more freely Well-selected plays and motion pictures, also books, are valuable aids in this respect, the play or winkover is chosen that will tend to counteract the particular type of emotional restraint that is handicapping

Then ask yourself whether the adolescent is stubborn and conceited, whether he takes advice with a good will or whether he is resentful and even irritable. Adolescents with these traits are often unusually difficult to man age and unusual bet ter here's

Is self-depreciation present? It is astonishing how many young people, despite their outward show of sophistication and courage are still, underneath, most timid and fearful. It is often in adolescence that the familiar inferiority feelings develop.

The boys and girls moral standards should also be investigated. The value of morality should be taught, but care must be taken not to preach and sentimentalize Facts are all that need be required

Never give up trying to help an adolescent along even if you are repulsed and your offers of assistance are spurned.

Remember that adolescents are seldom what they seem

GRACEFUL BEARING

By MARIE JERITZA

I KNOW a young woman who is called beautiful, although she is not even pretty. Why is this? Because she has achieved so much grace and charm by making the most of herself, that she gives the impression of beauty

She walks straight. She sits straight. Above all, she holds her firm, round white neck in queenly fashion.

She has a well-shaped head and a lovely neck, so she wears her hair in the mode that brings out these good points. Her wind-blown bob is individual in this day of shoulder-length tresses and it is swirled closely but beautifully about the nape of her neck

You can add immeasurably to your success socially and in business contacts and also attract happy romance if you will deliberately cultivate physical poise, repose, grace and beauty. Perseverance and continuous self-control are essentially in order to acquire the habit of holding your entire body, especially your neck and chin, high and straight. You will need to discard that big, luxurious, soft pillow that you love to sink your head into when you start for the Land of Nod. A tiny pillow or, better still, no pillow at all, will help banish any disfiguring droop of the chin and also drooping shoulders.

The woman who carries herself well has almost invariably a slender, well-knit figure, because the muscles are trained to hold themselves straight rather than loaf But you will also be obliged to deny yourself rich food and eat plain, well-balanced meals if you hope to escape thick hips and a double chin.

I do not advise strenuous massage of the neck—it is too easy to injure delicate glands. But at night it is well to pat into your neck and chin, firmly but gently a nourishing, cleansing cold cream then remove the excess with tissue squares or absorbent cotton.

Next in order, practice the following exercises to develop your neck and beautify the line of your chin, cheek and jaw. Go through with exaggerated movements of chewing gum for two minutes Circle your head to the left 10 times, to the right 10 times, making as large circles as possible

The third exercise, which is restful to the nerves at the base of the neck, consists in leaning the head as far back as possible, then turning it as far as you can first to the left, then to the right, 10 times

Mornings, repeat the same exercise, but instead of cold-creaming your neck, scrub it with warm soap-suds, rinse it with clear, cold water, stretch it backward, then rub your palms, dipped in witch hazel or cologne, from the base of your neck to the tip of your chin

You can have a beautiful neck if you are willing to pay the price, which is erect carriage and a few moments daily devoted to ears of your neck and chin

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND.

BLONDES again! Blondes are like marriage and prohibition, they are always coming up for discussion and you can always find something new and interesting to say about them.

Their latest champion is Mr. C. W. Van de Mark, of Cincinnati, who employs sixty-two women, all blondes, and won't even have a dark horse or a black cat around the place. No dusky beauties for HIM.

The reason why gentlemen prefer blondes, he declares, is not because of their flaxen hair but because of their sunny, tranquil and optimistic temperament. And, THAT explains everything!

I have always maintained that a girl with dark eyes and dark hair may also often admire her; but, if she wants to make them love her, she will have to blondine her temperament down to the roots. It is not the yellow hair, but the placid, serene pink-and-white disposition of the blonde that appeals to men. Brunettes are stimulating, but blondes are COMFORTABLE.

A blonde is easy on the nerves and soothing to the spirit

Any brunette wife, who has stood helplessly by and watched a blonde go-getting her husband, could have told him that, long ago! There is no more danger in permitting your husband to have a pretty blonde secretary hovering around him, than there is in dropping a lighted match into the gasoline tank. Not a bit!

When a dusky beauty sees a dozen beauty gazing thoughtfully at her pet boy friend, she just mutters a prayer, throws her cards on the table and gives up the game

You might fight a brunette as woman to woman, but when you cross weapons with a blonde you fight a cooler head, a steadier hand and a cherished masculine tradition.

The blonde holds all the winning cards from the start to the finish Being less emotional, more indifferent, and less temperamental, she plays her hand with more skill and never loses a trick.

A brunette puts too much heart and too little head into her game. She loves to dramatize things and is always staging a scene; and a man will run from a scene as a cat runs from a shower-bath But a blonde can curl up and BE STILL!

The brunette often has beginner's luck, because she is flashing, brilliant and interesting. But the average blonde has more staying power. She always wins the endurance contest. While the brunette is blowing hot and cold as to just what she wants, the blonde has gone after it and is leading it by a hair.

Suntan powder does not make a brunette, nor peroxide and bleaching cream a blonde! Because you can never turn a dusky-eyed emotional complex into a pink-and-white, placid disposition—or vice versa.

All men may be born equal, but all women will never get an even break, until they are all born BLONDES!

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Mrs. Beeckman will answer questions regarding correct manners and customs.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

I have never stopped at hotel, so I would very much appreciate it if you would answer some questions for me

1. When one enters a hotel, what is the first thing to do?

2. Is it necessary to take your meals at the hotel where you are stopping?

3. Can you feel free to come in at night whenever you choose?

4. Do you pay your bill when you enter or when you leave?

B. T. D.

WHEN you arrive at the hotel, you go to the registration desk, and the clerk will turn the registry book toward you for you to register in it. You write, if you are an unmarried woman:

Miss Alice Allen, Pittsburgh, Penn.

If you are married you write:

Mrs. Walter Allen, Pittsburgh, Penn.

The clerk then gives you the number of your room, calls "Front" to an attendant bellboy or porter, and if you follow attendant, who, in the meantime, has taken your hand-bag to the room. You fee the boy. Later, if you have a trunk, the porter brings that to your room.

2. No Although sometimes special rates are offered by hotels, small hotels in some towns for instance, if you take your meals there—what is called, as you know, the American plan—and perhaps sometimes you would like to take advantage of this

3. Yes. But, of course, you would keep in mind the proprieties, and the fact that a woman traveling alone must be careful no to lay herself open to criticism

4. When you leave. When you begin to pack, telephone down to the desk and ask that your bill be prepared, so that you will not have to wait for it when you come downstairs

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a young lady who claims to love me.

I have asked her many times not to use lip-stick, but she pays little attention to me. What can I do to stop her from using it?

It is necessary for me to leave town, and I don't expect to see her often. Could you suggest a way in which I could keep her from other fellows?

I would also like to know if it is a girl's place to take hold of the fellow's arm, when she accompanies him down the main street

I thank you. F. M. N.

I am afraid you will have to let the young lady decide for herself the question of lip-stick. Just now lip-stick happens to be a pet vanity and fad of many girls, and if I were you I would accept it as such and refuse to worry over such a trifle.

At the same time, I agree with you that natural, healthy, rosy lips are far more attractive, loveable and kissable than those covered with lip-stick.

The only way to prevent a young woman from going about with other young men, is to ask her to be your wife. If you are sure you love her and are in a position to marry, why do you not do this? In case she loves you and becomes engaged to you, naturally she will not care for the companionship of other young men and will gladly refuse invitations, if only to make you happier. You can hardly expect such a sacrifice, however, from a girl to whom you are not engaged.

A young man offers his arm to a young woman when there is need of protecting or aiding her.

ONE-DISH DINNERS

THE beauty of a one-dish dinner for the summer-time supper is that it usually can be prepared in the morning and popped into a quick oven on your return from the bathing beach or afternoon motoring.

Martha Lee

Tuna fish is one of my summer standbys, and if those of you who are inclined to sniff a bit when this friendly fish is mentioned will try this tuna fish pie, I am sure you will be delighted with the results. This can be prepared in the morning, even to the biscuits, which can be placed on a separate plate and added to the pie at the last minute.

TUNA FISH PIE

Put in a saucepan 4 tbsps. butter and 1 slice onion finely chopped. Stir and cook 2 minutes, add 4 tbsps. flour, ¾ tbsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, and when smooth 1¼ cups boiling water and 2 chicken bouillon cubes. Stir until sauce boils and add ½ cup milk. Put in a casserole, alternating with 1 12-oz. can tuna fish; 1 cup celery cut in fine pieces, or diced potatoes, and 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Cover with tiny baking powder biscuit and bake in hot oven at 425° F. for 15 minutes.

CASSEROLE OF SALMON AND CORN

Blend together 1 tbsp. of light brown sugar with 2 tbsps. of butter and 1 onion, grated, and cook on a hot pan until golden brown. Draw this to the side of the pan, add 2 more tablespoonfuls of butter, and in this heat the contents of a can of salmon. When hot throughout transfer the fish to a casserole by means of a skimmer, leaving some fat in the pan. Stir into this 2 tbsps. of flour, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and 2 tbsps. tomato catsup. Stir until all are blended, then add 1 can golden bantam corn. Let get hot through and pour over the fish in the casserole. Cover and place in a fairly hot oven 10 minutes. This dish may be prepared in the morning, and reheated for luncheon or dinner in a few minutes, by the woman whose day has been spent in shopping or business.

TUNA FISH MOLD

Separate into flakes or small pieces enough tuna fish to make 2 cupfuls. Mix with 2 cupfuls of mashed potatoes, 4 highly seasoned with salt and pepper. Add 1 cupful of thin cream, ½ cupful stale bread crumbs and 2 stiffly-beaten eggs.

One-half cupful chopped green olives is an improvement or a quarter cupful of chopped pimentos.

Have ready a ring mold, very thickly greased, put the mixture into this, cover with oiled paper, and steam for an hour or until firm. Place in a warm oven for a few minutes to aid its shrinkage from the sides, and turn out on a bed of cress or other greens on a round platter. Fill the center with peas and diced carrots, seasoned until hot throughout and seasoned with butter, salt and pepper.

CHEESE AND MACARONI LOAF

1 cup soft bread crumbs.
1 tbsp. butter.
1 tbsp. chopped green pepper.
2 eggs.
½ cup American cheese rubbed through grater.

Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender, and rinse in cold water. Cook the parsley, onion and pepper in a little water with the butter. Pour off the water or allow it to boil away. Beat the egg white and yolk separately Mix the ingredients, cutting and folding in the stiffly-beaten whites at the last. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper; turn the mixture into it; set the baking dish in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven from ½ to ¾ of an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

PANTRY SURPRISE

½ cup grated cheese.
2 tbsps. butter.
2 tbsps. flour.

Melt butter, blend in flour and salt and add milk and water gradually, add cooked fish and reheat. Place layers of fish, salt, pepper, nuts, cheese and crumbs in an oiled baking dish and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Let me recall the kindly smile,
The handclasp of a friend,
The look that brightened for a while

Let me remember faith that came
When faith was all my need,

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL"

Greatest Story Yet Told of the Girl of Today

I know he would!—lets put it up to Alice!"

Alice was lying in bed, flat on her back, reading "Collegiate Comics," a magazine that was her Bible. From it Alice got all the smart cracks and jokes that she entertained her "boy friends" with.

Last night's cold cream glistened on her face and her cheeks and lips had very little color. Her blonde hair was done up in curlers and there was no mascara on her light eyelashes.

Alice in the early morning was very very different from the perfumed, silk-stockinged, rouged Alice of the luncheon-date, the tea-date, and the evening party.

"I hate anyone to see me like this!" she said viciously, as she sat up in bed. She glared at Ann Marie. "You ought to have known better than to bring Florence up here without giving me a minute to scrape the cold cream off my face!"

Florence dropped down on the bed which heaved beneath her hundred and seventy-five pounds. "Oh, that's all right. I'm no dream of beauty myself when I come to in the morning," she answered easily "I'd give ten years from my life—the last ten, though—if I could look the way Ann Marie does, just ones! She's prettier without paint and powder than she is with it!"

Her eyes, sunk in fat pink cheeks, glowed with honest admiration as she looked at Ann Marie with the lamp gold-brown hair lying in little flat rings along her forehead and temples and the soft color in her face.

Then she turned back to Alice. "How would you like to go to the party tonight with a man from New York who's visiting us, and let Jean and . . . take Ann Marie?" she asked her.

She gave Ann Marie a suspicious look.

"Is this your idea?" she asked, and Ann Marie shook her head.

"No—that is—why, yes, I guess it was my idea," she answered uncertainly, trying to remember whose idea it had been for Alice to go with the man named Goodwin. "Yes, it was my idea."

"I thought so. "Alice's voice was flat and cold. "Well, it was a waste of energy, because I'm going with Johnny unless he calls me up and says he doesn't want me to go with him.

And so that matter was settled.

All day long people came and went in the store.

All day long Mr. Macy and Ann Marie wrapped packages and boxes of writing paper, fancy book-ends and children's games.

All day long they made change at the cash register in the corner behind the Christmas-card table, opened and closed the front door for people too burdened with bundles to do it themselves, and welcomed others who rushed in for last-minute things that they wanted to buy.

At noon Florence Lawler telephoned from the Country Club.

"We've just simply GOT to have thirty more dance programs!" she declared breathlessly. She was chairman of the decorations committee for the party that night. "Do you suppose by any chance you COULD get them? If you haven't time, just send along the plain ones—"

"SEND them?" wailed Ann Marie. "We haven't any delivery boy, Florsie—you must know that. But, look here, if you could stop in for the programs on your way to the club tonight, I think I can have some holly and things painted on them so they'll be just like the other ones I did for you."

"Fine!" And Florence hung up.

Life was simple like that for Florence. When she wanted things she went to someone or other who could do them—and the someone or other did them and was well paid for the job. Her father's money made everything smooth for her.

Sometimes Ann Marie wondered if Howdy would ever have looked twice at her if she had been a poor girl . . . and sometimes she wondered if Howdy had ever had a chance to look at anybody but her. For she was always calling him up and asking him to take her to the movies or to dances or to meals at the Lowiers' big, luxurious, hospitable house on the Country Club rd. just outside of town.

She brought him home from the bank in her car with little closed cars almost every night in the week, and Howdy knew that he never would have been given his position there if it had not been for her friendship with him.

"But I wonder if Howdy's really in love with her," Ann Marie asked herself that afternoon when she carried the contents of her father's cash-register across the street to the bank. "She's just as sweet as she can be, but she's too fat and she's not pretty . . . Howdy ought to have a pretty girl—"

She knew that he worshiped beauty as much as she did—but in a different way.

For even a woman loves beauty, she sees it in flowers and in the sky at sunrise or the silver-gray sheen on water. She also likes to listen to it in music or in wind or the beating of waves on a beach. But when a man worships beauty, he usually worships it in women —and on the walls of Howard Macy's bedroom in the Pleasant Street house were photographs of Janet Gaynor and Marilyn Miller and Marion Davies and Clara Bow. Photographs that he had torn from magazines and tacked there himself, among his pictures of "Babe" Ruth and Bobby Jones and Jack Dempsey. Among his heroes.

He took the money when Ann Marie handed it across the counter to him and made out a deposit-slip for her.

"Tell Dad I borrowed a ten-spot from him, will you? he asked, her, stripping a bill from the sheaf she had handed to him. "I'll pay it back to him next Saturday—maybe."

He grinned amiably as he handed her back the worn brown leather bank book that belonged to Mr. Macy.

"Tell him I took it as a Christmas present in advance," he added cheerfully. "He won't mind. He's a good scout."

But Mr. Macy did mind. He was very much upset when Ann Marie went back to the store and told him that he had just given Howdy a Christmas present of ten dollars.

"I'll have a lot of bills to meet the first of the year!" He shook his head heavily and looked glum. "That fellow just robs me, Ann Marie! He robs me every chance he gets!"

"Never mind, Pete!" Ann Marie called him "Pete" sometimes. His name was Peter. "I won't charge you a cent for working for you today—so you'll have that much to the good. And we're doing a rushing business, aren't we? Here's the Country Club telephoning for some more hand-painted programs, too!—Don't you worry, Pete! We're going to come out at the big end of the horn, this time!"

She was working on the programs for Florence Lawler, during a lull at five o'clock when Jeanie and Alice came flying in, laden with wrapped-up Christmas presents and bringing a heavenly fragrance of "Rose Jaqueminet" perfume with them.

Ann Marie gave them a suspicious look, and her delicate nostrils quivered as she sniffed the air.

"You two!" she said accusingly, "You two have opened my bottle of French perfume!—My bottle that Johnny gave me last Easter—that I wasn't going to open it myself until that German cologne of mine was all gone—"

She turned to her father, blazing.

"I KNEW they'd use it if they found it!" she cried. "And for months I've had it hidden in that hollow place in the newel post at the foot of the stairs!—I have to hide everything I own from them! They steal everything of mine that they can lay their hands on! And now they've even discovered the newel-post—"

Alice interrupted her with a tiny laugh.

"Well, that's why we took this perfume—because you'd hidden it from us. It made us angry to think that you'd hide things from your own sisters as if we were common thieves!" she explained smoothly. "We just decided we'd show you that you CAN'T hide things from us—"

IT was good to be coming home with news. She hoped that no one else had bought a paper. She wanted to be the one to tell it. As she turned in at the gate she thought complacently, "I'm glad I made Nancy breathe a bit with him. It was perfectly innocent of course, but I'd hate to have had him die with a note from her in his pocket, or anything like that . . . a young girl can't be too careful!"

Mama took off her hat and fluffed her hair mechanically. There was a glint of excitement in her faded eyes.

"Well, Billy is about the same as usual," she began, when she had unfolded her napkin and taken her place at the table. She was going to lead up to the news gradually.

And then she saw their faces, all bright and self-conscious. They had news . . . something had happened . . . they hadn't told her. "Peter! What's happened?" she cried, angrily, forgetting all about Jack Beamer dead in the mountains, and his poor bereaved wife.

Papa stirred his soup in that vulgar way of which she had once been able to break him. He smiled at his mother. Her face was surrounded by smiles. Nancy giggled hysterically.

"Well, really . . . am I to be kept in suspense?"

"Oh, mummy darling — such GOOD news!"

Papa and his mother exchanged meaning glances.

Papa cleared his throat. "Well, your humble servant has just turned a little deal, that's all."

That took the wind out of his sails for a second, but he speedily rallied, and resumed his role. "No, but I've turned my oil stock into money."

"Peter! You've sold it! It's gone up?"

He cleared his throat importantly. "I always knew that there was money in oil. The Giant California and Southwestern—"

"But, Peter, if it's going up maybe you shouldn't have . . . dear, dear, I wish you'd let me ask Ellie before you go into these things. She's not so much, now that maybe we HAVE a chance . . . oh, Peter, you're so disappointing!"

Mama! I think you're awfully mean to——"

"But, my dear, you know your father has no business head! I'm only thinking of the general good——"

"Kitty, will you listen to me?" Mama sniffed and wiped her eyes.

"It so happens," papa went on, doggedly, "that the Giant California and Southwestern were not conducting their affairs in an entirely honorable way—"

"I knew it. Didn't I always tell you——"

"It so happens, that I was able to check on this through mother confiding in me, and coming to me for advice. This same concern, I discovered, had taken an option on this property, and they exercised the option for which they paid a thousand dollars and actually sinking wells, well, they suddenly abandoned operations and left all equipment, valued well into thirty or forty thousand dollars, standing on the property.

"To any business man," he cleared his throat again, "that looked suspicious, and when she came to me to help her out of this predicament I naturally turned to a man who is even better versed than myself in these affairs. I refer to Dean Burkhart of the Parkhurst Bank.

"Being incapacitated myself, and more or less confined to the house, I was forced to leave the details to Burkhart. Burkhart himself had stock in Giant California and Southwestern. He used the channels at his disposal to . . . this thing down, and we discovered that they had indeed found the oil on mother's land."

Mama gasped. She said, "I don't quite understand, dear."

He got out his pencil, and looked through the papers in his pocket until he found the back of an old envelope to figure on. He explained happily.

Mama tried to concentrate on what he was saying but she kept trying to read the funny abbreviations he wrote on the paper, and it got her so confused that in the end all she could make of it was that Old Lady Hollenbeck's eucalyptus grove that was once a chicken ranch was now an oil field, and she'd never have known it until it was too late and she had lost it for taxes and mortgages and things, if papa had not suspected that the oil people were just trying to cheat her by reporting their operations a failure.

"It's wonderful, Peter. But how did you find out?" she wanted to know.

"Oh, business men are prepared for trickery of that sort. If I had known earlier it would have been even simpler. But as it was, Burkhart and I acted in that was necessary." He beamed at his mother. At all his women. A large, expansive smile.

"And Mrs. Hollenbeck owns an oil well!" Kitty quavered.

"No, no . . . how could mother finance such a thing? But as I say, Burkhart and I, with our influence in banking and financial circles discovered the truth and you might say called the bluff. For a consideration, my good friend, Oliver Lachman, cleared the indebtedness and saw to it that the property was legally in mother's name. We then closed with a reputable concern, a very reputable concern whose name you all know, and will recognize, as soon as I am at liberty to disclose it."

Mama's voice interrupted her thoughts . . . "Nancy, I'm speaking to you. Do you want your room done over in blue or pink?"

"Pink."

"But, dear, I thought you said pink was insipid!"

"Then why do you ask me? Have anything you want."

"But it's your room, dear."

"All right. Blue."

She knew she oughtn't to talk that way to poor mama, so happy because she was going to have things like other people at last. Why couldn't she be thrilled like the rest? Why did she have to be so irritable and crabby? Her eyes filled with tears. Ploop . . . one rolled down her nose. She ought to say something kind to mama to make up, but she couldn't, she was too miserable . . .

She picked up the evening paper mama had brought in, and pretended to read it, to cover her embarrassment.

She actually missed the glaring headline. She had read half the front page without assimilating a single word before Jack's name jumped at her out of the printed column she was staring at.

Nancy held the crackling paper in her ice-cold hands. The black letters blurred, seemed to grow very big, then very small. To run into one another, so that she couldn't read.

Just one thing was clear. Jack Fenner was dead.

Her heart ached for him. He'd be so disappointed . . . dying before he . . . before they. . . . Poor get around better. I wonder if the springs . . ."

Nancy looked from one to the other with misty eyes. What a wonderful thing this was going to be for them. It would make all the difference in the world . . . having money . . .

And she thought, "It's one on me, though. . . . I needn't have been in such a hurry to get Jack."

Mama's voice interrupted her thoughts . . . "Nancy, I'm speaking to you. Do you want your room done over in blue or pink?"

"Pink."

"But, dear, I thought you said pink was insipid!"

"Then why do you ask me? Have anything you want."

Her heart ached for him. He'd be so disappointed . . . dying before he . . . before they. . . . Poor Jack. But she couldn't help being relieved, think that it was all over . . . that she wouldn't have to go on with it. But supposed Mrs. Lake-trell—which had been closed for more than a year.

"Employees at the High Sierra camp, where the Beamer were guests, state positively that danger signs had been posted, and that Beamer, who had made inquiries about it, had been specifically warned against it.

"Mrs. Beamer, who has been removed to the hospital at Merced, narrowly missed death when she fell higher on the trail. She is in a hysterical condition and cannot be interviewed at the present time.

"R. M. Decatur, a ranger coming in from Chilnualna Falls, was the only witness to the dual tragedy. Decatur, in an attempt to rescue Mrs. Beamer, lost his footing and was critically injured.

"The triple rescue was affected by J. J. MacKitimore, Decatur's assistant at the Gales Flat Station.

"Beamer's body was removed early this morning. No funeral arrangements have as yet been made. Mrs. Beamer's father, Virgil Shelor, millionaire steel magnate of Pittsburgh, is hurrying to his daughter's bedside."

Nancy read it through to the end.

Read it again . . . R. E. Decatur, a ranger . . . critically injured . . . R. E. . . . not even Roger . . . they had not troubled to find that his name was Roger . . .

As if from a great distance she heard the chatter of the family. Mama's voice: "I have everything finished before Louise and Mat get back . . . a really select home tea . . . match the Minton china . . ."

Papa talking about interest . . . grandma talking . . . everybody happy . . . everybody wrapped up in themselves, and Roger . . . Oh, why didn't they say his whole name? It would look so . . . so final . . .

In a small, unnatural voice she said, "Did you see . . . the paper?"

About Jack Beamer? Killed, and his wife hurt, too. I don't want to speak of it. It just goes to show that you can't be too careful—"

"Jack Beamer? Wells!" Papa was interested. "Jack Beamer!" He looked at Nancy's small, pinched face, and looked hastily away again. He was frightfully embarrassed . . . why, why, she must have loved the beggar! She ought to . . . cover her face . . . her mother would see . . .

"I guess I'd better go to bed," he said weakly. He felt suddenly tired and sick. "About all the excitement I can stand for one day."

Nancy picked up the paper again, then let it drop despairingly.

"Well, I'm sure I wouldn't worry about him," mama said briskly. "From all I hear he had it coming. But his poor wife—"

Nancy looked at them all with large, stricken eyes. "But you don't understand," she said patiently. "It's my husband."

"Your WHAT!"

"Roger. It says R. E. Decatur here, but's Roger. He's my husband. He . . . may die."

"Your—husband."

"Nancy, you're lost your mind! I never heard of such a thing. Why didn't you tell me before?"

Nancy . . . you . . . you didn't marry that . . . that Galen Flat person . . . Oooh . . . just when everything was coming out right for us! Nancy . . . tell mama . . . WHEN"

Even Grandma tried to talk. "But dear, I thought——"

Nancy flung her arms wide. "Oh, I know . . . I know—I don't blame you. Mama's trying to help me . . . but I'm not now. I know . . . oh, dear God keep him for me . . . let me make up . . . let me make up . . .

She had flung an old coat over her shoulders, and had left her purse mama had left on a chair. "I'm going . . . oh, don't try to keep me . . . please let me go . . . don't you see it's my last chance!"

Nancy, listen to mama! I never heard of such nonsense! You can't go out like that . . . without, without . . .

The heavy front door slammed.

Papa was having trouble wheezing himself back over the doorsill, but finally he made it. The sounds of the commotion had brought him back. "What's the matter?" All the old worry lines were back in his face. He was in for a business man any more, he was just papa again. "I . . . I wouldn't worry about her," he said briskly.

"What happened!" But she wouldn't tell him.

Down the garden steps, through the dahlias and the wild straw-berry vines that caught on her long, flapping skirts, Grandma ran with Nancy's little red hat. "Nancy, wait! You forgot your hat . . . wait! Wait for Grandma!"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Connie's Confidence -:- --:- Short Story by D. R. Scoville

JOHNNY STEVENS stuck his head out the window of the Coast Guard station and waved his bandaged hand to the girl in the blue bathing suit going down the path to the beach.

He knew she saw him, but she did not return his salute. With a sigh he pulled the window down. Swimming test again and the only thing that saved him was that cut on his hand. The cut he had purposely made to avoid going down to the beach.

Johnny shivered and looked toward the water. He was afraid of that bluegreen. The immensity of it overwhelmed him. Back on the Wisconsin farm he had never dreamed the ocean could be so terrifying. Never dreamed he would be forced to learn to swim in it. That was why he had joined the Coast Guard. He hadn't a very clear idea of what the service was when he signed up, but his mother was gone and the recruiting poster attracted him.

He had been sent to the West Head station. Six miles from a village. A bare white building on a cheese box tower and a crew of nine men. Out amongst a wind-swept waste of sand dunes, fringed with blue water. Routine work, the three-mile tramp on beach patrol, tower watch. Loneliness.

Johnny had been painfully lonesome until Connie Harkins, the captain's daughter, had arrived for the summer. She was a wholesome, lovely young person with an amazing wealth of the ocean immediately made her an object of interest to Johnny. Connie was a year younger than Johnny, but she was a year younger than Johnny, but she was a year younger than Johnny, but she

PROGRAMS FOR TODAY, TONIGHT ON THE RADIO

Many Features Are Listed by Boston and Distant Stations on Air

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

POPULAR jazz will be heard during the broadcast of dance music by Vincent Lopez and his Kylestroneers through WBZ-WBZA at 7:30. The program includes Song of the Vagabonds, Peace of Mind, Love Me or Leave Me, from "Whoopee," Spirit of '76, I Want to Meander in the Meadow, Rubetown Frolic, Dizzy Fingers, pianologue, My Evangeline (waltz), Jericho.

Musical selections typifying famous rivers in various parts of the world compose the Coward Comfort music to be broadcast over WEAF-WEEI at 7:30. The program comprises: Beautiful Ohio, Ear; Banks of the Wabash; Congo Love Song, Johnson; Song of the Volga Boatmen, Edward; The Beautiful Blue Danube, Strauss; Where the River Shannon Flows, Russell; River Lullaby, Stanford; Swanee River, Foster.

REINALD WERRENRATH, baritone, will be heard with the Buffalo Civic Symphony orchestra over WNAC and the Columbia system, at 6 o'clock. He has selected four of the numbers for which he has become especially well known; the Credo from Verdi's "Othello," MacDowell's "Chee, wo ela Sterne Gluhen," Schumann's "The Two Grenadiers," and "Here Is Thy Home, Bedved."

The "Ballet Suite" from Delibes' "Coppelia," Victor Herbert's "Radiana" and selections from various Italian grand operas will be played by the orchestra during this broadcast.

Jazz tunes and musical comedy melodies with vocal choruses, will be heard during the broadcast of the Lehn and Fink Serenade through WBZ and the NBC System at 8 o'clock. The program is directed by Jack Shilkret.

CAPTAIN F. T. HAWTREY of the Los Angeles detective bureau, an officer noted for his effective work in solving a number of crime mysteries, contributes the feature of the True Detective Mysteries broadcast from WNAC and Columbia at 9 o'clock.

In his story, "It Beats the Third Degree," Capt. Hawtrey illustrates the method he uses to extract information from criminals, and gives one detail of how he got a breaking up a Los Angeles gang which had committed several major crimes.

The Selbering Singers will broadcast a "birds-eye view" of orchestral music through WEAF-WEEI at 9 o'clock. The music will range from selections of Wagner and Puccolities of modern musical comedy.

Innovations will include three arrangements by Frank Black, director of the Selbering Hour. A fantasy based on the popular "Pagan Love Song" will be played by the orchestra; the Selbering Singing Violins will play a transcription of Friml's "Toujours l'Amour" for violin chorus, and a new cello solo arrangement of "Swanee River" will be played for the first time on the air.

Another special feature will be the orchestra's rendition of "Introduction to Act III of Lohengrin." Other selections by the orchestra include Herbert's "Spanish Serenade" and an arrangement of popular hits from the musical comedy "Blackbirds." Frank Black will play another of his "surprise" piano solos.

THE OPENING program of a series to be presented over WNAC and the Columbia System by the makers of Gold Seal radio tubes will be heard at 9:30 tonight. A 16-piece orchestra, directed by Benny Krueger, the Gold Seal male quartet and Edna Duane, soprano, will contribute to this program, which opens with "Heigh-ho" by the orchestra with chorus.

Miss Duane will sing "L'Amour Toujours" with the Gold Seal tenor. Krueger will have two specialty numbers for the saxophone, and the quartet is heard in a medley, "When My Dreams Come True," "It Gives Up the Saxophone," and "Seventh Heaven."

Selections from the most popular comedies of the recent season comprise the program of syncopated rhythms which will be heard during the broadcast of the Atwater Kent mid-week program through WBZ and NBC System at 10 o'clock.

ROBERT W. SERVICE'S poem, "The Spell of the Yukon," given as a recitation by G. Underhill Mackey, is featured on the Alaskan program, the twelfth in the series of "Around the World With Libby" presentations by the Libby Concert Ensemble at 10:30 over WJZ-WBZ and a coast-to-coast hook-up.

From the land of the Aurora Borealis and the Midnight Sun the Libby performers draw melodies which tell the story of Alaska as it was ruled in turn by Esquimaux, Russian Cossacks, gold miners and business men.

The program begins with typical aboriginal music "Alaskan War Dance" founded on an Indian theme and performed from manuscript. A companion selection is another orchestral selection "Song of the Tornid."

Tschaikowsky's Finale from his Overture "1812" and "Troika" (the Three Horse Sleigh) is descriptive of the Russian period in Alaskan history. The love songs depicting modern Alaskan life are sung by the "International Singers."

Selections numbers by prominent soloists, the Rollickers quartet, and an orchestra of 43 pieces, directed by Howard Barlow and Freddie Rich, make up the program to be broadcast by the Voice of Columbia at 10:30 over the Columbia System.

John Barclay, baritone; Ethel Codd, soprano; Helen Oelheim, contralto, and Dan Gridley, tenor, are soloists, and will also sing Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz" as a mixed quartet. The Rollickers will sing "Song of the Sands," a spiritual entitled "Head Low," and "Truthful Parson Brown." In addition, the group will sing the choruses of a medley of Irving Berlin tunes to be played by the orchestra.

Howard Barlow will be the director for the symphonic selections and Freddie Rich takes up the baton when the orchestra plays his special arrangements.

DINE AND DANCE ON MAYFLOWER POPULAR

Dine-and-dance enthusiasts are finding much pleasure in the nightly trips of the Steamer Mayflower. This is a special feature, chiefly devoted to dining and dancing aboard ship, but persons desiring simply the pleasure of a sea voyage will find the chance to escape the city heat and dust and enjoy to the full an evening afloat.

The Mayflower Commodores Orchestra, known to thousands of radio fans, is aboard for these weekday night trips—every night except Sunday and Saturday. The orchestra is made up of able musicians, individually and collectively. Song and instrumental hits by individuals and groups vary the program each night.

The steamer has the best accommodations for dining, this being an attractive feature.

The Mayflower sails from Rowe's Wharf each night at 8:30 o'clock, returning at 11, but dancing continues until midnight. Parking space is provided at the wharf after 7 p. m.

Hoover's Son Gets Army Service Call

Washington, Aug. 22—Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the President, was ordered by the War Department to active duty effective Oct 17, as a first lieutenant in the specialist reserve.

The order, which was designated as "by the direction of the President," instructed Lieut. Hoover to proceed from Pasadena, Cal., to San Francisco and report for training. First Lieut. Hoover will revert to inactive status Oct. 20.

4000 in Somerville Festival Tonight

More than 4000 children from 15 Somerville playgrounds will participate in the closing festival of the summer recreation at Foss Field, Somerville, tonight. The festival, consisting of folk dances, a band concert and various dance music, will begin at 6:30 p. m., with Francis J. Mahony, director of playgrounds, in charge.

Silver Slipper Head to Visit Europe

Anthony Scazzini, proprietor of the Silver Slipper Night Club at 111 Arlington st., sails Friday on an extended visit to Naples and Paris.

Anthony Scazzini

Scazzini will visit the various cabarets in the two cities and will reproduce their style of entertainment in conjunction with the regular program on his return to this city.

Scazzini has been affiliated with many of the leading cabarets of the country. While in Italy, he intends visiting his family and friends at his home in Tuttin. It is his first visit to Europe in many years.

Can.-Pacific Ships Now Visit Honolulu

Montreal, Aug. 22—Honolulu as a port of call for Canadian Pacific ships en route from Vancouver to the Orient, is announced by William Thomson, assistant passenger traffic manager. The new route is made possible by the opening of two fast ships capable of 21 knots—the remodelled "Empress of Canada" and the latest ship for the Pacific, the "Empress of Japan," now nearing completion.

The new service will be inaugurated by the Christmas sailing of the "Empress of Canada" from Vancouver, December 7. Passengers will have time to see Honolulu and arrangements have been made for those who desire to stay on the island and rejoin the next or following ships to the Orient.

FIRE DAMAGE ON LINER PARIS SLIGHT

Late reports from the French Line headquarters in Paris to the local offices of the company here, according to Jean Tillier, assistant general representative, announced that, while the fire which swept a part of the liner Paris at her pier in Havre did some damage to the salon mixte and smoking room on the promenade deck, and to some of the first-class cabins on the after part of A-deck, the balance of the ship is intact.

It is now hoped that the ship will be in readiness to sail from Havre within the next ten days or two weeks, to help bring back the great number of returning American tourists during the impending westbound rush season.

About two months ago, in view of the competition of new transatlantic steamers, the French Line decided to remodel its Paris, laying her up in November at the end of the tourist season. Her passenger accommodations in all classes were to be done over, and private baths added to all outside and many inside rooms not now so equipped. Cabins in first and second class were to be enlarged, existing public rooms were to be made more spacious, and new public rooms were to be built in second class in addition to those already in use.

'GAY WHITE WAY' OPENED AT REVERE

Revere's new "Great White Way" was inaugurated when Mayor Andrew J. Casassa pushed a button at City Hall that turned on the new white lights on Broadway, the celebration continuing until almost midnight.

As soon as the new lighting system was thinking forth in brilliance and the new electric light traffic signals were in operation, a parade got underway along the brilliantly-lighted boulevard gaily bedecked with flags.

Escorted by a squard of motorcycle police and followed by the fire department which exhibited the latest of modern fire apparatus and a horse-drawn piece of ancient vintage, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and school children in costume were reviewed by Mayor Casassa and other city officials at the City Hall.

Block dancing in a section of Park ave. followed. Thousands listened to the music and watched as the couples swayed to the strains of syncopation. Dancing went on the Memorial Grounds next to City Hall attracted several thousand.

Fireworks display at Paul Revere Park concluded the events of the evening.

Are You Interested in a Business Education?

Most girls today take some sort of a training course after they leave high school. It serves as a good review of their high school education and makes them better equipped to fill an office position. Why do they do this? In order to get an office position. If you are interested we can give you a course for a few months that will provide you with a good preparation for office work on our own office machines. Why not drop in and talk over with us your problem of further education. We maintain a free Placement Service.

Congress Should Prevent Judicial Despotism By Federal Judges in Contempt of Court Cases

UNTIL the Congress further limits by law the power of Federal Judges to punish for contempt, the American people will be as unprotected against the abuses of that power as are the people of the several States.

Ohio offers the latest and one of the gravest abuses of this great power.

Two newspaper editors of Cleveland were fined and sentenced to jail by a Judge of the Ohio Court of Common Pleas whom they dared to denounce for what they believed to be the misuse of his judicial powers to maintain a public nuisance contrary to the laws of Ohio.

From one end of the country to the other this flagrant example of judicial despotism has provoked the people to righteous indignation.

It has reminded them anew of the teachings of history that "the tyranny of judges can be just as great as the tyranny of kings."

It should also remind the Congress that the power of any Federal Judge in contempt cases is as susceptible of abuse under existing law as was the power of that Ohio Judge.

SECTION 286 of the Judicial Code of the United States provides in part that misbehavior of any person in the presence of the Court, "or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice," constitutes contempt of court.

More than once, under a broad interpretation of this statute, Federal Judges have stretched it to include the publication of a newspaper in the city in which the Court sits.

More than once a Federal Judge, smarting under personal criticism, has resorted to arbitrary and oppressive use of this power to punish for contempt.

All judges are human, including Federal Judges. And, as an authority on Federal procedure has declared: "It is only human that the Judge may be anything but judicial" in the natural indignation and resentment engendered by an attack upon himself.

Congress can and should protect the public from the indignation of a Federal Judge by limiting his power to punish for contempt to acts committed within the presence of the Court.

Acts committed outside the presence of the Court which in its opinion obstruct the administration of justice, should go before a jury for disposition.

AND the leadership of the Congress in this direction would encourage the Legislatures of the States to enact remedial legislation of the same sort.

Now is the time—now, while the judicial despotism of Cleveland's unjust Judge is fresh in the minds of the public—for Congress to restrict the punishment for contempt by a Federal Judge to acts committed within the presence of a Federal Court.

"Bryant Day"

A Little Town Remembers a Great Son

Mention of the little off-the-railroad town of Cummington, high in the hills of Hampshire County, which is devoting three days to a celebration of the 150th anniversary of its incorporation, may take young New Englanders from the radio for a few minutes and turn their attention to the family bookcase and the Works of William Cullen Bryant.

The FIRST great American poet, Bryant, was born in Cummington before the close of Washington's second term. The ten-year-old republic consisted of but 15 States.

He attended Williams College for a year, left with the intention of going to Yale and, when the transfer was found to be impossible because of the condition of the family finances, chose the law as his profession and at an early age was admitted to the bar, at Plymouth.

It was after "Cullen's" departure from home that his father, a physician, found the poem "Thanatopsis," written when the poet was only 18. "Thanatopsis"—"a view of death"—is in so many readers and is a part of so many courses that Americans become acquainted with it in their school days:

"To him who in the love of Nature holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language;"—

Dr. Bryant, who was a member of the State Senate, brought the manuscript to Boston—what a journey that must have been in the "good" old days!—and left it at the office of the North American Review. One of the editors declared that it was "impossible that such a poem could have been written by an American."

His native town will honor the greatest of its sons by making Friday "Bryant Day." Title to the Bryant homestead will be taken over by the Trustees of Public Reservations, a gift to the Commonwealth by the poet's grand-daughter.

We can all take part in the "exercises" by renewing our acquaintance with Bryant. Read not only "Thanatopsis," but "The Waterfowl," "The Death of the Flowers," and "To the Fringed Gentian."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—Metropolitan congestion has spawned a new and odd profession that may soon become a part of the correspondent school curiculum. It is known as "clocking" and requires no office, no personality whatever and only a rudimentary education.

It pays from $50 to $100 a week. All the equipment a clocker needs are rain coat, rubbers, an eye for preciseness, and a calloused thumb. Clockers work chiefly for chain store magnates, and it is their job to flush out suitable spots for branch stores.

Branch stores are located by the science of mathematics. Even a busy corner may be a poor place for a certain type of shop, and a lonely neighborhood the ideal spot for another sort. The clocker's job is to tabulate the crowds and characteristics.

A new store, obviously, is opened up where patronage is assured. With the clocker's statistics it is now almost possible to tell precisely how much patronage may be expected at a given location. The antiquated method of "trying out" a neighborhood is as dead as King Tut.

The clocker stands on street corners early and late with one hand in a side pocket working a clock—a compact recording device which is a sort of cousin to a stop watch. He counts autos, men, women and children—and the proportionate number of each in a given period.

He can tell neighborhood shoppers instantly, as the result of a practised eye, from men and women are merely on their way to terminals or other passenger conveyances. He knows a couple wearing evening clothes in an important limousine are not likely to stop at a chain grocery. But may need cigarettes or gasoline.

Merely counting passers-by will not suffice. A woman wheeling a baby carriage is not likely to patronize a man's hat store. The clocker must record types and, if he holds his job, must make astonishingly accurate guesses whether they are neighborhood folk, train catchers or casual passers-by.

A most remarkable feat in trade psychology is that of a middle-aged clerk in a cigar store near Times Square. He nearly knows what strangers seek as they cross the door sill. He amazes them by tossing out their brand of cigarettes or offering their favorite brand of cigars before they announce their want. He is not infallible, but was proven 80 per cent accurate. He is unable to explain the mental telepathy, but merely classifies it as "instinct."

It seems to me when city people take houses in the country for the summer they spend their time answering folk who are enjoying themselves at home, with invitations to come to see them. That goes for yacht owners, too, dern 'em.

The earliest movie of the day in New York is on Broadway near 42d and begins at 8:30 a. m. It is patronized exclusively by those who have been out early scurrying around for a job and failed. The theme of the early morning movie is invariably concerned with "uncle fortune's salvaged out of hopeless despair.

Suburban villages on Long Island refer to a visit to New York as "going to town." Out in Plattsburg when any of us set off for Kansas City we thought it utterly inane to announce lightly we were "going over to Jackson county."

There are about 20 get-rich-quick investment houses running full blast in the financial district by men who have prison records for similar racketeering. They make no effort to change their name, for there is a fresh sucker crop weekly. A sub rosa agency furnishes 100 new easy mark names for that many dollars. The probable ones are starred with one star and the sure fire victims with two.

Sucker lists to my notion and goody, goody, are sold only to suckers. I have, for instance, been on various sucker lists for years, yet I have never bought one dollar's worth of fly-by-night stock. But, oh, my, the promises!

'Taken for a Ride'

How Long Are the Gamblers to Have Their Own Sweet Way in Revere?

This story of the gambling man who was "taken for a ride" from a crap game in Revere to a "colonial mansion" in Weymouth, where he was held for ransom by an armed guard, seems to be a strong argument in favor of a Greater Boston Police Department, under a single head.

Attention has been called before in these columns to the boldness with which gamblers have operated in the neighborhood of Revere and Lynn and to the similarity between their methods and those of like gentry in New York and Chicago.

There will be other cases of the sort before another Legislature can grapple with the situation; now is the time to stifle petty local jealousies and agree upon such plans as will make Greater Boston a forbidden territory to the gunman-gambler.

Claiming to have found in the Weymouth house furniture valued at more than $7000 that had been bought "on time," detectives of a Boston credit bureau asked for the protection of the Weymouth police during its removal.

Actions of the guard—said to be a robber on parole from State Prison—aroused the suspicions of the Weymouth captain and led to a search of the premises and the discovery of the prisoner.

You may have your own opinion of the Boston police department, but you will be sure to note that the gunman and the gambler do THEIR best to operate beyond the city limits.

We strongly urge honest citizens to give serious thought to an obvious weakness in the police administration of the larger city.

Stop the "easy money" boys before they have made Greater Boston a playground!

ONCE-OVERS

IN planning your automobile trips do you lay out a course which will enable you to spend considerable time at the homes of friends?

You don't do this as a matter of saving money, but you really wish to see and visit with old friends when you can.

You write them that you may be in their vicinity about a certain time and that if they wish to see you you will call upon them.

This may be your way of procuring an invitation.

You put them in position to feel that they should invite you to be a guest at their homes.

In the majority of cases the response is not because they are so anxious to see you, but it becomes a duty to them.

Only very near and very dear friends are happy to entertain you. Guests usually disrupt the daily family program.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

LOTS of hullabaloo because American mothers are not having more children. What's the answer? MAYBE COMMUNITY NURSERIES.

Marie was talking about it the other day. Something she said gave me the clue to this article. Marie's an interesting, bright girl with a genuine ambition to make a success of her marriage. She was married six years ago and will have her first baby in October. She's worried at the prospect.

"People wonder why Ran and I waited six years," she said. "They think that perhaps I didn't like children or was afraid of childbirth. But that isn't so. I love children—and I don't think any healthy girl dreads the risk so much. I really want this baby and so does Ran—BUT WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO WITH HIM AFTER WE GET HIM?"

"I ought to go on with my work, we really need the money. We won't have half as fine a future to offer sonny if I drop out now. But it isn't just the money—Ran needs my companionship. We've had it six years now and it has been wonderful. He has been a different man. But of course, when the baby comes, I'll have to devote practically all my time to him for at least three years. I'll have to drop out of Ran's picture, and it's things like that that lead to divorce. Besides—maybe I'm selfish—but I don't want to lose those years of my own life just doing baby chores."

"But your mother had seven, and she and your dad stuck together to the end," I said.

"Yes—but things were different then. Husbands and wives weren't companions in those days, the way they are now. Modern husbands expect ten times as much from their wives as their fathers did. A woman has to keep up with things nowadays—if she doesn't, she loses her husband. Besides, if she's worth anything, she wants to keep up with things for her own sake.

"And there's another thing. Mother really had a lot of help in rearing her children, although she always claimed she didn't. But fami- her aunts closer together then. You could always leave the baby with your relatives or neighbors. But we're 2000 miles from our nearest relatives and we don't know a soul in our apartment house."

"But just think of the wonderful pleasure you two will have training the baby during that time—" Privately, I was a little shocked at her lack of enthusiasm.

She sat for a long time, thought fully, before she answered.

"I suppose we will," she smiled, and the old sweet dreams were in that smile. I felt better. "But people think differently about that part of it, too, nowadays. Mother love—that used to be the great idea. Babies needed mother love more than anything else. But now any doctor, or psychologist, or nurse, or teacher will tell you that mother love is apt to do more harm than good. Mothers are too emotional—and too ignorant. The average mother hasn't a bit of training.

"Dr. Watson says that babies should be taken entirely away from their mothers and put into the hands of experts. But I think that's too radical. Of course, if one could afford a fine nurse that would solve everything. The way they do in England—but nurses are prohibitive here. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could have community nurseries, as they have in some places, with trained nurses in attendance and doctors in call, where we could leave our babies during the day and occasionally at night? Why, I'd be willing to have a dozen babies if I could do that!"

"And who'd be paying for this Utopia?" I asked.

She shrugged her shoulders—laughed. "The taxpayers, I suppose. But why should that be so terrible? They pay for a lot of other things that aren't needed half as much as babies. Babies are the most important thing there is—why shouldn't we keep them up like we do highways and forest reserves?"

I wonder!

Community nurseries — would that really solve the problem of the decreasing birthrate? They'd save money, time and man power—they'd save valuable years and valuable development for weary young mothers and worried young fathers. Above all, they'd probably save the babies themselves from the menace of maternal ignorance and maudlin sentimentality.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The thing in the world I am most afraid of is fear, and with good reason; that passion alone, in the trouble of it, exceeding all other accidents. —Montaigne.

There is no greater delight than to be conscious of sincerity on self-examination. —Mencius.

By audacity great fears are concerned. —Lucan.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

After looking over the assembled misquotations and periodical statements for the fiscal year we are forced to admit that the world has gone blotto.

We are rapidly going scarcecy over records.

Ever since Lindy flipped the ocean and Ederle flopped the Channel, we all want to do things in a big way.

A big way is slang for mammoth methods. We don't care what we do. But the details must be gigantic.

Any bum can twine himself around a lamp post while he waits for the purple elephants to pass a given point, but Shipwreck Kelly has placed that accomplishment on the scale of grand opera.

Unable to synchronize his feet with the hot sidewalk, Shipwreck climbs a flagpole and eats his meals off the golden ball.

Shipwreck takes the place of an American flag on a pole. He also deprives the monkeys of naturely and steals the sparrow's perch.

We don't know exactly just what is in back of this. Many years ago a patriarch could get advertising space on a tombstone because of his beard.

The Mandarins of far Cathay could get famous by allowing their fingernails to grow long. A mandarin could scratch his own back without twisting his neck. He could also open ten letters at a time.

Records in old China consisted mostly of fingernails. After the world grew more athletic, the tournaments became diversified but the idea of publicity remained.

Anybody can rumble along in a rocking-chair for an hour. It is very comfortable. Then somebody discovered you got your cups and saucers in the newspapers if you rocked for 30 days and nights without stopping.

The idea spread so rapidly that now you cannot go within a mile of an Old Folk's Home because of the terrible squeaking and caterwauling of rusty rockers.

In these days of competition and excess baggage, it is not enough to be healthy and alive. We all must break some record.

A man out in Ohio ate two eggs for breakfast every day for years. Suddenly, he got the craze and announced that he would eat 200 eggs at one meal.

He did, and they made him a tombstone out of the shells.

Our advice to the public is to lay off the records and the 18-day diets. Go in for deep breathing and bank accounts.

Keep cool, eat lightly and avoid the checks. Gather the roses while you may, but leave the thorns and the records to the nuts.
